When requested for such a prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney trouble the answer was: "You must make the kidneys do their work. they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized as it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder. Most of all, you must keep them from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions I would suggest the following prescription, which is composed of only vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy. Any one can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. To be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often." This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first signs of any attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

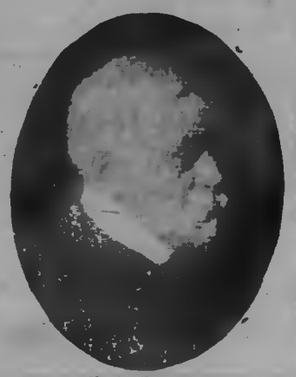
Whyte and Pottinger for Enlarged R. Board

Prominent Railway Men are Likely to be Appointed to Board

Will Aid the Commission



H. S. STRATHY,
Late General Manager of the Traders Bank of Canada.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—In connection with the proposed enlargement of the railway commission at Ottawa, your correspondent understands that an effort will be made to obtain the services of William Whyte of Winnipeg, second vice-president of the C. P. R., who at present has full management and control of the Canadian Pacific lines in the west. The name of Pottinger, general manager of the Intercolonial Railway, is mentioned as another probable appointee to the enlarged board.

Mr. Whyte has had thirty-six years practical experience of railway work, and has a reputation of a railway manager second to none in the Dominion. His service began on the Grand Trunk with whom he remained for twelve years. Afterwards he was in charge of the Credit Valley line, and later of the Toronto, Grey, and Bruce, and the Ontario and Quebec, now the Montreal-Toronto line of the Canadian Pacific Railway

Mr. Pottinger has been with the government railways since 1883, and has been general manager since 1892. Both he and Mr. Whyte are in their sixty-fifth year.

Woman Found Dead In Her Apartments

Mrs. Kerr was Asphyxicated by Coal Gas--Body Located Yesterday

Yesterday a sad scene was in evidence when the last mortal remains of a missing woman were found under conditions that precluded all chances of the suggestion of suicide. It seems that a Mrs. Kerr, who is mother of Walter Kerr, formerly well known here, but now operating a successful restaurant on Queen St. east, Toronto, has acted as charwoman at a local hotel.

Since last Monday morning the woman has been missing, and yesterday enquiries were made at the police station. Chief Rowel quickly had a number of the local officers on an investigating tour. Yesterday morning, after other efforts to locate the missing woman had failed the police undertook to break in the door of her apartments over Mr. Dutcher's fish, grocery and game store on George St. and here the remains of the unfortunate woman were found. Rigor mortis had set in and, in fact, conditions of the corpse showed that she had departed life from say, 24 to 36 hours. She was asphyxiated from the fumes from a coal stove. The supposition was clearly demonstrated conclusive by existing conditions. A telegram was at once sent to Mr. Walter Kerr, Toronto, who will doubtless be here today to arrange for burial of the deceased.

P. C. Newhall was the officer who discloses the tragedy. Mr. Newhall found the door into the late locked, but by breaking a pane of glass he was able to insert his hand, and turn the key, which had been left in the door. Between that room and the sleeping apartment there was another door, also locked, and the officer had to force it in to get entrance into the room, where he found Mrs. Kerr lying dead on the bed. The officer telephoned to Coroner Grey, who was on the scene in a few minutes.

Mrs Kerr was found lying on her bed. There is no doubt but what her demise was caused from a coal stove in the center of the apartments which had been left open, presumably accidentally. The old woman had put fresh coal on the fire, and it was still smouldering when the coroner examined the stove. It is thought that Mrs. Kerr had retired to the stove just before retiring, and had gone to death without noticing that she had neglected to close the lid.

The rooms were in a state of disorder although there was nothing to indicate that the dead woman had been in needy circumstances. Wearing apparel and bed clothes were strewn over the floor, and furniture of the bedroom and the room was in a very untidy state. There was not much furniture the bed upon which the dead woman lay, a table, an old lounge, and a couple of chairs being the principal articles. On a chair near the window was the Bible worn by the deceased with an umbrella leaning against the wall beside it.

In the kitchen there was an old cooking stove upon which a frying pan with the fragments of a meal still in it was placed, while a large table was about the only other article of furniture in the room

Meats Not Likely to Take a Drop in Peterborough

While despatches from cities across the border indicate that there has been a marked drop in the price of beef, and that a further decrease is expected, in a few instances do not point to any special cheapness in the market so far as Peterborough is concerned.

The cost of high-class beef will be higher, it is said, before the winter is over and still higher next spring. This is, in a few words, the consensus of opinion as gathered from butchers by a reporter.

A variety of causes has tended to bring down the price in the United States, but here a single cause is the reason for dear beef—it is the scarcity of annual feed

Since the fall set in the farmers have been shipping their cattle to the wholesalers. The result is that for the past few weeks the market has been practically flooded with low-class stock. This the retailers secured at a low cost but still there has been no very appreciable lowering in the cost so far as the consumer is concerned. The reason is that the retailers, so they say, lost money during the spring and summer and are now replenishing their empty coffers

"I do not expect any great lowering in the price of beef," said one butcher. "If there is a drop at all it will not be on prime beef. This is scarcer than it has been for years. In my opinion beef will be higher than ever during the winter, and still higher in the spring. I wouldn't be surprised but that cattle will have to be imported to supply the demand for high-class stock this winter and spring."

Local Milkman Held Up and Robbed

The average business of the milkman, no matter whether adhering to or actuated by local combine conditions, includes several rather unpalatable conditions as to early rising, hard work, etc., but still he or ordinary vendor of milk does not, in his daily schedule include a hold-up.

Still, Mr Isaac Hetherington, milk vendor, who resides on the Ellis homestead, Smith township, but outside the city limits, while returning home a few nights ago after covering his route, met two men, who suddenly sprung from the roadside and attacked him fiercely. Mr. Hetherington was badly beaten by the highwaymen, and it is said that he was robbed of some money.

His milk route is now being taken by a substitute who states that Mr. Hetherington will not be able to work again for a month, so seriously was he injured by the robbers.

A Week's Athletic Carnival to be Held by Irish-Canadians

Toronto, Nov. 28.—A whole week's athletic carnival, the biggest thing ever attempted along that line in Canada, is the latest undertaking of the Irish-Canadian Athletic Club. It is proposed to hold the event in St. Lawrence Market, during the week starting Dec. 16. Secretary Ivon was interviewed by President Flanagan last night and was assured that the C.A.A.U. would sanction the meeting and grant the club all the championship

At present there are practically no indoor marks in Canada, outside of those established in the armories by Tom Longboat at three miles, and Wilson of Peterborough, in his five-mile race against Tom Coley a short time ago, and an effort will be made at the coming carnival to hang up records in all branches of field and track sports that, lend themselves to indoor work

One of the biggest features of the carnival will be a six-day go-as-you please race, open to all amateurs holding C.A.A.U. cards The intention is to limit the number of contestants to say 25, and they will race two hours each evening for the entire week. Hilton Green has already signified his intention of entering.

It is doubtful whether Tom Longboat will be seen in competition during the carnival, but he will be sent out after all the records he will run and ten miles, and other runners will be given an opportunity if they so desire to endeavor to lower the marks which the Indian will hang up.

It is expected that Cecil, the champion Irish jumper, who is coming to Canada to join the Irish Canadian, will be here in time for the carnival, and on the first night will endeavor to establish a world's record for the hop, step and jump.

The Olympic Commissioners Will Suggest Terms of Compromise

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—The conference between the Federation and C.A.A.U. delegates to discuss the most plausible way of coming to an agreement whereby a representative Canadian team can be sent to the Olympic games next year, will probably be held in Col Hanbury-Williams' office in the East Block Saturday afternoon.

The discussion will no doubt be opened by the presentation of a proposition of some character from the Olympic commissioners. Whether such a proposition means a concession from one body to the other is not known.

It is believed, however, any amicable arrangement arrived at will be only through the good offices of the commissioners.

The Federation will be represented by Messrs. Lachapelle, Lloyd, O'Connell, Mercier and Foran, while Messrs. Stark, Crowe, Nelson, Merrick and D. MacLaren will look after the interests of the C.A.A.U.

SCHOOL DEBENTURES WILL BE PLACED AT FIVE PER CENT.

Board of Education in Session Last Night--Business of Importance was Disoussed by Members Present

The Board of Education met last night, with the following members present; Chairman Fair, Messrs Dr Morrison, Pringle, Dumble, Hill, Dr. Burnham and Hayes.

The first business transacted was the acceptance of the resignation sent in by Mr. R. Baker, janitor of the North Ward school The next business transacted was consideration of the sewer on Aylmer street. Mr. Pringle noted that he had spoken to Mr. White and the this gentleman anticipated no danger from the sewer. Mr. Morrison said that he had lately examined the Romaine street sewer and had found it open at several points. The sewer pipes were actually lost. Men had to hunting for the pipes to go several feet away. There is no doubt but what abominable work has been done on this sewer. The sewer from Aylmer street to the school is bad. The citizens along the route of the sewer will certainly not pay treble costs for the work. He did not blame MacGregor & Reid, but the council of the city. He moved that the Building Committee be instructed and empowered to make necessary arrangements for fixing this sewer

Mr Dumble said he had closely watched the building of this sewer. But work had been done. Mr. Baker had no experience in such matters and hence the blunders. There is a regular basin where water gathers Conditions were worse possible last year than for years before or to come. He recommended the building of closets for boys at one side and for girls on the other of the King Edward school.

Mr. Hill noted that the board could not touch their part of the sewer till the city finished their part. This brought matter on a most unfavorable time of year for such work.

The matter of Baker's resignation as janitor of the North Ward school, was again considered. Dr. Morrison noted that ex-Inspector D. Walker had spoken most favorably of Mr. Baker as a janitor. He thought it should be found out to whom or [illegible] was given the appointment signed

Mr. Dumble here explained, or otherwise noted, how he had asked Baker to do certain special work, that had not been attended to. Baker, while a nice fellow personally, is a failure as a janitor. He thought Baker has not scrubbed a room since he came on the job.

It was decided, on motion of Mr. Hill, to leave his resignation to the Property Committee

The matter of the Collegiate Institute debentures was considered next. It was decided that by placing the debentures at less than a five per cent., the loss in price would seriously handicap the board. A resolution to this effect was passed.

Two young men, Messrs. Lees and Pringle, representing the Philomathean Society, were heard regarding the financial statement of the Collegiate Institute paper. Mr. Lees, the first speaker, said he had been asked to come before the board and ask that the board put up a guarantee of, say $25, towards carrying on the paper. He was ably supported in his request for assistance by young Mr. Pringle

Chairman Fair highly complimented the young speakers on the admirable way in which they had presented their case.

Mr Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. Hayes that the Board go good for $25 in support of the Collegiate Echoes The meeting then adjourned.

Immigration Agents Should be Checked

Judging by the number of unemployed cap wearing and broad accent using, English immigrants, who seem to use the streets of Peterborough for no purpose but to joke one another by disparaging remarks about Canada, and suck cigarettes, after they can hold no more beer, it is time, in due protection to those who will undoubtedly have to pay the cost of keeping a majority of such possible)(sharers in work of Canadians during the coming winter months, to have some legislation passed to prevent a further influx of such immigrants. There seems no doubt but what more than one or two of the gang that walks the streets of this city will, when real cold weather comes be thrown on public charity to save starvation.

Whilst this prognostication may not be verified, and let us hope it may not, every thing points towards its realization. It is a shame that immigration agents in England, for a paltry commission paid them on steamship tickets should misrepresent conditions that are only too well to be learned on arrival of their duties, who seem to give more attention to comparing the quality of the "Bitter" served here and what they got in England.

Quarter of a Million Die Victims of Superstition

Lahore, India, Nov. 28.—The effort of the Indian government to stamp out the plague have, up to the present time been enormously hampered by the refusal of the Mohammedans to evacuate infected villages on the ground that they were forbidden by the Koren to "flee from the wrath of God," and fully a quarter of a million deaths from the plague among the Moslems have been due to this belief. But now the heads of the Moslem faith urged thereto by the government, have issued a proclamation pointing out the untenability of this idea, and declaring that the Koren expressly enjoins Mohammedans to quit places smitten by Allah with this disease. The government is publishing the proclamation widecast.

VERY PREVELENT IN YOUNG WOMEN

A Condition of "White-Bloodedness" is Fast Increasing.

It is always associated with languor and sensitiveness to cold. All the mucous surfaces, such as the gums, lips and eyelids, are bleached and waxy looking, the skin is pallid and colorless.

The pulse becomes rapid and feeble; there is also loss of appetite and enfeebled digestion, palpitation of the heart, breathless and tendency to faint. In extreme cases there is complete disappearance of the menses, ædematous flow and dropsical swelling of the limbs.

Physicians know of no remedy so prompt in results as Ferrozone, which contains all the elements lacking in debilitated blood.

Ferrozone not only improves the present quality of the blood, but actually forms more blood—the rich, red kind that nourishes and feeds the organs that require assistance.

"About a year ago," writes Mrs. S. G. Stanhope, of Rothesay, "my daughter complained of feeling tired. She was very pale and listless, and kept losing strength until too weak to attend school.

"We read of a similar case, that of Miss Dawson, Stirling, Ont., being cured by Ferrozone, and this induced us to get it for Elaine. It took three boxes of Ferrozone to make any decided improvement, but when six boxes were used my daughter was beginning to be her old self again. It didn't take much longer to make a complete cure. It has made a new girl of Elaine. She has gained ten pounds in weight and looks the picture of perfect health. She is stronger and enjoys the best of spirits."

Every growing girl and young woman can make herself strong and healthy with Ferrozone. Price 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

LAW COSTS

The Hon. A. G. MacKay, leader of the Liberal party in the legislature, has started a vigorous campaign in favor of law reform, in which it is to be hoped that he will be successful. In his speech at St. Mary's, on Tuesday, he said:

"There was nothing more mortifying to a man than putting down all the twaddle-twaddle which went to the making of a bill of costs. He could not see why a man should not make a bargain with a lawyer for his case to be handled for a certain fee. At present if a client consulted him he could not see how much the fees would amount to, because he did not know how much confounded side-stepping the other fellow was going to do. Neither could he see any reason why in 99 per cent. of the Ontario appeal cases the decision of the Ontario judges, who knew Ontario law and conditions, should not be final. Great corporations should not be allowed to beat out poor people by dragging cases from court to court. If also a county court judge could say whether a man was lying or not in a $1,000 note case he was capable of handling an action for slander. Therefore, let them lessen the pressure on the higher courts by extending the jurisdiction of the county courts.

AN AMAZING RECORD

The census bureau gives out the astonishing information that approximately 1,000,000 divorces were granted in the United States between 1887 and 1906, and something like 500,000 more couples got as far as the divorce court with their marital unhappiness. The official report will not be published till some time next spring, and the census bureau is not yet ready to make any official announcement of its results, but the total number can be approximated from the present status of the owrk. The census bureau has had 2,500 clerks and special agents at work on this report for seven months gathering information on the subject of domestic infelicity and arranging it for the benefit of those interested in things matrimonial. The investigation is nearing completion, and all the special agents have finished their work, save 140 who are investigating the remaining 40,000 cases.

WE HAVE THE ROUTE

The new Cunard liner Lusitania has made the run from Liverpool to Sandy Hook in 4 days 19 hours. The distance is 2,800 knots. The accomplishment is an amazing one, says the Toronto News, the speed of the vessel for the whole trip has been equal to that of the ordinary express train on this continent. But suppose this seven-hundred-foot racer were on the route between Liverpool and Halifax. The distance is 2,640 knots, a very considerable saving. If the steamer ran at the same average rate she would reach Halifax in three days, ten hours, and naturally would attract a great volume of passenger traffic to the Canadian port. But even though steamers coming to Halifax had only a 21-knot speed as compared with the Lusitania's 25 knots or more, the routes to Halifax and to New York would be on even terms as to time. This in a nutshell is the natural advantage of the All Red Line. Moreover the success of the Empresses and the turbine Allen liners on the St. Lawrence route is an indication that a fast line from Halifax would be able to compete successfully even against the New York greyhounds.

PRISONER HIS OWN JAILER.

Amusing Story of a Murderer Who Refused to Be Released.

Monaco has no guillotine and no executioner and, indeed, no arrangements for dealing with criminals.

It is the place to recall the amusing story told by Maupassant about a murderer who was tried, convicted and sentenced to death in Monte Carlo. The authorities asked France to loan them M. Deibler and his little instrument, the "red widow." The French government consented to oblige for the consideration of £1,000. The prince thought this too dear and so applied to his brother of Italy. Italy offered to do the thing, all included, for £680. This again was found too dear. "The man is not worth it," said the Monegasque authorities.

So the sentence of death was commuted to one of life imprisonment. But there was no prison in Monaco, and a gaol had to be erected for the express purpose of confining this murderer, and a jailer had to be appointed. This state of things lasted for some months, and then the jailer died.

The authorities at Monte Carlo, when considering the appointment of his successor, came to the conclusion that the man, the one prisoner, was costing the state a great deal of money. So a commission visited him and told him that in future he would be required to act as his own jailer. He grumbled a bit at this increase of sentence, but complied. His meals used to be sent down to him from one of the hotels in the town, but one day the scullion who brought him his dinner did not turn up to time, and so the prisoner walked up to the hotel and took his meal there. After that he got into the habit of going up to the hotel for his meals. Then, after a stroll on the front, he used to return to his prison and shut himself in, carefully bolting the door inside.

But again the authorities found that he was costing them too much, and so one day they called him up and told him that they were sick of seeing him about the place and that he must clear out. He emphatically refused to do anything of the kind. "You sentenced me to penal servitude for life," he argued, "and I expect to work out my sentence. I have no means of earning a livelihood since you created all the bother, and it is to you that I look for my sustenance."

To cut a long story short, the principality of Monaco was obliged to settle an annuity of £24 a year upon the convict before he would consent to accept his freedom and leave the country. As soon as this was arranged he took up his abode in a little cottage just over the Monaco border.

This is a true story, and the document fixing the man's pension, together with details about the payments, may be seen in the Monaco archives.

The late Prince de Monaco was fond of telling this story in Parisian drawing rooms, and, if I remember aright, I heard it on the same occasion as did the late Guy de Maupassant.—London Mail.

Sydney Smith's Joke.

Sydney Smith was very happy in his country life, and his children caught his spirit of delight over common things. They loved animals and spent long hours in training them. One little beast, a baby donkey, became under their tuition perhaps the most accomplished of his species and unconsciously gave rise to a quatrain which now belongs to the fame of Sydney Smith. The donkey was a well educated chap. He would walk upstairs, follow the family in their rambles like a dog and when they entered his meadow run to meet them with ears down and tail erect, braying joyously.

One day, when Billy's head was crowned with flowers and he was being trained with a handkerchief for a bridle, Mr. Jeffrey unexpectedly arrived. He joined in the sport and, to the children's delight, mounted Billy.

Thus he was proceeding in triumph when Sydney Smith and his wife, with three friends, returned from a walk and took in the festal scene. The great man advanced, with extended hands, and greeted his old friend in an impromptu which has become familiar to the reading world:

Witty as Horatius Flaccus,
As great a Jacobin as Oraechup,
Short, though not as fat as Raechus,
Seated on a little jackass!

Good Coal Stock is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines just north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 — 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 30 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 330 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crow's Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $250.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal. They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

We are offering these shares in blocks of 100 to 10,000 at 25c per share. For further information address

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

—COAL—

We have acquired options on certain coal-bearing lands in the Belly River Basin, near the Town of Lethbridge, Alberta, containing in all 2640 acres, which comes under the new government Leasehold Act, which extends for a period of 21 years with an option of renewal at the expiration of that time. The government annual fee is $2640.00.

We are forming a syndicate of $25,000.00 to acquire sufficient capital to begin operations. Of this amount we want to raise $15,000 cash in order to put in a small plant to begin operations. After such has been done, our intentions then are to form a Joint Stock Company for, say, $100,000 capital, or for such amount as the syndicate may agree upon. The syndicate is to own 51 per cent. of this stock for their share of the money and the time expended in the interests of the company. Balance of stock to be sold to the public for the purpose of installing an up-to-date plant, etc.

$3.00 PER TON

is the price that is being paid at the mine for No. 1 quality of hard coal of which we might say ours is similar. It burns to an ash. Has no clinkers and is right in the hard coal belt.

The seams which outcrop on the Belly River are 5 1-2 to 6 feet in thickness and in places reach a depth of 15 feet at some distance back from the river. With these reports in view, we estimated that 50,000 tons can be mined to the acre. It is, doubtless, the best coal deposits that we have ever looked into and a chance is hereby given to our customers, to join us in this syndicate, for you can readily see that as soon as the Joint Stock Company is formed, your holdings will be worth ten times as much. We are subscribers ourselves to the amount of $5,000. As we expect this syndicate allotment will be largely over-subscribed, we would advise immediate steps, if you wish to get any of the syndicate shares.

Should your subscriptions not be accepted, your money will be refunded. No subscriptions will be taken for less than $100.00.

A FORTUNE

Now that you have the opportunity to get in on the ground floor of a company, do so. Don't always be a common stock holder. We might also add that a few of our best coal dealers here are joining in the syndicate.

As this will be the only time this advertisement will appear, it is necessary for you to consider that a delay may rob you of the opportunity.

brown eyes dim with weeping. Giving him up to the war seemed like giving him up to death. But women can be as true heroes as men. Indeed, it oftentimes costs more courage for a weak, confiding woman to bid her loved ones leave her for the field of carnage than it costs them to face the cannon's mouth. Maddy found it so, but Christian patriotism triumphed over all, and stifling her own grief, she sent him away with smiles and prayers, and cheering words of encouragement, turning herself for consolation to the source from which she never sued for peace in vain. Save that she missed her husband terribly, she was not lonely, for her beautiful dark-eyed boy, whom they called Guy, Jr., kept her busy, while not very many weeks afterward, Guy, Sr., sitting in his tent, read with moistened eyes of a little golden-haired daughter, whom Maddy named Lucy Atherstone, and gazed upon a curl of hair she inclosed to the "soldier father, asking if it were not like some other hair now moldering back to dust within an English churchyard. "Maggie" said it was—Aunt Maggie, as Guy, Jr., called the wife of Dr. Holbrook, who had come to Aikenside to stay, while her husband did his duty as surgeon in the army. That little daughter is a year-old baby now, and in her short white dress and coral bracelets she sits neglected on the nursery floor, while mother and Jessie, Maggie and everybody hasten out into the yard to welcome the returning soldier, Major Guy, whose arm is in a sling, and whose face is very pale from the effects of wounds received at Gettysburg, where his daring courage had well-nigh won for Maddy a widow's heritage. For the present the arm is disabled, and so he has been discharged, and comes back to the home where warm words of welcome greet him, from the lowest servant up to his darling wife, who can only look her joy as he folds her in his well arm, and kisses her beautiful face. Only Margaret Holbrook seems a little sad, she had so wanted her husband to come with Guy, but his humanity would not permit him to leave the suffering beings who needed his care.

Jessie, grown to be a most beautiful girl of nearly sixteen, is still a child in actions, and wild with delight at seeing her brother again, throws her arms around his neck, telling, in almost the same breath, how proud she is of him, how much she wished to go to him when she heard he was wounded, how she wished she was a boy, so she could enlist, how nicely Flora is married and settled down at the cottage in Honeslale, and then asks if he knows aught of the rebel colonel to whom just before the war broke out her mother was married, and whose home was in Richmond.

Guy knows nothing of him, except that he is still doing what he deems his duty in fighting for the Confederacy, but from exchanged prisoners, who had come up from Richmond, he has heard of a beautiful lady, an officer's wife, and as rumor said, Northern woman, who visited them in prison, speaking kind words of sympathy, and once binding up a drummer boy's aching head with a handkerchief, which he still retained, and on whose corner could be faintly traced the name of "Agnes Remington."

Jessie's eyes are full of tears as she says:

"Poor mamma, how glad I am I did not go to Virginia with her. It's months since I heard from her direct. Of course it was she who was so good to the drummer boy. She cannot be much of a rebel," and Jessie clenches triumphantly at Mrs. Noah, who, never having quite overcome her dislike of Agnes, had sorely tried Jessie by declaring that her mother "had fooled her level at last, and was just where she wanted to be."

Good Mrs. Noah, the ancient man who's name she bore would as soon have thought of leaving the Ark as she of turning a traitor to her country, and when she heard of the rumors afloat raised against the draft, she talked seriously of going in person to New York "to give 'em a piece of her mind," and for one whole day refused to speak to Flora's husband, because he was a "dum dimocrat," and she presumed was opposed to Lincoln. With the exception of Maddy, no one was more pleased to see Guy than herself. He was her boy, the one she brought up, and with all a mother's fervor she kissed his bronzed cheek, and told him how glad she was to have him back.

With his boy on his sound arm, Guy disengaged himself from the noisy group and went with Maddy to where the little lady, the child he had never seen, was just beginning to show signs of discontentment at being left so long alone.

"Lulu, papa's come; this is papa," the boy cried, assuming the honor of the introduction.

Lulu, as they called her, was not afraid of the tall soldier, and stretching out her fat white hands, went to him readily. Blue-eyed and golden-haired, she bore but little resemblance to either father or mother, but there was a sweet, beautiful face, of which Maddy had often dreamed, but never seen, and whether it were fancy or not they thought they could trace a resemblance in the infantile features of his little girl. Pushing back the yellow curls and kissing her fair cheek, he said to Maddy, as the first time he always spoke of that dead one:

"Maddie Jessica Margaret Holbrook is right, our baby is very like dear Lucy Atherstone."

THE END.

Ancient Counterfeiters.

It is difficult to think of counterfeiters in connection with the golden days of Charles I., but a recent discovery of old coins in the well which is being excavated in the ruins of Scarborough Castle, England, seems to prove that they not only existed at that time, but were frequently in danger from the officers of the law.

The find in question consisted of a large mass of copper or brass strips, two of which coins had been punched, together with a number of imperfectly struck coins. The discovery took place at a distance of 130 feet from the surface of the ground.

H. A. Grueber, the keeper of the coins at the British Museum, to whom a portion of the find was sent, pronounced them to be incompleted farthings of the reign of Charles I. issued between 1626 and 1630. It appears that the right to issue these coins was granted by King Charles to the Dowager Duchess of Richmond and Sir Francis Crane, who no doubt made a considerable profit on the monopoly. The result of this monopoly seems to have been that extensive forgeries took place, and the British Museum's expert is of opinion that the coins found during the excavations at Scarborough Castle are forgeries struck at the time, and that in all probability they were thrown down the well to escape detection.

From the Dim Past.

There have just been placed on exhibition in the Egyptian galleries of the British Museum a select few of the Egyptian inscriptions recently discovered in the Sinaitic peninsula. One of the most interesting is a sandstone stele and altar set up by Sebekher-heb, an overseer of the Royal apartments, and a subordinate official named Kemen, who were attached to the Royal Chancery. The tablet, which is dated in the forty-fourth year of Amenem-hat III., about B. C. 2300, is of red sandstone, and contains an inscription in which a prayer is offered to Athor, the "lady of the turquoise land," by which name the Sinaitic peninsula was known to the Ancient Egyptians. There is also the lower portion of a statue of Usertesen II., B. C. 2333, dedicated to Hathor by the King's officials stationed in Sinai, and the lower portion of a seated figure of Hathor, dedicated to the goddess of Senefru, a captain of the boats in the reign of Amen-emhat I. The objects were discovered at Serabit-el-Kadim, in the Sinaitic peninsula, and were presented to the British Museum by the Egypt Exploration Fund.

Fen Country Spooks.

South Lincolnshire has its haunted house. It is situated at Marton, and for some time past the occupiers, it is said, have been disturbed at nights by unaccountable rappings at the doors and windows. Up to the present the cause is an absolute mystery. One evening three distinct knocks were heard at the front door, but upon the tenant proceeding to open it no one was there. Shortly afterwards the knockings were repeated. The same thing occurred on subsequent nights, and the village policeman secreted himself to watch and see if anyone was playing a prank. While he was thus engaged the knocks were frequently heard, and so loud occasionally that they were audible to the next-door neighbour. On one occasion the tapping came to the door while the policeman stood by, and when there was absolutely nothing to reveal the cause of it. All attempts to unravel the mystery have proved in vain. The house has become notorious, and many people have visited it with the object of hearing the supernatural tappings for themselves.

A Tip to Him.

"Of course," said the long winded bore, "it's essential that a man should weigh his words when speaking."

"Yes, and for some," remarked Peppery, "it's well not to give such generous measure."

General Colville Killed

London, Nov. 25. — General Sir Henry Edward Colville came to his death yesterday as a result of an automobile accident. The general last evening was riding a motor cycle down a country lane in Surrey. Upon turning a sharp corner he collided violently with an automobile driven by his old friend and battlefield comrade, General Sir Henry Seymour Rawlinson. General Colville was thrown to the ground, striking his head, and died from his injuries during the night.

General Colville was born in 1852. He is one of the generals who were recalled from South Africa during the Boer war, owing to the disasters sustained by the troops of his command.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. This tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—causes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and then pain? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES

said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings is rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $200,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America, and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1.400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and the stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, secure shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 7% per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

SAVED HER LIFE!

Wife and Mother Restored to Her Anxious Family

St. John, N.B., Sept. 14.—At one time it was feared that Mrs. J. Dean, of 23 White street, would succumb to the deadly ravages of advanced kidney trouble. "My first attacks of backache and kidney trouble began years ago. For six years that dull gnawing pain has been present. When I exerted myself it was terribly intensified. If I caught cold the pain was unendurable. I used most everything, but nothing gave that certain grateful relief that came from Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Instead of being bowed down with pain, today I am strong, enjoy splendid appetite, sleep soundly. Lost properties have been instilled into my blood—cheeks are rosy with color, and I thank the day that I heard of so grand a medicine as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Every woman should use these pills regularly because good health pays, and it's good, vigorous health that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Funeral of Late Jas. Dolan Saturday at 9 a.m

Now that Mr. James Dolan has passed away, as noted in yesterday's issue, it was yesterday soon vastly that not for many a year has the death of a citizen of Peterborough been more generally or more sincerely regretted. The funeral will be held on Saturday morning at nine o'clock from the City Hotel to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Yesterday Mr. Bert Dolan of New York, who has been here since the deceased took his recent turn for the worse, received a telegram from Mr. Jas. Dolan, Jr., of Columbus, O., saying that the latter gentleman would be present for the obsequies.

In addition to the message noted, Bert telegraphed to Mr. John Dolan who has for some 25 years held a responsible position with Messrs. Marshall Field & Co., Chicago. Unfortunately yesterday was Thanksgiving Day in the United States, so that the message sent to Field's was not delivered, however today a further message will be sent that will result in the attendance at the funeral of Mr. John Dolan.

Obituary

Fred C. Lutes, of 245 Lake avenue, Rochester, N.Y., and grandson of ex-Mayor John Lutes, died Wednesday, Nov. 20th, after an illness of two years, with a disease which baffled the skill of prominent Rochester and Peterborough physicians. Mr. Lutes was appointed fireman April 17th, 1899, and while assisting in the rescue of five children from a burning building, who were ill with scarlet fever, contracted the disease himself, which developed the glandular trouble that caused his death. While only 24 years old, he had the love and respect of all. The many beautiful floral offerings testified to love and sympathy of a host of friend.

Before his appointment on the fire department he was connected with the National and Baker theatre as treasurer, and was the recipient of silver cups by his trustworthy and honest principles.

He was a member of the Lake Avenue Baptist church and Sunday school, and a most devoted and thorough son.

The funeral was in charge of the firemen, who felt they had lost a dear brother whose fired was taken

Rugby

The Peterborough Rugby Club will leave on the midnight C.P.R. train tonight for Montreal, arriving on the metropolis on Saturday morning at seven o'clock. The team, whilst up against great odds, is going into the game with the determination to show that they are worthy of a place in the big league, and to bring the honors back to Peterborough, if it is possible. The chances against them are not as big as some local people appear to think. The Eastern ers, it is said, are not in the same condition as they were when they played their last league game, while Peterborough, on the other hand, are in superb physical condition, and keyed up for the hardest kind of a battle. The local wing line is as big if not bigger, than that of the Easterners. While the Montrealers may be a little faster and tackle more accurately, yet they will have troubles of their own in protecting their backs from the assaults of the Peterborough forward division. Behind the line Montreal is handicapped, inasmuch as they have no reliable drop kicker. Goals from the field have played a prominent part in many games this year and Peterborough is very fortunate in that particular. It is, doubtful if Montreal has any one behind the line who is a better punter than Colledge or Crough.

How the Bankers Handle Wheat Crop

Winnipeg, Nov. 27.—Here, in brief, is the story of the movement of the Canadian crop in the fall:—

(1) The farmer delivers his wheat at a near-by elevator, or he orders grain cars and ships to Winnipeg for inspection and sale.

(2) At Winnipeg the grain is either purchased by the milling companies and stored by them for future use, or it is sold to large dealers who carry wheat over from month to month, hoping to profit on the difference between the cash article and the price of futures. It is the latter class who are not being assisted by the banks in their speculations just now, and many of the complaints against the bankers emanate from this fraternity.

(3) Regarding the export business, those who send the wheat eastward are often the same firms who speculate in grain futures. The two functions of these houses are entirely distinct. As exporters these firms enter the Winnipeg market and buy wheat on the track and in the elevators.

(4) When shipment time comes they forward their goods down the lakes from Port Arthur or Fort William.

(5) Next, with the help of the Canadian banks, an "inland draft" is drawn on a New York or other export house.

(6) This draft, with the inland bill of lading attached, is handed to the buyer of the draft, who sees the shipment made and negotiates a sterling or continental bill of exchange, to which is attached the bill of lading.

(7) When the train is on the high seas en route to Europe, Canadian banks which financed the shipment at Winnipeg get their money back.

The Canadian banks thus advance the requisite funds to the shipper at Winnipeg. Their money is returned to them when the cargo is on the Atlantic. The funds thus released go back to Winnipeg and then finance more shipments.—Monetary Times.

THE TRADERS BANK OF CANADA.

The Traders Bank of Canada has been in existence since 1885, and has developed from a comparatively small beginning to the first rank as one of Canada's great financial institutions. The Bank has an authorized capital of $6,000,000, of which $4,331,520 is paid up. Its reserve fund amounts to $1,900,000. From the time of its inception up to a few weeks ago, the Bank was under the management of Mr. H. S. Strathy, to whose untiring energy and ability is due in a great measure the wonderful progress made by the institution. Mr. Strathy has now retired from active service in the Bank, but will remain on the Board of Directors, of which he has been elected a Member. Following Mr. Strathy's retirement, Mr. Stuart Strathy has been appointed General Manager. The latter gentleman was manager of the Bank's branch at Hamilton until December of last year, when he became Assistant General Manager. During his term of office in Hamilton Mr. Stuart Strathy built up a large and prosperous business. Mr. N. Hillary, whose phenomenal success as manager of the Sudbury branch, has been promoted to the position of Assistant General Manager and Superintendent of Branches. Mr. John L. Willis, for over thirteen years manager of the Port Hope branch, has been appointed Auditor of the Board. Mr. R. P. Sherrie to the inspector.

The Bank has 76 branches, situated in the important trade centres.

The following composes the Board of Directors:—C. D. Warren, President; Hon J. R. Stratton, Vice-President; H. S. Strathy, C. Kloepfer, Guelph; C. S. Wilcox, Hamilton; W. J. Sheppard, Waubaushene; E. F. B. Johnston, K.C

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Advisor will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Special Meeting in Dec.

The Wonderful Buoyancy of Company's Stock

Montreal, Nov. 29.—Next year the Canadian Pacific Railway will issue $24,720,000 common stock, which, with the $121,280,000 outstanding will bring the road's capital up to an even $150,000,000.

A special general meeting of the shareholders has been called for December 30 to sanction the issue of the $25,220,000 in such sums and at such times as the directors think proper.

If the money markets are anyway favorable, it is believed that the road will early in the year issue at least $12,000,000 new stock, which would give the present shareholders one share in ten.

The Canadian Pacific's credit is so high in the world's markets that it is one of the few roads that can talk of money plans at this time.

Early in the present year, when city or corporations were paying fancy rates for money, and some found it impossible to get anything at all, the C. P. R. sold $4,450,000 consolidated debenture stock and $1,250,00 preference stock in London.

The price received for these 4 per cent. issues was better than par, and it must have staggered the other railroads, which were paying anywhere from 5 to 9 per cent. for money.

Shot His Wife as She Lay Asleep

New York, Nov. 29.—John Whitley, one of the leading dealers in stoves, ranges and house-heating apparatus in Brooklyn, and vice-president of the Reliance Ball Bearing Door Hanger Company, killed his wife with two pistol shots early today as she lay sleeping in her room on the ninth floor of the Hotel Belleclaire, Broadway and 77th street, Manhattan. Whitley then leaped from the window into the street, being killed instantly by the fall. Whitley was 60 years old, and his wife 36. They had a home in the fashionable section in Brooklyn, but had been living temporarily at the Belleclaire.

Lemieux Dined with Japan's Empress

Tokio, Nov. 29.—Hon. R. Lemieux, Canadian postmaster-general and minister of labor, who is on a mission concerning emigration, had an audience today and lunched with the empress at the palace. The usual ceremonies were observed. The emperor was indisposed with a cold and unable to be present.

K. Ishii, chief of the bureau of commerce of the Japanese foreign office, is expected on the 30th of November. After his arrival it is believed negotiations concerning emigration into America will proceed more rapidly.

Toronto Man is Held in Chicago--His Wife Charges Bigamy

His Young Wife Met Him at Summer Hotel --Wife Living in Toronto

Has Hypnotic Charm on Her

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 28.—Joseph Leslie, formerly a hotel clerk in Toronto, formerly a hotel clerk in Toronto, is in the county jail in default of bonds of $3,000, pending action in the Criminal Court on a charge of bigamy preferred by Mrs. Nina Wright Leslie, who claims that she is Mrs Leslie No. 2 The woman, who is a concert singer, possessed of more than usual personal beauty, and whose voice has been heard in many recital halls of the west, told Judge Maxwell, who presided at the preliminary trial in the Hyde Park Municipal Court, that she feared she would not be able to resist the hypnotic spell of "Leslie's terrible eyes." When she took the witness stand she insisted on having Mrs. Edwin Kestner, 6311 Kimbert avenue, who is a sister of Mrs. Leslie No. 1 between her and the man she was testifying against. Thus shielded from the influence of the eyes which had cast their mysterious spell over her, she testified that she had been married to him in St. Louis, September 18.

WIFE'S SISTER TESTIFIES.

Mrs. Kestner followed with a recital of incidents alleged to have taken place in connection with his wedding to her sister, a former Rose's Cronan, who became his bride in Chicago in 1899.

Bowing her head low and keeping her eyes turned to avoid meeting the glances of Leslie, alleged wife No. 2, said: "I came from Kincardine, Scotland, and met this man in Toronto. He learned that I was a singer, and while at a summer hotel I made his acquaintance. He seemed to have a peculiar influence over me and we were married in St. Louis last September. After a honeymoon trip we went to Chicago. Here he was to be my manager, and to arrange for concert engagements which would bring me before the public."

Leslie at first insisted on conducting his own trial and cross-examining his alleged second wife, but when the witness protested he was prevented from interfering. She is now living with Mrs. Kestner and waiting for the call of the case in the criminal court.

Mrs. Kestner said: "Leslie has been married to my sister since 1899. We are not interested in the case any more than to see justice done to her and to her children. They lived in Toronto, where my sister and her children are now. When the case reaches the criminal court she will likely be here to give her own testimony."

Leslie was originally arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct by Detectives Hogan and O'Connor, after it was alleged, he attempted to stab the young woman with a pocket knife one evening while the pair were on the way to the home of Mrs. Kestner. The [illegible] Mr. Kestner she learned that Leslie had been previously married and the bigamy charge was soon filed.

Leslie is fifty-three years old, and when arrested gave his occupation as that of an actor. Later he admitted having been employed as a clerk in a number of hotels in the United States and Canada. He has peculiar flashing eyes and an unusual nervous and eccentric manner.

Mrs. Leslie No. 2, was a former Miss Nina Wright; is 20 years old, dark, and very pleasing. She is said to be [illegible] assumed name.

The Chicago police are in correspondence with the police of Toronto.

Mr. Mathewson is Dead

Montreal, Nov. 30.—Mr. Frank W. Mathewson died shortly after noon. From the first Dr. Roddick, who had charge of the case, stated that he had little hope of his patient's recovery.

Mr. Mathewson was taken very ill on Wednesday, on returning from a drive with his daughter, during which the horse he was driving ran away for about a mile before it could be gotten under control. Afterward Mr. Mathewson complained of a pain about the heart.

C.A.A.U. Athletes Barred

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 29.—Canada is now a prohibitive field from which to draw athletes as features for athletic exhibitions in Buffalo. Edward Reinecke, local handicapper, and representative of the Amateur Athletic Union, has received his instructions on this score, and no Canadian runners will be allowed in his territory. The ukase against Canadian athletes does not extend throughout the Dominion, but excepts members of the Montreal A.A.A. The local meet promoters have been inviting the Canadian runners to compete in the meets here. Runners from Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, and other nearby points have run here, with credit to themselves. The Canadian A.A.U. and James E. Sullivan have had a flare-up. A new association has been formed over the line, and Sullivan took sides, and affiliated with the new organization, which is called a mongrel association by the prominent athletes. The heads of the amateur organizations here have been notified by Mr. Reinecke. It means that the 74th Regiment and the 65th Regiment cannot invite the Toronto and Hamilton relay teams to compete here unless a change in the decision is made. This is not like, as Sullivan is not on the habit of giving it, even if it is for the benefit of amateur athletes. They do some funny things in that association, and the latest decision will not add to the popularity of the A.A.U.

Two Men Fatally Injured in Explosion At Cobalt Lake

MAN KILLED.

Allen Allore, machinist, twenty-eight years old, married, of Tweed, Ont.

FATALLY INJURED

Phil H. Roy, helper, twenty-eight years, single, Cacouna, Que.

Cobalt, Nov. 29.—A double accident occurred in the north shaft of the Cobalt Lake last evening at 9.30, by which Allen Allore, a machinist, was killed, and Phil. Roy, his helper, fatally injured.

The accident was caused by one of the men striking a hole while mucking that had missed fire, thereby causing an explosion.

Before going to work, the men had been cautioned by the foreman of the day-shift that one of the holes of the shaft had missed fire. Shortly before the accident, a loaded stick of dynamite was discovered in the muck.

The shaft is about 60 feet deep. Silas Hall, a fireman, who was standing at the top, was slightly injured in the face, and received a bad shaking up from the shock.

Allore was 28, years of age, married, and belonged to Tweed.

Roy is the same age, single, and comes from Cacouna, Que.

Mr. Norton McBrien is Now a Benedict

Marriage of Former Popular Local Telephone Foreman

The many friends in this city and vicinity of Mr. Norton McBrien, will congratulate this expert in telephone construction work on his having discarded the Dead Sea fruit of single life for the more commendable and satisfying joys of the matrimonial state.

Mr McBrien, or as he is better known to his many friends in both Peterborough and Victoria Counties, is recognized as one of the Bell Telephone Company's most expert line construction and repair foreman.

On Wednesday last Mr. McBrien with that modesty that characterizes the best workmen and citizens entered the great army of benedicts in a marriage that was of a quiet and unassuming nature. The marriage was solemnized in Toronto by the Rev. Mr. Ousley at the latter's parsonage in the presence of only immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride, a charming Peterborough girl, who has for some months held a position with the T. Eaton Co., Toronto, was Miss Ellice Harper, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harper, of Sherbrooke street.

The happy couple are now spending a few days in the city guests of Mrs. Mathers, Oolivar street, a sister of Mr. McBriens. Today Mr. and Mrs. McBrien will go to Millbrook to visit friends and on their return will, on expiration of their Peterborough visit, go to Lindsay, to take up the cares and joys of housekeeping. "Mac's" many chums here will extend heartfelt wishes for a happy future for both him and his bride.

Extraordinary Shot at a Grey Owl

Predatory Bird Captured with Mink in Its Talons

Mr. Thos. Trennum, an old Peterborough boy, but now a resident of the township of Harvey, was in the city yesterday, and gave The Times a call. During his call Mr. Trennum noted that, whilst on watch, between Little Bald Lake and Pigeon Lake Narrows, he saw something passing through the lambient atmosphere of the far northern regions that naturally attracted his attention.

Mr. Trennum, after sizing up affairs, got his rifle into action and fired. The result of his shot was the rapid dropping to "terra firma" of a huge grey owl which had, in its talons, firmly clasped, and ready for future use at the "eyrie of that bird, as a meal for hungry owlets, a well covered and valuably clad mink. Mr. Trennum thus not only shot the bird supposed to be the emblem of knowledge but in its claws a fur bearing animal whose pelt is worth a good $10 bill.

C.A.A.U. Will Stick by Their Present Amateur Rule

Toronto, Nov. 29.—The members of the C.A.A.U. Executive who will represent the Union at the joint meeting with Col. Hanbury-Williams at Ottawa tomorrow, will leave on the C.P.R. this evening, and on the way down will go over the matter very thoroughly.

A member of the committee stated this morning that, while in all probability the Federation would be represented the C.A.A.U. will look on this mere in the light of an incident, as the committee is going down to Ottawa on Col. Hanbury-Williams' invitation to meet him, not the Federation.

Furthermore, if the Federation makes any kick against certain members of the C.A.A.U. committee the objection will be ignored, leaving the Federation the option of either giving in or leaving the meeting. The C.A.A.U. does not intend to commit itself to any definite agreement, although prepared to lend all the aid possible to Col. Hanbury-Williams.

NO COMPROMISE.

There will be absolutely no compromise on the amateur principle, and no concession whatever will be made towards paving the way for the introduction of the "broader" amateur idea, as it is termed by the Federation. The C.A.A.U. will not give in one inch on their amateur definition, and no concessions whatever will be considered, though they do not invite a conflict with the Olympic Committee in regard to any athlete they may select to compete in Canada or England.

"Rather than renounce our amateur principles, I would rather see the C.A.A.U. refuse absolutely to send any men to England," said a member of the governing body this morning. However, he is not a member of the committee which will go to Ottawa tonight.

"There's a Reason"

Hyman on the Way Home

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—Returning to his home in London, Ont., from a tour in China and Japan, Charles Smith Hyman, former Canadian minister of public works, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Korea. He said that Japan had no hard feelings against the Canadians for their treatment of the Japanese at Vancouver a few months ago.

"I heard very few expressions of hostility against either Canada or the United States," he said. "Some of the newspapers printed rather inflammatory articles, but the mass of the people did not seem to attach any importance to the various race outbreaks."

He was inclined to think that Lemieux's mission was largely an experimental one, the Canadian government having no definite idea of what it was prepared to grant and what it would accede to.

FIVE MEN KILLED WHEN TRAIN CRASHED INTO TROLLEY

Terrible Level Crossing Fatality at Waterbury, Conn.—Six Passengers were Badly Injured--Conductor and Flagman Held

Waterbury, Conn., Nov. 30. — A shocking accident, in which five factory employes were killed, occurred about 6.30 this morning at the West Main street crossing over the Highland Division tracks of the N.Y., N. H. & H. R. Railway, when an extra Hartford-bound freight train crashed into a trolley car containing 25 persons bound for the pin factories in Oakville. The car was struck with great force at right angles, directly in the middle, and the dead persons were all badly mangled. Six others were badly injured, and had to be carried to their homes.

The dead: Sarah Ryan, 26 years old; Annie Corcorry, 24 years old; Robert French, 20 years old; unidentified man, about 30 years old; unidentified woman, about 25 years old. It is not yet known whether any of the persons injured will die.

A hurried investigation by the coroner resulted in the arrest of Flagman John Flavin and Conductor John Dillon of the trolley car. The motorman, Charles Leonard, was not held. The flagman was on duty, but it is not known whether he waved his flag, showing a clear track.

A TERRIBLE SCENE.

There was no chance for the railroad engineer to stop his train in time to prevent the accident. Although he applied the brakes, the engine crashed into the trolley car, smashing it to splinters and throwing the occupants in all directions. The screams of the victims could be heard for blocks, and in a short time a great crowd had collected. Many of those injured were carried to nearby stores, while some who were unable to walk were laid alongside of the tracks until carriages and ambulances took them to their homes. The dead bodies were quickly taken from the wreckage and sent to morgues. The fragments of the body of the unknown woman were gathered in a basket.

Jap Consuls Discouraged Him--G. T. P. Uses a Few of Them

Vancouver, Nov. 29.—Gorokaburagi, editor of the Canadian Nowa, a Japanese paper, told Commissioner King yesterday afternoon that, on behalf of the Canada Kangyo Company he had approached the late E. G. Russell to ascertain whether the G. T.P. desired any Japanese laborers, but Russell declined to discuss the matter. Last September in Montreal the witness saw Consul-General Nosse, and asked him what the prospects were to supply Jap. laborers to the G.T.P., Nosse gave him no encouragement, telling him not to pursue the subject further.

F. Anno, head of a Jap. labor company here, told Mr. King it was an open secret that the Planters' Association of Hawaii were behind the Asiatic Exclusion League in San Francisco. He would not be surprised if they had formed the league and secured the American Exclusion Act.

Mr. King—"Do you think they formed the Asiatic Exclusion League in Vancouver?"

"Yes," came the answer, amid much laughter.

Mr. King—"Do you think President Von Rhein is in league with the Planters' Association?"

Mr. Anno—"Yes."

Mr. Anno read a telegram from Consul Morikawa to Hawaii, urging that no more Japs be sent after the ss. Kumeria broach.

Mr. King declared this showed conclusively that Morikawa was all he could to stop immigration from Hawaii. Anno knew nothing of any of the companies here importing Japs.

INTENTIONS OF G. T. P.

"I observe Mr. Bacon is particular not to say what the intentions of the Grand Trunk Pacific are in future regarding Oriental labor. This is significant, for work is not commenced in British Columbia." This was the remarkable observation of former Attorney-General Charles Wilson, counsel for the provincial government, when affidavits were read from J. H. Bacon, harbor engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Prince Rupert, and D. M. Hays, brother of the general manager, also not in Vancouver. Hays said he never was connected with the Grand Trunk Pacific. Bacon declared the company made no contract or agreement with Japanese or other boarding-house keepers for supplying the Orientals, nor had he received any instructions from the company either to import or employ Orientals.

RUSSELL NO AUTHORITY.

In referring to a letter written by the late E. G. Russell, he said; "Russell had no authority to enter into any contract to engage Oriental or any other laborers. The company never contracted with any person with a view to importing Orientals. Mr. Russell was well aware of this policy."

Mr. Bacon admitted that 1,500 acres of Kuien Island were now being cleared Whites declined to do part of this, and it is now being done by Japs.

Mr. Wilson said: "He who accuses accuses. Bacon has denied what was not charged, and has even alleged disobedience of orders by a man who is dead."

DEFENDED MR. BACON.

The commissioner defended Mr Bacon, stating that he had ordered Mr. Bacon to be "direct and comprehensive in his affidavit." Mr. King added; "I had very strong suspicions that the Grand Trunk Pacific was connected in some way with this influx, and am glad both Hays and Bacon have given complete denials."

Wilson then criticised Mr. Bacon, as quoted above. The enquiry may end tomorrow.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of known composition. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound.

If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels.

"Sprinkler of Death"

In Half a Minute It Covers Acres with Bullets

London, Nov. 29.—What the French rely on to make up for their inferiority in numbers in case of war is their splendid artillery. There is the small field gun, whose action has been likened to that of a sprinkler.—"sprinkler of death"—and the great weapon of destruction recently perfected, the "155 S," which, though it throws an 85-pound projectile and weighs more than 7,000 pounds mounted and ready for action, is yet designed to be used in field operations.

The sprinkler of death is officially known as the 75 gun. That is to say, it is of 75 millimeters or about three inches caliber. It is, perhaps, the most accurate and for the size of its projectile the most rapid firing of guns; the French certainly think it is.

While it is being fired the piece has two controllable motions. One is the "reaping" motion; this is a horizontal sweep which enables each gun to rake a line 350 feet long, or thereabouts. The other motion increases or diminishes the range. Thus the man who is directing the gun by wabbling it a little from right to left and left to right, raising or depressing the muzzle a trifle at the same time—all by means of mechanism which a child could operate—spreads a hail of bullets over acres of ground as easily as a woman would sprinkle a flower bed from a water pot.

The French army now has about 2,000 of these gentle engines of destruction and is of course building more. It has been in use in principle since 1897, when it was determined to replace the old 3 1-4-inch field gun with it, but it has been greatly improved since. Only two to three shots a minute could be fired from the old gun. The new one gives easily 30 shots.

Parisians who are fond of figuring declare the comforting consolation that the light artillery of the nation may be counted on to fire at least 10,000 shots a minute, hurling [illegible] 200,000 bullets against an [illegible] German host.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

In the newspaper advertisements of many of the big department stores in the States a card to the following effect is displayed:

To Christmas shoppers: Buy your presents early—early in the day and early in December. That will be your biggest gift of the holidays to the workers behind the counters and on the delivery wagons.

The idea originated in Cleveland, where the Merchants' Association has succeeded in creating a taste for Christmas shopping in November or early December. It is a good idea and worth imitating in Canada. The Christmas stocks are ready for sale. They may be seen to better advantage now than later, and with less inconvenience to the customer, the merchant and the merchant's employee. If a considerable volume of the Christmas shopping was done now the burden of night and day toil which the merchants and their employees must undergo during the week before Christmas would be greatly lightened. And that alone is worth bringing about.

THE MILLIONS AT STAKE

It is estimated that the wheat crop of the United States will be at least a hundred million bushels less than the crop of 1896. The corn crop is sixteen per cent. less than it was a year ago. The total production of standard cereals—corn, rye, wheat and barley — is 300,000,000 bushels under the crop of last year. This means that the Americans will have so much less of food stuffs to put into the markets of the world.

The reports from abroad are conducive to some anxiety. Russia is producing less grain in proportion to its population. India is expecting less, the natives having substituted wheat for rice as an article of home consumption. Southern Europe is having all it can do to meet its own requirements agriculturally.

Canada, under the circumstances, looms up large in the vision of the British people. They are expecting more grain from Canada and are making the shipment of it an advantage by paying fifty cents more for it than they did a twelve month ago. The loaf at home is dearer, and the consumers with less revenue have something to talk about.

Two conditions are absolutely necessary to an easy movement of grain across the Atlantic — better banking and railway facilities. The bankers say they are doing their duty, but they are piling up the reserves and shutting down on discounts and loans, and the plan of it all is not discernable.

The railway companies hope by a good rate and good service to make an all-winter movement of grain possible, and one must hope that expectations will be verified. There are millions of dollars meanwhile at stake.

A WARM WELCOME.

The Way an American Visitor Was Received in London.

"When I arrived in London," says a well known actor, "I received a charming letter from a man whose name I could not recall ever having heard before, but presuming that it must be some friend whom I had forgotten I readily accepted the invitation to dinner which the epistle contained and duly turned up the following evening at the hotel named. A gentleman whom I did not recognize at once approached me with outstretched hand, and so pleased did he seem to see me that I did not like to hurt his feelings by admitting that my memory had failed me, but trusted that some chance remark might presently remind me of our previous acquaintance.

"In due course we enjoyed the best dinner the house had to offer, accompanied by the very choicest cigars. At this point the gentleman left the room in order to get something out of his overcoat pocket and failed to reappear. I waited for him in vain. Then by degrees the truth dawned upon me, and I realized why he had been so genuinely pleased to meet me. However, he told so many amusing stories that the evening was pleasant enough to more than compensate me for being obliged to pay the bill."—New York Globe.

A SOLDIER'S DREAM.

This Little Gem of Fiction Comes to Us From France.

A French soldier who had been away from home for several years returned unexpectedly to his native town. The day of his arrival being Sunday, he went to the village church, believing his wife would be there, and he thus could see her the sooner. Taking a seat near the door, he waited until the service was over.

While waiting, being very much fatigued after a long journey, he fell asleep, his head resting on the back of the pew. While sleeping he dreamed of being seized as a spy and after a short trial was condemned and led out for execution. The guillotine had been erected, the army stood ranged about, and all the preparations were made as impressively as possible. The condemned man was placed in position, and the last act in the drama was at hand.

Just at that moment his wife was passing down the aisle of the church on her way out. She recognized her husband and in order to awaken him tapped his neck playfully with her fan as his head was thrown back on the seat. The contact of the fan he in his dream supposed to be the knife of the guillotine. The shock was so great it killed him instantly.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

A Sad Bereavement.

An honest countryman, anxious to explore the wonders of the British museum, obtained a special holiday a short time since. Accordingly, taking with him a couple of friends, he presented himself at the door for admittance.

"No admission today, sir," said the keeper.

"But I must come in. I've a holiday on purpose."

"No matter. This is a close day, and the museum is shut."

"What!" said John. "Ain't this public property?"

"Yes, but one of the mummies died a few days ago, and we are going to bury him."

"Oh, in that case we won't intrude!" said John in a hushed voice. So he retired.—London Tit-Bits.

The Unpopular Pump.

"That famous temperance reformer Francis Murphy," said a Pittsburg man, "had many an odd adventure in the course of his very useful life. He once told me of a case where a drinking man with a neat joke got for the moment a little the better of him in an argument. The man was a clubman, a bon vivant, famous for his wine cellar, and Mr. Murphy read him a strong lecture on the drink evil. But the bon vivant only smiled, shook his head and said:

"'Well, Mr. Murphy, I have seen many a pleasant party around a table, but I have never seen one around a pump.'"

His Consolation.

John and Willie are twins. Their best friend and playfellow is Archie, who is gifted with red hair and a hot temper. One day they quarreled and Archie started home in a huff. The unsympathetic twins called after him, "Red head, red head!" Archie seemed not to hear until the insult was repeated. Then he turned and called back, "Don't care if I am red headed; I ain't twins, and folks can tell me apart!"

"Pleasant."

"Deah me, Miss Mahala, who's de swell gemmen wot dem tak yo' out walkin'?"

"Dat gemmen? He's de one what is financed tuh me, Mistah Johnsing."

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 50 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 250 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crow's Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and as the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $250.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

We are offering these shares in blocks of 100 to 10,000 at 25c per share. For further information address

PATENTS PROMPTLY SECURED

COAL

We have acquired options on certain coal-bearing lands in the Belly River Basin, near the Town of Lethbridge, Alberta, containing in all 2560 acres, which comes under the new government Leasehold Act, which extends for a period of 21 years with an option of renewal at the expiration of that time. The government annual fee is $2560.00.

We are forming a syndicate of $25,000.00 to acquire sufficient capital to begin operations. Of this amount we want to raise $15,000 cash in order to put in a small plant to begin operations. After such has been done, our intentions then are to form a Joint Stock Company for, say, $500,000 capital, or for such amount as the syndicate may agree upon. The syndicate is to own $1 per cent. of this stock for their share of the money and the time expended in the interests of the company. Balance of stock to be sold to the public for the purpose of installing an up-to-date plant, etc.

$3.00 PER TON

is the price that is being paid at the mine for No. 1 quality of hard coal of which we might say ours is similar. It burns to an ash. Has no clinkers and is right in the hard coal belt.

The seams which outcrop on the Belly River are 5 1-2 to 6 feet in thickness and in places reach a depth of 15 feet at some distance back from the river. With these reports in view, we estimated that 50,000 tons can be mined to the acre. It is doubtless the best coal deposits that we have ever looked into and a chance is hereby given to our customers to join us in this syndicate, for you can readily see that as soon as the Joint Stock Company is formed, your holdings will be worth ten times as much. We are subscribers ourselves to the amount of $5,000. As we expect this syndicate allotment will be largely over-subscribed, we would advise immediate steps, if you wish to get any of the syndicate shares.

Should your subscriptions not be accepted, your money will be refunded. No subscriptions will be taken for less than $100.00.

A FORTUNE

Now that you have the opportunity to get in on the ground floor of a company, do so. Don't always be a common stock holder. We might also add that a few of our best coal dealers here are joining in the syndicate.

As this will be the only time this advertisement will appear, it is necessary for you to consider that a delay may rob you of the opportunity.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a straight line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Camilla's Bargain.

By JEANETTE WILSON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Jessie Morgan.

"Poring over those advertisements still, daughter? Aren't you afraid of letting your economy run into extravagance?"

"Why, daddy, I never bought anything"—

"Oh, Camilla!" reproved Mr. Sheldon, casting an amused glance about the dining room.

"Anything that wasn't a bargain," continued Camilla, unabashed. "And the very thing we needed—those decanters and the old fashioned plates and the brass candlesticks and the electroller and"—

"Yes, yes," admitted her father hastily. "We certainly couldn't get along without them." The twinkle in his eyes escaped Camilla. "But what have you found so remarkable this morning?"

"A samovar, daddy. And so cheap! Here 'tis! Listen! 'Bargains—Cheap for cash. On account of moving entire contents of bachelor's studio—oriental rugs, leather easy chairs, Japanese screen, antique copper samovar, etc. Inquire of janitor.' There, now, what do you think of that?"

"Just what is a samovar, dear?"

"Why, daddy, you know! It's a sort of tea urn. They use them in Russia. I think I'll look it up this afternoon. You won't mind, will you?"

"Oh, no—no, indeed!" conceded Mr. Sheldon. Somehow he never could oppose Camilla. "Anything I can do for you this morning, dear?" he asked, as usual, on rising from the breakfast table.

Camilla smiled in her most captivating manner.

"Well, if I might have just a little money," she urged.

"Oh, yes, of course. Well, here's $15. That ought to buy an old copper tea urn, oughtn't it?"

Camilla gave him a hug of gratitude. "Don't forget that Robert Demarest is coming home to dinner with me tonight, dear."

"That old bachelor?" sniffed Camilla.

"The very one," answered her father.

Late that afternoon, arrayed in summery whiteness, Camilla started on the quest of the samovar. She had meant to take Sarah with her, as she had promised her father she always would on such expeditions. But Sarah, in the midst of dinner preparations, refused to budge.

In response to Camilla's energetic ring at the address specified a woman's voice called from the basement: "E-run up to th' fr-ront dhure, Pat. There's a lady waitin'."

"I came in answer to this," announced Camilla, holding out a tiny newspaper clipping. "Is the gentleman at home?"

"Not till this evenin', miss," replied the genial blue overalled Pat. "Will ye call ag'in later?"

"Oh, no," gasped Camilla. "I don't want to see him at all. I just wanted to be sure he was out. Will you show me the things?"

"Shur-re, miss. Come r-right along. Up wan flight, miss."

Once inside the long, spacious studio Camilla gave a little cry of delight.

"Oh, isn't this lovely!" she exclaimed. "May I look around a little?"

"Take yr time, miss. He'd say th' same himself, miss."

Such a wealth of soft, rich rugs, such rows and rows of exquisitely bound books, such beautiful pictures, and finally, keeping guard over the fireplace, such a queer fat little ivory god!

Camilla laughed aloud at his funny wrinkled face.

"Who tied this green ribbon round his neck?" she asked, turning suddenly to Pat.

"Th' wife," he replied glibly.

"Th' wife?" echoed Camilla. "Why, I thought the owner was a bachelor?"

Pat slapped his knee and then put a restraining hand over his mouth.

"Excuse me, miss, 'twas me own wife I was m'anin'."

"Oh," said Camilla. "I see."

"Yes, th' cold woman's very fond of 'im. Takes care iv 'im like a baby."

Camilla, doubtful as to whether it was the grave image or the bachelor that claimed "the wife's" solicitude, hastened to change the subject.

"I must be hurrying," she announced. "Where is the samovar that was advertised? That's what I came specially to see."

"The copper taypot? I'll fetch it for ye."

Pat brought it forth from a corner and placed it in all its shining glory on the large center table for Camilla's inspection.

"Oh, what a beauty!" she exclaimed. "How much does he want for it?"

"Will, he mintioned quite a high price for it this marnin', but I r-reckon he'd let you 'ave it at yer own figger."

"Would he sell it for $15, do you think?"

"Shure, an' be a lucky man at that. Where will ye have it sint?"

While Camilla was hunting in her purse for a card a click in the lock of the outside door made her jump. The bachelor! What should she do?

"Shur-re, shr-r," said Pat, "ye're home airly tonight. Here's a lady customer. I've been sellin' her th' simovar."

"Not so loud, Pat," admonished the bachelor courteously. He wasn't at all sure that he knew himself, but he must find some excuse for dominating this radiant apparition a moment.

"Yes, no! I mean, I wouldn't stay any longer," stammered Camilla.

"Pat's a dolt!" continued the bachelor. "I told him if he sold the simovar to be sure to tell the purchaser how to use it. I'll"—

"Oh, don't scold him, please," interrupted Camilla. "He's really very nice. He was awfully kind about the samovar. He said you wanted quite a high price for it, but he let me have it for fifteen dollars."

The bachelor swallowed hard.

"Of course it's all right," he answered cheerfully. "I'm glad to hear that some one has got the best of Pat once. He needs all the beating down that's coming to him."

Then the while the bachelor deftly filled the little pipe of the samovar with charcoal to himself he kept repeating: "I'll make her stay as long as I can. Isn't she bewitching? I'll make her stay as long as I can. I'll make her"—

Camilla broke in upon this silent chant of adoration.

"I shouldn't think you could bear to part with it," she said, giving the samovar an appreciative little pat.

"Well, I don't exactly like to," he admitted. "It's a sort of companion when you're all alone. But I'm tired of living alone—going to give it up."

"But your wife will certainly love to have it," ventured Camilla, pretending to be absorbed in the charcoal demonstration.

"My wife!" the bachelor fairly shouted. "Pardon me, I'm not so lucky. I'm just going back to my old home for a change."

"And leave this beautiful studio and sell all these wonderful things?" commented Camilla. "I think you're crazy. I'd just adore to live in a place like this!"

The bachelor watched her flushed cheeks and her sparkling eyes. He had an inspiration.

"Oh, by the way," he suggested, with well assumed carelessness, "I suppose you told Pat where to send the samovar."

Camilla laughed a bit shyly.

"Well, no, I didn't. You see, I was just hunting for a card when I heard you unlocking the door. That scared me so that I forgot all about the card. Here it is."

The bachelor glanced at it politely, then looked at it again more closely. Could he believe his eyes?

"Camilla Sheldon!" he exclaimed. "Why, I know your father! Let's shake hands. I'm Robert Demarest."

"Oh, you can't be!" gasped Camilla. "Why, he's a stupid old bachelor. Daddy's going to bring him home to dinner with him tonight."

"I'm the man," affirmed Robert, laughing. "You've timed me up all right."

Camilla covered her burning cheeks with her little white gloved hands.

"Oh, how can I look you in the face again?" she cried.

"That's the question for me to ask," Robert retorted.

Camilla lowered her hands, but her eyes were still downcast.

"You won't tell father, will you, Mr. Demarest?"

"All right," assented Rob. "Mum's the word if you say so, Miss Camilla."

When the door had closed after her Robert stood looking down thoughtfully at the samovar. "No going back home for you, old man," he soliloquized. "She'd adore to live in a place like this!" Think of it!"

He rang the bell for Pat.

"See here, Pat," he directed, "I want you to wrap up this teapot and take it around to this address. Be quick about it."

He handed Pat Camilla's card, and at the same time slipped a coin into his hand. The astonished Pat allowed no grass to grow under his feet.

At the first opportunity after dinner Camilla cornered Robert Demarest.

"It was most thoughtful of you to send the samovar over tonight," she began hurriedly. "But I forgot to tell you this afternoon that I hadn't paid Pat for it, and now that I've thought it over, Mr. Demarest, I don't see how I can take it from you at any price."

"Then let me give it to you," begged Rob.

"Sh! There comes daddy. No, I'm going to confess everything to him after you're gone. And then you two can settle the matter between you."

It was several months after the discovery of the samovar "sell" that Camilla, seated on a low divan in front of an open fire in her father's big rambling library, looked up at Rob admiringly and asked:

"Which got the best of the bargain, Rob, you or dad? Aren't you ever going to tell me? I've asked you and asked you."

"I'm going to tell you right now," Rob declared. His tone was so solemn that Camilla was almost frightened.

"Your father said I might give the samovar to you on one condition," he announced.

"Well, of all things," protested Camilla, "without even asking me if"—

"Wait a minute," interrupted Rob. "That was just the condition—if when I asked you you would have me. Camilla, will you marry me? You know you once said that you would adore to live"—

Camilla buried her face in a sofa cushion.

"Tob did say so, Camilla," he repeated. "Won't you say so again, dear?"

"I suppose that means," said Camilla, lifting her mischievous face, "no Robert, no samovar."

Robert didn't even smile, but looked into Camilla's eyes searchingly.

"Well," she sighed, "I guess you've got the best of the bargain, Rob. Pat will be pleased."

Whereupon Rob stopped her saucy mouth with kisses.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that only palliates. The distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor even heavy years the back to their youth. That is impossible, but I can now speedily kill the pains and laugh at this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmouth—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I unsuccessfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, that formula supplies a positive cure of this hereditary, fiendish dreaded disease. Those mad-like Rheumatic tortures, found in Rheumatic Blood curb to distress and pain, away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when digested, these poisonous acids freely pass from the system, and the blood is thus restored to good health. There is now no real need—no excuse for suffering longer with rheumatism. ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON: "Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 631 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunnelling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 300 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda mines yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery, and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COMM FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of J. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:—

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—for that the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is, all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report that precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of precooling fruits. His efforts have been practical and convincing. The Keen business man can see at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered for this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested here will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a limited floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only.

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promises to far exceed the past six months. DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

What Many Men Need

Dr Hamilton Has a Prescription That "Sets" You Right Up.

When a man has lost ambition to "dig in" and stay at things—when he complains of headache, fullness in the right side, pains in the shoulder blade—it's purely a case of liver.

These symptoms invariably indicate a clogged, inactive liver. The body can't get rid of its wastes, and the whole system is half paralysed.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills stimulate the liver into activity in one night. Being a mild vegetable laxative they produce results in a few hours. The bilious headache and constipation are cured, spirits rise, complexion clears, animation returns. Nothing in the calendar so efficient for that tired lazy feeling as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Very mild, don't interfere with work, invariably do lots of good. Try a 25c box, all dealers.

Mr. Kipling's Canadian Tour

Ontario and all Eastern Canada is deeply disappointed that Mr. Kipling, upon the occasion of his recent visit to Canada, should have only seen "The West from a Car Window and the East not at all. The older provinces are always proud and never jealous of the West, into which they are sending their riskels and their sons. With all his powers as a word painter, it is hardly to be expected that Mr. Kipling can do justice to all Canada. He has not seen the thriving cities and towns of Ontario, with its splendid railways, mills, and manufacturing industries. He had only a fleeting glimpse of Toronto, and saw nothing of the score or more other industrial centres of the Dominion. It is too bad, Canadians believe, that he should have spent the most of the time which he was able to give to the study of conditions in the Dominion to the troubled shores of the Pacific. With no desire to minimize the seriousness of the labor disturbances out there, or to disguise the fact that Canada to-day is in need of more men to carry on the work in hand, Canadians would have been proud of some pen pictures by Mr. Kipling of the industrial East, where the people are prosperous and happy. This conviction is by no means local—it is widespread, universal. (Canada." London, Eng., Nov. 16th, 1907.)

Good Results by Poultry Men

Yesterday a gentleman who the day before paid an extended visit to Messrs. Stark Bros., poultry farm, near Bethany, states that the Messrs. Stark have 77 turkeys, 30 geese and 200 chickens ready for Christmas and some very fine birds are in the flock. Some of the young turkey gobblers weigh as high as twenty pounds, while the chickens are all big birds and will bring high prices. The whole consensus of the report given us goes to show that nearby poultry dealers are "It."

Y.M.C.A. Will Instal Two Bowling Alleys

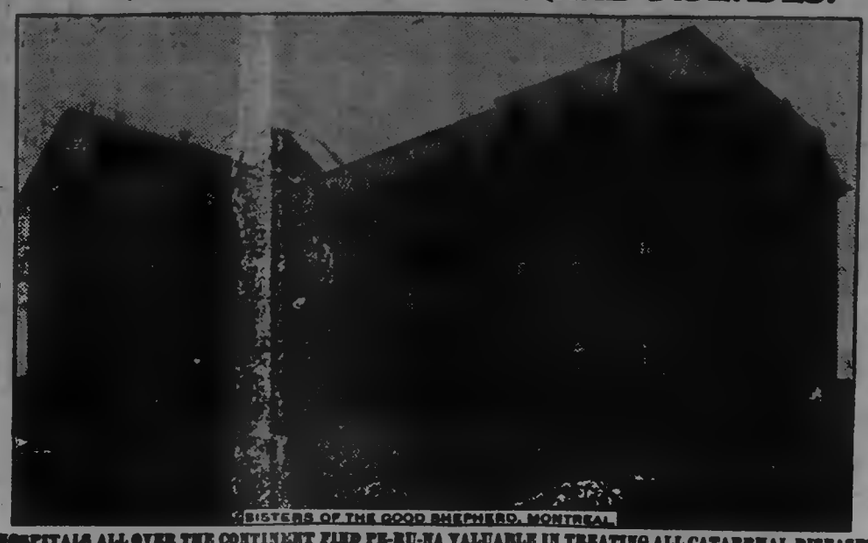
The Board of Directors of the Y. M.C.A., have unanimously decided to instal two bowling alleys at once. A committee was appointed to receive estimates for the alleys and push the work forward as rapidly as possible. Mr. Fletcher, representing the Brunswick Balke Callender Company of Toronto, gave information regarding the alleys. It is expected that the alleys will be ready for use early in the new year.

The agent here on the business from Toronto, stated that the room selected by the board for the installation of the alleys is not large enough. Still it is safe to foretell that that the Y.M.C.A. with their well known and universally acknowledged ability to over-ride greater difficulties than any such meager proposition as now presented will get over such trouble.

PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY

PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT

IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.



SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL.

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two-thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company,
Columbus, Ohio,

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd,
August 20, 1903.
Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Renoul Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns, Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour."

Mrs. Etta Booker, Dundurn, Sask., N. W. T., Canada, writes:

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am now cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. I think Peruna the best medicine for catarrh. I never felt better in my life than I do at present."

Peruna not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

Furious Fight Between Bear and Man

Yesterday morning early "Shiner" Moore and Mr. Ted Cavanagh's beat had a mix-up. It seems that Mr. Moore who is well known in local hotel circles was said to have been in a scrap with Mr. Cavanagh's bear. It appears that Mr. Moore went over yesterday to see and incidentally put this pet but now sturdy animal through its guess. Mr. Moore is said to have thought he knew every possible action of the bear but must have made a mistake this action of the carnivorous animal. At any rate the bear did not take kindly to the advances made by Mr. Moore and put up a forcible and decidedly objectionable argument against Mr. Moore's arguments. A scrap took place in which the local citizen came out decidedly the worse. Still Mr. Moore survives and will, it is to be hoped, live to eat the steaks and haunches of many a bear, whether in captivity or living abroad.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Mr. John Craig Gives His Side of Story

Seemingly Unjust Accusation That He Turned People Out

Yesterday Mr John Craig, an old and well known resident of Peterborough, called at The Times office in reference to an article that appeared on Thursday and Friday night's issues of a local contemporary, which might have suggested that our caller had been instrumental in the alleged eviction of a family named Fry, who lived on Park street.

Mr. Craig stated plainly that the property referred to had twice been offered at public auction at the Munro House.

The first time the place was offered for sale a local law firm had the sale stopped but, at the second sale, the property was disposed of. It might be said, that Mr. Craig was the purchaser of this property and that it was the Neil MacDonald estate, vendors of the property, not the purchaser. Mr. Craig, who placed a sheriff's officer in charge.

Mr. Craig, who no matter what may be his actions or views in the matter in Peterborough, to evict a family was "sore" over this report of the transaction and noted that the sheriff has several times called at this place in an endeavor to get the occupants out.

We understand that arrangements have been completed whereby Mr. Craig is now, or will today be in full possession of the property without the undesirable formalities of an eviction.

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT WILL OPEN FOR REAL BUSINESS TODAY

Mr. R. R. Hall and Mr. Lancelot Will Move and Second Address in Reply to Speech from the Throne

Ottawa, Nov. 30.—The real business of the session will begin on Monday next when R. R. Hall (Peterborough), and Lancelot (Richelieu), will move and second address in reply to speech from throne.

It is expected this debate will last several days and that opposition will take advantage of present rise in fortunes of party to give government a few uneasy moments.

One of the chief subjects for discussion will undoubtedly be the present stringency in money market. On both sides there is a disposition to avoid causing any mistrust of banking institutions of the country, but the finance minister will be criticized for failing to take advantage of the great prosperity of the country in the last eight or nine years to cut down expenditures and be able to meet the present conditions.

HOW IT HAS HAPPENED

It will be shown that he has done so largely the outcome of a tariff policy which has allowed too much of trade to run against us. For instance six years ago there was a balance of six millions in our favor, today our trade returns show an excess of imports over exports amounting to 105 million dollars.

With money pouring out of the country at such a rate there must inevitably be a contraction of business activities.

The opposition will put up their best men to attack the government, and the debate promises to be a lively one.

SCANDAL TALK, TOO

It is also expected the government supporters will go on record, the details of the Lemieux-Gouin scandal talk abundant material being at hand.

Certain it is that the opposition have been greatly encouraged by events of the past week.

The by-election in Colchester has produced a feeling amounting to panic in government ranks, and has correspondingly elated their opponents, while the election in Quebec on Wednesday night, the result of the Borden election trial and other occurrences of less significance have helped the opposition cause.

The Montreal Gazette says today:—The speech at the opening of the session of parliament says "the public interests require that telegraph and telephone companies holding charters should be placed under government control." There is another case of W. F. Maclean, M.P., dominating the institution at Ottawa. When he makes a loud noise the other leaders fall into a funk and hasten to see how far they can go in meeting his demands.

POLICE

Things were lively enough in the police court Saturday morning to wake up and interest the most blase of Sons of Rest. The was a charge laid against George Jamieson, city, for having assaulted Mrs. Arthur Killenbeck, of 293 Townsend street.

The first witness was Mrs. Killenbeck who said they had lived in their present house for four years and had never had a row before. The house was situated next to Jamieson's and his house next to the lane, so that to get to the lane and thence to Sherbrooke street, they had to cross over Jamieson's yard. On Friday Jamieson started to put up a fence between the two yards. She told Mr. Jamieson to pull down the fence, or she would. He still went on making it up. She then got an axe, but as soon as she hit the fence Jamieson struck her over the face with a horse whip twice.

Alfred, her son next testified that his mother asked Jamieson to stop nailing up the fence, but he gave her the "Hades." He saw his mother going at the fence with an axe. He also saw Jamieson strike her twice over the face with a whip. He then carried his mother into the house.

Jamieson took the proceedings very coolly. He said that he had struck Mrs. Killenbeck in self-defence. He said that he had received orders from Mr. Hooper to build a fence across the property. This was to prevent the Killenbecks from carrying mud into his property.

Mr. Thos. Hooper said he thought the whole matter one of spite work.

His worship said Mr. Hooper should have got rid of the tenant before putting up the fence, and fined Jamieson $20 and costs or ten days in jail for assaulting Mrs. Killenbeck.

Immigration Returns Show Large Increase

Ottawa, December 2.—For the first seven months of the present calendar year, ending October 31, the total immigration to Canada was 254,677, an increase of 59,704, or nearly thirty per cent., as compared with the first ten months of last year. The increase was made up largely in immigration from Great Britain, which is over forty per cent. larger than last year. Immigration from the United States, on the other hand, shows a decrease of about eight per cent. For the first seven months of the present fiscal year the total immigration was 211,852, an increase of 59,307 or thirty-one per cent. over last year. The increase via ocean ports was forty-five per cent.

During October the total immigration was 31,284, via ocean ports the number was 17,031 as compared with 13,793 for October, 1906. The number of immigrants arriving from the United States last month was 4,171, as compared with 5,922 during October last year. If the rate of increase in immigration maintained so far this year is kept up until the end of December, the total for the year will be about 285,000, or over nine times the total annual immigration of six years ago.

Thirty-Seven Hats Within One Year

Paris, Dec. 2.— Incompatibility of humor is the principal ground for divorce proceedings in a case which came up today in a judge's private room. The husband's chief grievance seemed to be that his wife was inordinately extravagant in the matter of dress. The lady had ordered thirty-seven new hats in a single year at an average of $10 per hat, and to the same she ran up dressmakers' bills to the extent of 4,000 francs for twenty-five dresses.

The wife argued that there was nothing very extraordinary in this expenditure considering that her husband was in a good way of business and could well afford it. Besides, on the occasion of their marriage a dowry of 50,000 francs had been promised her. The husband replied that in the early years of married life his wife had spent almost the equivalent of her dowry in dress.

Finally an arrangement was come to, under the wife promised not to exceed and expenditure of $1,200 a year on her toilette, and the parties went away reconciled.

Ex-Premier's Epigram Resented

The Detroit Free Press says:

"England is a republic with an hereditary president," says ex-Premier George W. Ross of the Province of Ontario, in a speech in New York. "And the United States is a monarchy with an elective king."

That might have consideration as an untruthful and offensive remark by a visiting foreigner. If prerogatives akin to those of a king are to be weighed, we must consider, with results enlightening to the visitor, the power of the premier of England as that of the premier of Canada, a much more highly centralized government than our own, though a dependent one, with the power of the president of the Union.

But a foreigner, with the more or less unsympathetic and even resentful forced viewpoint, cannot be criticized for assimilating and making his own, without due allowance for its exaggeration, a sentiment which has even found occasional expression among citizens of the United States. There always has been, and probably always will be, carping individuals who compare our government with those of alien countries, to the disadvantage of the former. One of their favorite dogmatic utterances takes the specific form of an assertion that the system of government in England is more "responsive" to public sentiment than the American system.

Why is it that such utterances always take flashy, epigrammatic form? Why is it that those who make them don't go to enjoy the advantages of the governments so superior to our own? Why is it that they have neglected to open their proposition, then never go on and make out a case under it?

It is because their statements are not true. If monarchical England, with monarchical land laws, monarchical system of castes and monarchical restrictions on individual initiative among the humble and obscure, monarchical traditions that give a vast influence in shaping sentiment and policies to those, from the king down, who possess great social prestige, is a republic, or presents even a rudimentary model of a republic, then the ideal of government of the people, by the people and for the people, surely has perished from the earth.

MONTREAL HANDED OUT A BAD DEFEAT TO PETERBORO ON SATURDAY--SCORE WAS 71 TO 9

The Easterners are Now the Canadian Rugby Champions--Peterboro Started in Well but were Outclassed as the Game Progressed

(Special to The Times)

Montreal, Dec. 1. — Peterborough and Montreal met here to lay off for the Canadian Rugby championship. Montreal won the toss and chose to play against the sun and with the wind which was but slight. The visitors got off with a good start, but as the game progressed in its initial stages, the younger members of the visiting team seemed to get an attack of stage fright, and were very nervous. The Peterborough team have some splendid material and if handled by a proficient coach and drilled in some of the fine points of the game would be a difficult proposition for the best of them to buck up against.

In Saturday's game College was one of the best men on the field, Crowley and Hartubise also did good work.

THE GAME.

The return of Peterborough's kick-off by Russell was brought back because Montreal forwards forgot to give five yards. Peterborough had the ball at Montreal's 25-yard line. The first scrimmage resulted in a fumble, but Montreal's wings were persistently off-side, and Peterborough was given a free kick. College booted to the line. Russell fumbled, and the ball rolled away and crossed the goal. Peterborough followed up, and Hartubise fell on the goal for a try, which College converted. Peterborough 6, Montreal 0. The return kick-off brought the play to midfield with Peterborough in possession. There was a delay to allow Peterborough's half-back to get his wind.

During the intermission it was seen that Eric Beaudette and Jimmie Craig were getting a football fashion, being supported by warm woollen gloves. On exhibition of pants, O'Brien kicked to touch. Montreal's ball. Craig ran 25 yards, slipped and fell. On the third down Stinson booted, kicking the ball over the dead-ball line for a point, which evened the score. Montreal 6, Peterborough 6.

PETERBOROUGH ON DEFENSIVE.

Peterborough was on the defensive, and was compelled to kick. College booted to centre. Stinson picked up and went 30 yards through a broken field, and was nailed just outside the line. Kelly kicked for a try on first scrimmage, which Molson failed to convert. Montreal 11, Peterborough 6. Montreal did not give yards on Russell's return, and the ball was given to Peterborough. College kicked over the line, and Russell picked up and kicked clear. Prompt following up by Montreal wings forced Peterborough back, and play was in the visitors' territory. Hartubise ran 30 yards and was taken down by Craig. College fumbled on the first scrimmage and Lessor got the ball. On the first scrimmage Gordon passed to Russell, the back, who gave it to Craig, and the latter went 30 yards for a try, which Molson converted. Montreal 17, Peterborough 6. A fumble by College gave Stephens a chance. The lanky winger dribbled and the ball bounded on and on, finally going over Peterborough's line, where Kelly dropped on it for a try. Molson converted. Montreal 23, Peterborough 6.

WALK AWAY FOR MONTREAL.

Russell returned the kick-off, and play was in the centre. College's kick fell clear and Stinson had to chase it back, getting it out by a nice pick-up and kick. Failure to give yards brought the ball to Montreal's quarter-field. Then, with varying success the leather travelled into each territory without anything startling occurring. Just as Montreal was penalized for a forward pass, time was called, and the first quarter ended. The return kick-off saw play in Montreal's ground. Stinson was grassed. Montreal lost the ball because of off-side work. College kicked over. Stinson touched. Russell picked up ahead of Stinson. For this offence play Peterborough was given a free kick. College kicked a goal and got two points for a penalty. Montreal 23, Peterborough 8. After the kick-off there was a series of fumbles and Montreal dribbled the ball to Peterborough's line. Crough muffed and Stephens kicked. There was a mix-up at the goal and Lessor dived on the ball for a try, which Molson converted. Montreal 28, Peterborough 8. Craig caught a punt and marked. Mathers missed the kick and just where Craig on side by touching the ball as it bounded by him. Gilmour went after the leather and went over for a try, which Molson converted, Montreal 35, Peterborough 8.

HALF-TIME SCORE 35 TO 8.

On the kick-off the ball was kicked to Stinson, who missed, and the ball struck a goal post. As it bounded, Russell kicked and sent the ball to touch, 30 yards out. College kicked over, Stinson picked up and went out 40 yards, but made forward pass, and the ball was given to Peterborough. A long kick sent the oval across Montreal's line, where Gilmour dropped on it and rouged. Montreal 35, Peterborough 9. The next feature was a 30-yard run by Jimmy Craig. Montreal lost possession. Peterborough was given a free kick, because Russell charged an opponent. Craig fumbled the kick and Peterborough had the ball in Montreal's territory. There was a respite to allow Hartubise to regain his bearings after a collision. Half-time was called soon afterwards. Montreal 35, Peterborough 9.

Three kicks followed the kick-off, then Craig caught on the fly play. Ted Savage was given the ball. He ran 45 yards and was downed. As he fell he sent the ball back. Molson got it and went the remaining 30 yards for a try, which he himself converted. Montreal 41 Peterborough 9.

Craig's return of the kick-off was fumbled by Crough, but Peterborough held the ball. On the first scrimmage Peterborough let the ball loose and McAllen secured it. A forward pass gave Peterborough possession and College kicked to Montreal's 25-yard line. Russell returned. Play followed about midfield. In a mix-up College, the Peterborough's centre half, was hurt and was compelled to go off. This was a big loss, because the lanky half-back had been playing a great game for the Ontario champions. Fumbles brought play to Peterborough's quarter field. Duff, who had replaced College, acted once. Montreal got the ball a yard from the line. Craig tried to force a goal, but was blocked. Savage saved the ball. Stinson kicked over the line. The ball was loose when Savage bounced on it for a try, which Molson failed to convert. Montreal 46, Peterborough 9.

Stinson returned the kick-off and Crough got the ball. Craig marked, all were on side and Molson followed up. He failed to get the ball and Gilmour kicked it. The leather sailed along and over the line, madly followed by the backs. The first flight over ran the ball and Gilmour, who had followed up promptly, fell on it for a try. Molson failed to convert. Montreal 51, Peterborough 9.

The return of the kick-off was followed by Craig punting to touch at centre. Molson stole the ball on the first down. Stinson kicked 50 yards over the line and Mathers dropped on the ball for a rouge. Montreal 52, Peterborough 9.

Gordon tried to drop a goal from centre field and was just short. The ball falling on the line, where Crough got it. Montreal got the ball on the kick. Craig ran and crossed the line, but went into touch-in-goal. Montreal 58, Peterborough 9.

The kick-off was returned promptly and play opened 30 yards from Peterborough's goal. Capelt kicked out. Kelly caught and ran back the punt for 15 yards for a try. This was converted. Montreal 59, Peterborough 9.

Watchman Finnie Prevents Burglary

On Saturday morning what would evidently have turned out to be a burglary was circumvented by the vigilance of Night Watchman Ned Finnie. This vigilant officer, at about 2 a.m., was passing the offices of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company on George St., when he heard the noise of breaking window. He ran to the door, but it was locked. He then went to the car barnes and telephoned the police. P. C. Adams and Meharry were on the scene in short order and searched the building, but the thief had escaped.

Good Business Outlook

Montreal, Dec. 2.—In speaking of the business outlook Mr. James Reid Wilson, of Thomas Robertson & Co., declared that this will have been the best all-round year in the history of the firm, and he made the statement to the effect that while their business reached the sum of $15,000,000, he could not see where their losses would reach $500,000. He had every confidence in the commercial and financial conditions in Canada for a trip. This was the Irishman's first visit to the Old Country.

A Paderewski Row

Man Who was not Allowed on Platform Sues for Damages

Montreal, Nov. 29.—As an outcome of the rush for seats at the Paderewski concert here on Monday night, an interesting law suit is pending. About fifty platform seats were sold, but when Paderewski saw the chairs around his piano he objected, and insisted on having the platform to himself. People who had platform seats were offered their money back, and given the alternative of going into a section of the more expensive seats that were vacant on paying the difference. Most of them quietly accepted the inevitable, but one man, named Thomas Allan, refused to be convinced. He had paid for his seat, he said, and he intended to have it. He refused either to take his money back or pay the difference for a more expensive seat. When he was finally persuaded to leave the platform he called up his lawyers, and yesterday an action for $200 damages confronted Mr. Veitch, the man who gave the recital.

Japs Planning to Outdistance the U.S.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 30.—That Japan is not only planning to outdistance the United States in the struggle for the commerce of the Pacific, but has already driven the steamships lines of every other nation out of the Chinese trade, is the statement of Harry L. Paddock, United States consul at Amoy, China, who arrived here yesterday on the steamer Korea on his way to Washington.

"The Japanese have captured the entire ocean-carrying trade of China from Hong Kong to Shanghai," he said. "The British lines, which some years ago monopolized this business, are doing nothing. The same is true of the German lines. All have succumbed to the competition of the Japanese, aided by their large subsidies, and the low pay of their crews."

He said that my low condition of health was due to weakness that might never be cured. Ferrozone had a peculiar grateful effect and built me up quickly. The ills I suffered from are cured. UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, NOVEMBER 30, 1907

CANADA

Under the above caption our esteemed contemporary, the Watertown Standard, says editorially:

"The Canadian census of 1901 reported the population of the Dominion as 5,371,315. Since that year the immigrant arrivals have numbered more than 900,000. Adding also the natural increase by births, it is safe to estimate Canada's population to-day as approximately 6,500,000.

"Statistics show that nearly one-third of those who have gone to Canada to take advantage of the industrial opportunities opened by her development have gone from the United States. In point of character the average of Canada's new citizens is high. A very large percentage of them are of the English speaking race, and an important number enter the country with enough money to buy a more or less landed interest in it. For those who are dependent upon day wages there is work in the factories, on the farm and on thousands of miles of new railways. These transportation lines are opening new areas for settlement in the great Northwest and are pushing northward to James' Bay and Hudson Bay through a region which only a few years ago generally believed to be an unproductive wilderness, but which is now known to be susceptible of profitable cultivation. New and valuable mining properties are discovered from time to time, and no one man can say what may yet be discovered.

"The increase in Canada's population and the consequent expansion of her productive industries is a matter of no little importance to the people of the United States. An evidence of this fact lies in the trade returns, which show that our exports to Canada this year were $183,306,867, and imports $73,334,615. This is a large business, but it is bound to be larger."

ONE PIECE HOUSES

Mr. Thomas A. Edison, who may fairly claim to have demonstrated that a theorist has some right to a place in the community, is now about ready to place upon the market a set of moulds, with the aid of which a contractor, who knows how, can build a house in twelve hours, the whole three-storey structure, twenty-five feet by forty-five, to be in one place, and to cost, on the average, one thousand—dollars. "After the cellar is dug the contractor will bring his sand, cement and crushed stone, together with his concrete mixing machinery, the moulds and a derrick, to the spot. As fast as the concrete is made it is poured into the moulds, which fit together from cellar bottom to roof tree. The workmen keep on pouring in the concrete till it overflows at the top. Then they go away, and six days later they go back and take off the moulds." Mr. Edison protests that there is no reason why a concrete house should not be as pretty as any other kind of a house. And in addition to being artistically attractive it is to be fireproof, waterproof and vermin proof, to say nothing of the "trifling" circumstance that the longer it lasts the better it becomes.

Edison is nothing if not practical and serious, and there is nothing at all improbable about the expectation that his plan will go through. All who have addressed themselves to a study of housing conditions, especially the housing of the poor, come to realize that the best results are to be attained from laying out the work on a large scale. Edison, with his iron moulds into which a mixture of sand, stone and cement may be poured straight along until the house is complete, must be held to have solved the most serious of the problems. Add to this the present tremendous increase in the manufacture of cement, and the concrete house, better for its cost than any of its predecessors, comes well within the range of immediate expectation.

THE ELECTRIC CRATER.

How the Arc Light is Produced Between the Electrodes.

Everybody knows that an arc light is formed by causing an electric current to pass between the points of two carbon rods. One of these is called the positive and the other the negative electrode, and the current passes from the former to the latter. Particles of carbon are carried on from the positive electrode until its end becomes cup shaped.

To the little cup thus formed the name of crater is applied, and from this crater four-fifths of the light is emitted. The negative electrode does not become so hot as the other. Between the two a little cloud of vaporized carbon is formed, rising from the crater, and this vapor gives forth a golden yellow light. But it is overpowered by the light of the crater itself, which has a violet tinge due to the incandescence of solid particles of carbon. The arc of light extended from one electrode to the other also has an axis of violet color which is its most brilliant part. The fact that most of the luminosity comes from the crater explains the reason why the light does not appear equal in all directions. It is brightest from that point of view which shows the largest portion of the crater.

An interesting effect is often noticed when flies or other insects flutter about an arc light. Their shadows cast on a neighboring wall appear gigantic. The reason is that the light of the crater is concentrated in a point smaller than the bodies of the insects, and the boundaries of the shadows consequently widen with increase of distance.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

THE WARRANT CAME.

They Took the Woman From Her Washtub to the Gallows.

The hanging of a woman, which in these days calls forth public protests, was apparently a matter of indifference to our grandfathers and grandmothers. It was in the nineteenth century that a woman found guilty of some trifling offense was sentenced to death. By chance the warrant for her execution was not sent to the high sheriff, and she remained in prison for about three years, acting as a jail washerwoman and occasionally, as a favor in acknowledgment of her good behavior, going out, as was then the custom, as washerwoman to private houses. But a clerk looking through the home office records found the warrant that had never been dispatched, and it was thereupon promptly forwarded to the sheriff for due process.

The woman was found by the turnkey at the washtub in a house in the town—Aylesbury. "Well, missus," said he, "you are to be hanged. The warrant has come at last, and we must carry the sentence out tomorrow morning at the latest." "Werry well, then," the wretched woman submissively replied, "I suppose I must go," and, having washed the soapsuds off her arms, departed with the official. She was duly hanged the next morning, from all which it would seem that barely a century separates us from a condition of primitive barbarism.—London Chronicle.

Not Good Twice.

Lincoln's stories grew better and better as he grew older. One of the best was told to a visitor who congratulated him on the almost certain purpose on the part of the people to reelect him for another term of four years. Mr. Lincoln replied that he had been told this frequently before and that when it was first mentioned to him he was reminded of a farmer in Illinois who determined to try his own hand at blasting. After successfully boring and filling in with powder he failed in his effort to make the powder go off, and after discussing the cause with a looker on and failing to detect anything wrong in the powder the farmer suddenly came to the conclusion that it would not go off because it had been shot before.

Good Coal Stock is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines just north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 40 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 120 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crows Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $250.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of his homestead, not upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Surprising Semple.

By WILLIAM F. BRYAN.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

"Mrs. Greer will look after the canary, but you will surely look after the plants, won't you?" pleaded Mrs. Semple. "Those plants are such beauties it would be a pity to have them die."

"They won't," assured Semple. "One pint to each plant. I remember."

"You're a dear!" she exclaimed. "It's awfully good of you, Ned, to let me go when you won't even have a two) vacation yourself. I feel almost ashamed of myself leaving you all alone in the hot city."

"You have the time of your life," ordered Semple. "I'll be all right. Don't you worry about me."

"I have such a surprise for you," she said, smiling through the tears that filmed her eyes. "I want you to write and tell me just how you like it."

"What's the surprise? I'll bet it's a cat."

"Better than that and not half the trouble," she declared.

"There's my train being called. It's a shame they will not let you pass the gate. Kiss me again, dear, and do be careful of yourself."

Ned Semple kissed her not once, but half a dozen times. He worshiped this dainty little woman who had lifted him out of bachelordom and boarding houses and had made home a bit of paradise on earth. He hated to give her up for a whole six weeks, but he could not get away from town himself, and she needed the rest and change.

He waited until the train pulled out of the station and went back to the hot and stuffy office. It was no hardship to work when he worked for her, and there were certain deals that could not be neglected. If these deals went through they would both go to Europe next year, and the occasional problem of where the money for bills was to be found would be solved.

He remained at the office later than usual to make up for the time he had lost over their last lunch together. The occasional charwoman only made the desolation of the huge office building seem more pronounced. The elevators stopped at 8, and it was after 9 when he descended interminable flights of steps, and the sense of depression grew upon him.

In the street the open cars whizzed past crowded with tired workers who found in the speeding trolleys the breeze that could not be coaxed into their stuffy rooms. Whole families filled some of the cross benches, and Semple thought regretfully of how only two nights before he and Alida had taken a ride in the cool of the evening, going clear to the end of the run and stopping at the restaurant for a bite to eat.

He did not feel hungry tonight, though he had had no dinner. He left the car at his corner and crept up the stairs to his apartment.

By this time he was thoroughly blue, and the darkness of the place crowned his misery. As he opened the hall door he seemed to hear her voice call a cheery "Good evening, dear. I hope you had an easy day. Did you?"

Could it be possible, he asked himself, that Alida had come back? She might be hiding in one of the closets. He lighted the gas in every room, but he could find no trace of her save in the orderly neatness which worked all for his comfort.

He went back to the parlor and puffed thoughtfully at his pipe. In his low nervous state but one explanation of the phenomenon was suggested. Alida was dead, and in her love she had come to greet him. So thoroughly wrought up did he become that he telephoned the railroad company to ask if the train had been wrecked.

The response did not seem to soothe his ruffled feelings if it did reassure his anxiety, and at last he went to bed, only to toss restlessly. Sleep did not come until absolute physical exhaustion closed his eyes.

It seemed scarcely five minutes before the alarm clock rang, and he dragged himself out of bed. Alida had left coffee and crackers and condensed milk in the house, and he sipped a cup of coffee while he searched the morning paper for news of a wreck.

He could find nothing of the sort, and at last he started for the office. As he opened the door Alida's voice rang in his ears again: "Goodby, dear. I hope you have luck today."

It was what she always said, and, although it did not sound exactly like her voice, there was no mistaking certain tricks of speech. He hastily closed the door and hurried down the steps. There was a telegraph office at the corner, and he sent a telegram asking her to wire her safe arrival. In the office building was the booth of another company, and he sent a second dispatch. She was not due at her destination for a full two hours yet, and he could not hope to receive a message before noon, but he paced the office impatiently, unable to concentrate his attention upon anything except the lagging hands of the clock.

At last the blue uniformed boy appeared with a yellow envelope and departed richer by a half dollar tip. He was back in an hour with another message that ran: "Both telegrams received. Telegraphed upon arrival. Of course nothing is the matter."

The assurance brought contentment and that afternoon Semple put through an important deal. In his elation he dined at their favorite restaurant, and it was late when he reached home. The same ghostly voice greeted him and dashed his pleasure. He moodily smoked his pipe until late, and the unusual allowance of tobacco wrought further havoc upon his tired nerves.

The natural result was a dream in which he vividly saw Alida swathed in bandages, alternately calling to him and begging the attendants not to let him know her peril lest it interfere with the consummation of his plans.

Then her spirit projected itself through space and that same self denial which had led her to keep back the news of her danger led her to give the old familiar greeting and farewell. Her spirit must be in the room.

On the way to the office he telegraphed her that he knew something must be wrong and that unless he received definite information at once he would leave on the next train.

The answer was a dual one. In addition to a long telegram his chum Ben Bradley put in an appearance. Bradley fenced for awhile with small talk, but at last he came to the point.

"Do you feel all right, old man?" he asked anxiously. "I had a wire from your wife. She seemed to think something was wrong."

"I am all right," said Semple wearily. "I've been nervous and dispirited and I got imagining things, I guess."

He could not tell even Bradley what he feared, but he was at last convinced that all was well with Alida, and he was content.

Bradley turned up after office hours that evening and carried him off to dinner. "Mrs. Bradley is visiting friends in the country today," he explained, "and I need company. I'll come around to your apartments afterward, and we'll have a good old time chat."

Semple brightened visibly at the suggestion, and when at last they reached home he opened the door confidently. His face went ghastly white as the voice floated out upon the air. He turned to see if Bradley had heard.

Bradley stood there with a smile upon his face. "That's a great idea, isn't it?" was his surprising comment.

"What's an idea?" asked Semple vaguely.

"Why, that phonograph," explained Bradley. "It's a German invention to be used in stores. When the door opens the phonograph announces the bargains of the day. A little alteration fixed this one so that the two messages could be given, one in the morning and the other when you came home. I was telling Mrs. Semple about it the night she was over to see my wife, and she had it fixed up as a surprise for you. I bet it was a startler, wasn't it?"

"It was" said Semple dryly, wondering how near to insanity he had been. "It was a decided surprise." Then he added to himself, "Now that I know it's going to be a comfort too."

The Dry Falls of Lodore.

Southey's description of Lodore has given to that charming friend of holiday days a reputation which is a little unfortunate. It has brought to its course worshipers from afar, when there has not been a cupful of water to perform as much as the meanest of feats which the poet describes. One such visitor was an American. He had seen Niagara again and again. He read Southey on the wonders of Lodore and once more visited the vast cataract of his native land. Then, feeling that, after all, Niagara must be very small potatoes compared with the falls of which the poet had sung, he came to England in quest of Lodore, resolved to consecrate his holiday to the contemplation of its beauties and grandeur. He set out the moment he reached Keswick and long walked and toiled over rocks and boulders. He could not find the falls. He rested and asked a native, "Can you direct me to the falls of Lodore?" "Why, you're a-sittin' on 'em." was the heartbreaking answer. The falls of all the adjectives were dry!—St. James' Gazette.

Our Flight Through Space.

Vega is the star toward which our sun is ceaselessly rushing through the infinite regions of space, carrying the earth and all of the other planets with him. Though we are pursuing this journey at the speed of eleven miles a second, so that at the end of each day we are almost 1,000,000 miles nearer the star than we were at the beginning, yet at least 1,000,000 years will elapse before we overtake and drift past this great sun. Were the life of man on earth not so short, how wonderfully would he see the face of the heavens change as he passed through our universe of stars. The Great Dipper, the Northern Cross and even the Milky Way itself would appear to take new forms as he passed on and viewed them from a different direction, and as he drew near the blue star Vega, a sun enormously larger and hotter than our own, it would shine out with extraordinary brilliancy.

To the Point.

In a Tennessee court an old colored woman was put on the witness stand to tell what she knew about the annihilation of a hog by a railway train.

Being sworn, she was asked if she had seen the train kill the hog in question.

"Yes, sah, I seed it."

"Then," said counsel, "tell the court in as few words as possible just how it occurred."

"Yo' honor," responded the old lady "I shore kin tell yo' in a few words It jes' tooted an' tuck him."—Cleveland Leader.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of this American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this price, we firmly believe, will within a year be netting a profit value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this one an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Hunlingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and gold sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.40 a ton in FREE gold, and from 3 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

* * * With good management and proper development, it will not be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern markets. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money hand big money, too.

Wives and Mothers Suffer with Backache

Unfortunately They Fail to Recognize the Dangerous Cause of the Trouble.

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, women often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories, and on a farm are weak ailing women, dragged down with torturing backache and bearing down pains.

Such suffering isn't natural but it's dangerous, because due to diseased kidneys.

The dizziness, insomnia, deranged menses and other symptoms of kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend aid to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known.

Because of their mild, soothing and healing effect, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are safe, and are recommended for girls and women of all ages. 25 cents per box at all dealers. Refuse any substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

At about 9.30 Saturday morning as Mr. Norman Payne and his sister were driving near the Maple Leaf cheese factory, in Dummer, they had a mix-up that whilst no serious damage was done, resulted in an unwelcome upset. Before the animal could break away Mr. Crowe was on the road and had a strong hold on the reins.

Thousands of Cows Wear Glasses

New York, Nov. 29.—A Russian firm which manufactures optical goods turns out thousands of pairs of glasses every years to be worn by cows.

"There are a great many cows that wear glasses in my country," said a Russian visitor to New York in explanation. "I have seen a herd of 40,000 cows with glasses on.

"It was on the steppes, the great Russian prairies. Our steppes for six months in the year are covered with snow, but during a part of the time delicate, fresh grass tips protrude from that white and dazzling mantle. The cows then are turned out to feed on the new grass, but if their eyes are unprotected the dazzle of sunshine on the snow gives them snow blindness.

"Thousands of cows suffered horribly, and hundreds died of snow blindness, until a rude, cheap kind of spectacles, made of leather and smoked glass, was invented and used with great success."

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Point of View.

The new steamer City of —— was laid up for repairs, and one of the rickety old timers of the line was sailing in her place. A passenger who was somewhat irritated by the fact remarked to another, an Irishman, by the way, "The City of —— always gets in at 2 in the morning, and this old tub never gets in before 6."

The Irishman thought for a moment and replied: "It's all right. The distance is just the same, and we get a longer sail for our money."

Needed a Cloudburst.

Staying at an inn in Scotland, a shooting party found their sport much interfered with by rain. Still, wet or fine, the old fashioned barometer that hung in the hall persistently pointed to "set fair." At length one of the party drew the landlord's attention to the glass, saying, "Don't you think, now, Dugald, there's something the matter with your glass?" "No, sir," replied Dugald, with dignity, "she's a gude glass and a powerful glass, but she's no' moved wi' trifles."

Such is Fame.

A learned correspondent writes: "I was examining a witness, an elderly woman, the other day. On my inquiring her name she said it was Mrs. Bardell and that she came from Gravesend. I asked, 'Did you know Charles Dickens?' She replied, 'Do you mean the undertaker?' Such is fame."—London News.

THE CITY COUNCIL WILL GRANT DAVE HARTLEY $100

When the Citizens Raise a Substantial Fund to go Toward Purchasing a House and Lot for Peterborough's Champion Pedestrian

The Committee of the Whole Council met last night, when the following were present: Mayor R. F. McWilliams, and Aldermen Wilson, Elliott, Duncan, Morgan, Stevenson, Leary, McIntyre, Bradburn, Morrow, Phelan and Tovey.

Mr. Richard Hall, one of the trustees of the Nicholls estate, appeared before the committee, and presented the city with a free deed of the building on Simcoe street, formerly used by Richard Hall & Sons, as a dry goods store, excepting that portion purchased by the Bank of Montreal. The deed is absolutely free of any rider but one providing that the building shall be used as a public library and show in plain letters the sign, "Nicholls Public Library." The city can at any subsequent time, should other premises be desired, dispose of this property as they deem fit.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre.—A very graceful and appropriate motion of thanks to the Nicholls Estate for their munificent gift.

ROMAINE STREET SEWER

Ald Elliott moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey.—At the suggestion of Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works, that the outfall sewer, from Romaine street south, be carefully examined and blockage relieved.—Carried.

THE HARTLEY GRANT.

The question of giving a grant of $100 to Hartley, the champion pedestrian, was here raised.

Ald. Bradburn said it had been suggested that a citizen's grant of $900 be raised with which to purchase a house and lot for the champion, providing the council donate $100 toward the project.

Ald Morgan thought Hartley's exploit should be substantially recognized by the city.

Ald. Leary acquiesced in these views.

Ald Bradburn while in sympathy with this project, offered that the council had not yet committed themselves.

Ald Elliott contended that a good scheme would be to arrange a benefit concert for Hartley and place the money in responsible hands, so as to arrange the purchase of a house and lot. The council of course to assist financially.

Ald. Wilson said he would like to see active steps first taken by the citizens in the direction of recognizing Hartley's feat, when the council would undoubtedly do their share.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. Morrow.—That the council defer action in this matter until he citizens raise a substantial fund for Hartley.

Ald. Duncan was not in favor of the project at all. He would rather see each alderman put his hand in his own pocket rather than use public funds. He opposed the grant to the bowlers on similar principles.

Ald. McIntyre moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Morgan.—That the council agree to give $100 when the citizens raise a substantial grant with which to purchase a house and lot for Hartley.

The amendment was carried and the council have pledged themselves to a grant of $100 providing the citizens do their share in the matter. It is thoroughly understood that the money raised is to go toward the purchase of a house and lot for Peterborough's champion pedestrian.

THE ROGUE DRAIN.

The city will proceed to-day with restoring the original culvert constructed with drawing course on Edinburgh street.

Ald Duncan offered that it would be unwise to spend $30 or $40 on this culvert, when a pipe drain will have to be eventually laid at this point and it might as well be done now. Mr. Rogue had expressed his willingness to give a right of way through his property or a pipe drain. The only reason, Mr. Rogue explained, for his filling up the drain falling into the water course and getting drowned. A pipe drain, Ald. Duncan remarked, would cost $250.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn.—That no action be taken in this matter other than constructing another culver on the spot where the first one was located.

Ald. Duncan moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Elliott.—That a pipe drain be laid through Mr. Rogue's property, not less than 24 inches, of course with the latter's consent.

The amendment was lost and the motion carried.

UNPAID TAXES

The mayor reported that there are $2,200 yet unpaid taxes. Some of this amount is owing by poor people, while again some is owing by those who can pay readily, but say they can use the money to better advantage than by paying their taxes. He thought this latter class should be looked up sharply, as the city needs all the monies owing the corporation.

Ald Morrow thought the taxes were well paid up this year, and that the tax collector's work in this direction compared very favorably with that of other years. Ald. Morrow also pointed out that citizens in arrears have to pay five per cent. for the accommodation.

Ald. Phelan thought the tax collector had done very well; he had collected considerable money without putting the people to any regrettable expense.

The mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey.—That the tax collector be instructed to return a list of all ratepayers who have not paid their taxes by December 31st, with observations as to reasons why they have not been collected.—Carried.

NEW NUMBERS.

Ald Tovey moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan.—That the city treasurer be authorized to co-operate with the water commissioners in having a list of the changed street numbers prepared.—Carried.

CLEAN SIDEWALKS.

The question of enforcing the snow bylaw was here gone into with a view to arriving at a decision as to whether it should be strictly enforced or amended to permit of a thin layer of snow being left on the gravel, the walks within the fire limits. Many of the aldermen contended that cleaning the walks bare, enhances their slipperyness to the danger of pedestrians.

Ald Stevenson thought the bylaw should be left as it is and let the chief exercise discretion in the matter. Some leave a thin layer of snow in front of their premises, which renders passage by citizens comparatively safe in slippery weather, while others leave a foot or two of ice and snow on the walk, and this practice is a menace to the safety of pedestrians. The latter class of citizens should be prosecuted, and not the former.

Ald Stevenson's views were adopted.

The Best Home Remedy for Rheumatism

Very Fine Prescription for Kidney Trouble, Anyone Can Prepare

A large health publication tells its readers of a number of simple and safe prescriptions that can be made at home. The following, however, for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles receives the greatest praise: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any small prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is further claimed that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and backache, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the aged people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings in just a short while.

A well-known local druggist states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, cleansing these sponge-like organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous wastes and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

Cut this out and keep it, as some sufferer which would certainly be an act of humanity.

New Switch-board Placed

Canada's Leading Utility Advances the Country's Interests Another Step--New Switch-board will Soon be in Operation in New Office

Yesterday a gang of Bell Telephone employes placed in position the switchboard, whence the various individual lines are conveyed to their hundreds of subscribers are segregated and disposed as required according to exigencies of the service in the new building on Hunter street west. The new building recently erected here by the Bell Telephone Company testifys both to their great future in business and, also to the faith the company have in the future of Peterborough's fast growing prosperity.

This switchboard, which is automatic in operation, consequent upon energies of the operators weighs a large amount for each section and there are four sections to be boxed and sent down to the local. The new switchboard will probably be in active operation within the next three months, when the patrons will get a service, even better than that now given with such success in Peterborough and throughout the Dominion. The insertion of such an advanced form of switchboard in Peterborough, after the company had within a few number of months than a man has fingers and toes placed a then modern and up-to-date board here, demonstrates conclusively that the Bell Telephone Company is looking more for its patrons' interests than for the immediate sordid objects of dividends for stockholders.

Under such circumstances, it is now up to the public of Canada to turn a deaf ear to all unfounded and already, in the past denied and confounded arguments against the interference and fore-ordained failure, after people's money has been paid in, of opposition "and really "hold up" companies.

The history of the Ontario Telephone Co., in this city, which started in with seemingly enough capital and its consequent sale at the Bell Company's price is sufficient argument against the expense and futility of a "dual system" of telephones. For instance a man having a Bell instrument on an exchange embracing say, 1000 instruments, is asked for personal or locally patriotic reasons to take stock in a local company. The patriotic citizen, possibly, for the moment, regarding the matter as a duty performed, he had from the Bell Co. in the past at prices he had not then learned by experience to be fair and just, carried away by plausible arguments on the part of men who likely know nothing of the expense of running a telephone service, particularly when a sleet or snow storm does hundreds of dollars worth of damages to the lines in a few minutes. Such citizens may be goaded by specious arguments and interest, but, if they want to know their future financial future, as far as such stock is concerned, let them apply to backers against the naturally profained business of Canada's greatest "hello" utility.

Burns Won in Tenth Round

London, Dec. 2.—No contest in recent years has excited interest like the Moir-Burns fight of tonight, when Tommy put his opponent asleep in the tenth round. Every seat was booked days ago, and fabulous prices were paid in some cases. Betting favored the Canadian, but the opinion here was that the result would be quite open.

Moir's supporters were relying on his stamina and punching powers to counteract Burns' generally admitted superiority in ring craft. Published details of the physique of the respective men show that Moir had an advantage of 2 1-2 inches in height, also weight and reach. Both men showed confidence.

The bout lasted ten rounds, but at times it looked as if Burns could have put his man away before.

Burns' modesty was favorably commented on. Burns has promised to give the public an opportunity of seeing him. He says he is ready to meet Jem Roche of Ireland.

Terrible Tolls of The Great Lakes

Watery Graves for Over One Hundred People

Toronto, December 2.—One hundred and twenty-five lives lost and $1,500,000 damage done to shipping, is the toll of the great lakes so far this year, with the most dangerous part of the season yet to come. The death list is an almost precedented one, and the property loss is also extremely high.

The chief item in the monetary losses is that caused by fire, the steamers Naomi and City of Cleveland going far towards bringing up the grand total for destruction through this cause to $1,800,000. Loss of life on account of fire was also considerable, ten meeting their deaths on this account. The Naomi again is responsible for the big total, seven of her crew and passengers meeting their deaths in the fire which destroyed the ship. The loss of the Cyprus a few days ago 16 by far the greatest accident of the season, 23 people—every person aboard except one—meeting death in the lake when she went down.

The total losses for the season thus far number six, giving an estimated loss of $111,000. The boats are: Pilgrim, struck in storm on Lake Huron, $75,000; tug L. B. Johnson, turned turtle, $5,000; Arcadia, wrecked in storm off Pentwater, $10,000; Carrington, went to pieces on beach in storm, $20,000; Nimick, driven on Lake Superior rocks, $15,000.

Other big losses were sustained by the burning of the City of Cleveland and Naomi, the hulls of which were saved and are being rebuilt. The losses on them were $175,000 and $135,000 respectively.

Early in the season vessel captains in an effort to make more money for the owners of the same, tried to force their boats through the piled up ice. The result was that the principal losses, totalled $63,000. They were innumerable smaller losses, for scarcely a boat went through the ice without receiving some damage and repairs on boats quickly amount up.

The most serious losses of life occurred on the Arcadia, Searchlight, Naomi, Nimick and Cyprus, and when a rowboat was run down by a tug, Walton B., in Duluth harbor, and five men drowned. Five seamen committed suicide from their boats and one was murdered by a companion.

Trade Conditions in Peterborough District

Peterborough Shows Up Well in Comparison with Other Localities--Ald. Johnston's Report

In the Labour Gazette for November Ald. W. J. Johnston has the following report of local trade and labor conditions:—

All branches of labor, both inside and outside, were well employed. Sewer work and the laying of pipes were still under way, and will be until the frost sets in. Granolithic sidewalks are also still being laid; about six miles of these walks have been laid this season, leaving three miles to be completed next year. The dredging of the river bed has been in full progress during the month, giving employment to large numbers of workmen. Considerable improvement work has been done in different places on the Trent Canal, and it will be carried on.

The contract for the erection of a new Roman Catholic church has been awarded, the church will cost about $44,000. Work on the erection of Manning new bakery building has been commenced. The firm of J. Turner & Sons has been awarded the contract for supplying flags for all the rural schools in the Province of Ontario. The Quaker Oats Company has advanced the price of cereal packages from 25 cents to 30 cents; the reason assigned for the increase is the present high price of oats and other grain.

Houses in Peterborough were more plentiful, but there are not enough rooms at about $10 per month to meet the demand. The city assessment now totals $14,000,000, being an increase over that of last year of $2,000,000. The population is 18,000, an increase of 1,000 over that of last year. There are 932 telephones in use in Peterborough. The Bell Telephone Company has completed its conduits for underground wires. Exports and imports have been very heavy during the months. Banks reported business steady. Wholesale and retail trade has been excellent. All factories were running full time with full forces of employees. Flour has advanced in price from $2.75 to $2.80, and bread from 10 to 11 cents for a 2 lb. loaf, also milk from 6 to 7 cents a quart. The labor market was well supplied, and harmony prevailed between employers and employees.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

Agriculture.—Fall ploughing, the sowing of fall wheat, threshing, hauling of grain to market, etc., have been the principal employment of agriculturists.

Fishing.—This industry was active.

Lumbering.—Operations were very active. The Cavendish Lumber Company has 300 men employed in its camps, and expects to cut about 12,000,000 feet of lumber this season.

Manufacturing.—All industrial establishments were active.

Mining.—The surveying and testing of mineral lands throughout the district were being carried on, and it is reported that active operations will shortly begin in several places.

Railroad construction and employment. The filling in of the viaducts at Port Hope gave employment to large numbers of workmen.

The Street Railway Company has been busily engaged getting its line in good shape for the winter.

CONDITION OF PARTICULAR TRADES.

Building.—Busy conditions prevailed.

Metal, engineering and shipbuilding.—Iron moulders, steam engineers, blacksmiths, tool sharpeners and jewelers were active. Iron workers and helpers, machinists and engineers, and sheet metal workers were busy, and electrical workers, linemen and brass workers were very busy; but bicycle workers and horseshoers found employment somewhat dull.

Woodworking and furnishing.—Upholsterers, varnishers, polishers, carriage workers and coopers were very busy, with pattern-makers active and car builders dull.

Printing.—The allied trades were active.

Clothing.—Journeymen tailors had active employment; garment workers, hat makers, boot and shoe workers were busy.

Food and tobacco preparation.—Bakers confectioners, butchers, etc., were busy; cigar makers and tobacco workers active, and ice-handlers were dull.

Leather.—Harness makers and those employed making collars were busy.

Miscellaneous.—All were busy, with barbers active.

Transport.—Steam railroad employees, and the street railway employees and steamboat men were active. Cabmen, hackmen, carters and draymen, teamsters and expressmen were busy.

Unskilled.—Busy conditions prevailed.

Intercolonial Officials Pleased

Fast Time Made in Service from Liverpool via Halifax

St. John Sun, Nov. 28th., 1907.

Montreal, Nov. 28.—The Intercolonial freight officials are greatly pleased at the results which have been attained as a result of their efforts to ensure the fastest possible service between Liverpool and Montreal via Halifax. That freight should be delivered in the city within twelve days after leaving Liverpool is certainly a record of which both the shipping and railway men should be proud.

The Allan line steamer Tunisian left Liverpool on her first winter trip on Thursday evening, Nov. 14th, arriving at Halifax on Friday, 22nd. She landed a large lot of freight at that port, seventeen cars of which were delivered to the Intercolonial for Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Brockville, Kingston, Toronto, London and points west. These cars were sent out on a special fast freight which left Halifax on Saturday, 23rd, and arrived in Montreal, Monday morning, the 25th, at ten o'clock, only forty-eight hours from Halifax. From the time this freight was put on board the Tunisian at Liverpool until it was delivered at Montreal, it took less than twelve days, a remarkably quick despatch both on the part of the Tunisian and the I.C.R. Railway. It is the claim of the Intercolonial officials that import freight can be handled by the Halifax route and delivered as promptly as by any other route, either through Canada or the United States. And they point to this latest record as proof that the Intercolonial is as efficient in freight carrying as in catering to passenger business.

All Arrangements Completed for the Big Athletic Meet

Now that everything is practically arranged for the big athletic meet in the Brock street rink tonight, everything points towards the greatest evening's sport ever seen in Peterborough. With every event filled up with entries, and three or four heats in each of the events, there will certainly be something doing all the evening, and the presence of so many renowned outside athletic should attract a monster crowd.

The following local gentlemen have very kindly donated the gold medals for the first prizes in the events, and the Harriers are grateful for their generous action, viz., Messrs. V. Eastwood, Lang & Maher, H. R. H. Kenner, Hon. J. R. Stratton, S. M. Roy and T. E. Bradburn. Mrs. (Hon.) J. R. Stratton will present the prizes to the winners immediately before the start of the three-mile special race which will be the last event on the program.

Mr. N. B. Growe, the secretary of the C.A.A.U., will be one of the many outside visitors who will be present. All the towns in the neighborhood will send big delegations, over 30 coming from Havelock alone.

Bequeathed a Substantial Sum to the Church

Rev. Father McCoil announced at St. Peter's cathedral on Sunday that the late Mr. James Dolan had bequeathed a substantial sum of money to the church. In the will it was stated that the money be divided between the House of Providence, St. Joseph's hospital, and the new church in the south end. The exact amount of the legacy was not mentioned, but The Times was told by a member of the family that the estate, presumably amounting to possibly $30,000 net, will be divided into 13 equal portions. Of these seven will go in equal shares to the nieces and nephews of the estate, on account of the late Mr. Dolan's brother John of Chicago, and the balance between various charities of the church, to which the late James Dolan was a consistent and persistent contributor and among the members of which, as well as among others he was a highly esteemed and greatly loved citizen.

—Don't fail to attend the sale of goods at 5, 10 and 25 cents, now on at Times Bookstore. Toys, games, dolls, books, fancy glass and china ware, etc.

Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., Reviews Canada's Trade Advances

During the Past Twenty-nine Years--A Remarkable Era--A Tribute to Canada's Premier

Yesterday afternoon the Dominion Parliament at Ottawa, went into session when, after the receiving of petitions and the introduction of bills, the principal event of the day occurred—the moving of the adoption of the address in reply to the speech from the throne, by Mr. R. R. Hall, the popular member for West Peterborough. Mr. Hall's address commanded the attention of the House of Commons. The features of it was the setting forth of the high position Canadians hold in the commercial world and the rapid strides made by the Dominion of Canada in her growth and development and in the advancement of her trade and commerce.

Mr Hall on rising before the House was greeted with loud applause. He thanked Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the honor conferred on him in granting him the privilege to move the adoption of the speech from the throne. He did not take it as a personal honor, but rather as a compliment to the constituency of West Peterborough which he had the honor of representing in the Parliament of Canada. Although Peterborough as a city only ranked 20th in size in the Dominion, in the matter of trade it held the proud position of 6th and he additional fact that the butter and cheese produced by the County of Peterborough and sent to the British market, are among the finest in the world, constituted another reason why the honor mentioned was conferred upon the member for West Peterborough.

In discussing the rapid increase of the trade of the Dominion of Canada, Mr. Hall reviewed the progress made since the year 1878—the year that Sir John Macdonald took charge of the destinies of the country—to the present year 1907, during the years that Sir Wilfrid Laurier controlled the destiny of our great Dominion. In 1878 the total trade was $172,105,451; in 1896 it was $239,033,548, and in 1906, the present year it is $617,-901,952. By easy calculations we are able to see that during the first 18 years the increase was $66,619,100, and that during the last 11 years under the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier the increase had been $376,909,392.

The expansion of Canada's trade with Great Britain and Ireland in the last 11 years is enormous. Between the years 1878 and 1896 it increased from $83,000,000 to $99,000,000, but during the last 11 years it increased to $216,000,000. The Canadian trade with the U.S. showed the same result. In 1878 it was $73,000,000; in 1896 it was $107,000,000, and for the present year it is over $319,000,000. Also the latest trade returns show that during the four months ending Oct. 31st, 1907, Canada's trade amounted to $215,196,196, and that during the corresponding four months of the year it was $246,592,197 an increase of over $31,000,000.

The total revenue for October was $8,223,071, an increase of $433,657 over October of last year. JAPAN'S EDUCATIONAL ADVANCEMENT

Japan's advancement educationally is keeping good pace with her phenomenal progress along other lines. This may be gathered from the fact that whereas in 1873 only 28 per cent. of the children of school age attended places of instruction in 1904-5, the last year of which there is record, the percentage was 94.43. The report of the Minister of Education for the latter school year gives evidence of marvellous diffusion of popular education since a system of collecting data was inaugurated some 34 years ago.

The progress made is all the more remarkable in view of the constantly-increasing deficiency of qualified teachers. To overcome this difficulty the Government has been erecting normal school buildings and providing improved facilities for the examination of persons desiring teachers' licenses. Still the supply remains unequal to the demand, nor is it likely that until the teaching profession is made more attractive by increased salaries the situation will be improved.

Japan, however, has already beaten Italy, Austria-Hungary, Russia, Spain and Portugal in the matter of public instruction. No longer is it found necessary to send Japanese students abroad to qualify them to conduct the ordinary courses of instruction. For the most part the hundred students who in 1904-5 went to Great Britain, France, Germany and the United States were distinguished graduates who desired to carry on the investigation of specialized subjects, and when they return, instead of taking part in the work of secondary education, are more likely to be appointed to university professorships or to important posts in the civil administration.

To higher education Japan is paying equal attention. The imperial universities of Tokio and Kioto have steadily expanded both as regards the number of students and organization and equipment. The first-mentioned seat of learning at the present time consists of the university hall and six colleges respectively devoted to law, medicine, engineering, literature, science and agriculture, and to each are attached laboratories, libraries and museums. In the university hall the number of students was 600, while 2,944 names were on the rolls of the colleges. The teaching staff numbered 278, including 18 foreigners. The university of Kioto, being a younger institution, is smaller, and its equipment less complete than that of Tokio, yet it comprises a university hall and colleges of law, medicine, literature, science, and engineering, with 1,224 students and a teaching staff of 127. In addition to these two universities are a number of special institutions, including schools of medicine, foreign languages, music and art. Wherever needed technical schools of varied characters have been established. Besides a goodly number of public and private industrial schools, apprentices' schools, schools of marine products, nautical schools and schools of trade, industry and agriculture.

The Japanese are awake to the importance of school hygiene, and the necessary precautions of cleaning and disinfection are being rigorously enforced. Arrangements are also being made for a drastic medical officers being specially delegated for the work.

Evidently Japan is on the right track in its efforts to secure and maintain a place among the leading nations of the world.

TRY TO LIVE LONG.

Bargain With Death and Win All the Years You Can.

No one of us is so poor, or so unworthy that he is not ready to bargain with death. Let the specter name his price and we give up our loves and our tobacco with equal promptness. He may have our fortunes and our homes, our pride and our achievements and aspirations—yes, even our eyes and ears—if he will but smile upon our prayers. Let him so command and we will abide in the wilderness, we will find comfort in husks, we will lie down with the beasts of the field. Better even a browsing Nebuchadnezzar than a moldering Hercules.

It is needless to tell us that death is an arch grafter. We know with whom we are dealing, and we know, too, that he grins in his sleeve at our eagerness to delay the inevitable. What to him are ten more years or fifty years or fifty centuries? Had Sargon, the mighty ruler of the Babylonian world, secured a respite of 5,000 years he would even so have been in his grave for more than a century when Richard of England led the crusaders to the walls of Jerusalem.

An old legend tells us that when Methuselah was 500 years old an angel came to him and advised him to build a house instead of living in the open air, as he had been doing up to that time. The patriarch asked how much longer he had to live. "About 500 years," answered the angel. "Then," said Methuselah, "it is not worth while to build a house."

By this token Methuselah proved himself a pessimist. To Azrael a thousand years may be as yesterday, but it is not for us to follow the example of our antediluvian forefather and view existence through the eyes of death. Every moment added to our earthly tenure is regarded as that much again. The monk Hildesheim, listening to God in the melody of a bird for a space of three minutes, found that in those three minutes 300 years had flown. And so to each of us life means always the possibility of joy and revelation unmeasured by time or space. Therefore let us bargain with death. True, he will claim us at last, but we shall have had the better of the bargain.—Lippincott's.

A racking cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it at the first hesitation, even to very young babies. The wholesome green leaves of the mountain shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It stops the cough and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, no sickening harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract that helps to heal aching lungs. The Indians call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

Arrested in Church

Hamilton, Ind., Dec. 2.—Bail Cunningham, Overton Decker and Salvan Pearson, members of the Baptist Church choir at this place, were arrested yesterday on affidavits filed by the Rev. Samuel Bettis, charging them with disturbing religious services by chewing gum while seated in the choir.

No formal charge was made against four young women in the choir who also chewed gum, but they were severely rebuked by the minister.

Rector Intoxicated in Public

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 2.—Rev. Joseph C. Hall, rector of the All Saints Episcopal Church of Kaukauna, has been deposed by Bishop Grafton for being publicly intoxicated. Rev. Hall came to Kaukauna five months ago. It was largely through his efforts that a new building was purchased. Great preparations had been made for the dedication, which took place November 18. When the bishop attended he heard the rector had been seen intoxicated, but took no action until after the ceremonies. When the minister left he forgot a number of bills, one of which was of the Kaukauna brewery.

Good Coal Stock Is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines just north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 — 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 50 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 320 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crows Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $250.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $500.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal. They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

CORTHELL'S HEALTH CURE.

By W. F. BRYAN

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

Corthell strode along briskly. The clear morning air, the bright sunlight and the fertile fields bordering on the road were all a source of delight to him.

Not in years had he enjoyed a meal as much as he had the homely breakfast provided at the little country hotel where he had put up the night before and where he had left the trunk that held his city clothes. Now, in a well worn suit he was tramping along the dusty road with much the same feeling as that enjoyed by a boy who plays hookey from school for the first time.

In years Corthell had not felt justified in taking a vacation. Finally through a combination of circumstances he had been able to get together some capital, and by unremitting effort this had been doubled and trebled into the fortune that made him prominent in the money market.

Then came the breakdown. The famous specialist in nervous diseases insisted upon a vacation. "It's either a few weeks' vacation or years in an insane asylum," he said bluntly. "You know best which you want. Make your own choice."

In the end Corthell had capitulated and had suggested Newport as the place for a vacation. The specialist regarded him with disgust.

"I think I should have saved time by sending you to the asylum first," he said. He was paid $25 for a consultation and could afford to say what he pleased. "You get an old suit and a comfortable pair of shoes and take a walking tour. Don't go to any place where you are liable to meet friends. I know just the route. I will send you a road map."

He bowed Corthell out. Three days later the broker was set down in a tiny hamlet in the northern part of the state, and this was the first day of his trip.

He had stopped to watch some men haying, when one of them came toward him.

"Looking for a job?" he demanded.

Corthell laughed. "I don't know that I am," he answered. "I was going farther on."

"I'll give a dollar and a half a day to drive one of the rakes," he offered. "Know how to drive?"

Corthell smiled. His team of boys had a dozen blue ribbons to their credit.

"I can drive some," he admitted.

"Jump up and drive that rake then," was the man's curt answer, and, to his surprise, Corthell found himself climbing the fence and moving toward the horse rake.

"I SUPPOSE I SHALL BE THROUGH BY THE END OF THE WEEK," SAID HE.

It seemed ages since he had performed similar services on his father's farm. The bony horse he was driving bore little resemblance to his own prize winners, but he derived more real pleasure from the task than had ever come from a spin along the boulevard. He was surprised at the flight of time when the horn blew for dinner.

He was still more surprised at the appetite he had for the pork and potatoes that formed the menu. He accepted two helpings and still had room for a generous cut of the green apple pie.

In the afternoon he was expected to help pitch the sweet scented hay upon the cart. He worked until the muscles of his back were sore and smarting, but gave no sign of his distress, only worked away with clinched teeth. When at last the men knocked off and the final load started to the barn he heaved a sigh of relief.

Most of the men were from nearby farms, and these were paid off and started for their own homes. Corthell was the last of the line, and the farmer paused.

"I won't take anything off for the time before you came," he said. "Want to stay on till hayin's over?"

Corthell nodded.

"I guess I will," he agreed. "Work seems to agree with me."

"Come on up to supper," ordered the farmer. "I guess mother can fix you up with a place over the wood shed."

Corthell followed his grim employer across the fields, wondering what his town associates would say could they know that he had hired out for a dollar and a half a day.

There were only three of the men at supper, and Mrs. Binder, with her daughter Ruth, sat down to the table with them. Ruth had been busy in the kitchen during the noon meal, while her mother had served. At sight of her Corthell was more than ever glad he had taken the job.

She had been his first boyish sweetheart. She had died just after he had gone to the city, and in the absorption of business he had come to divide women into two classes—stenographers and servingwomen. For the first time in years he felt more than a passing interest in a woman, and when he and Ruth sat on the steps he rested his tired body against the railing and chatted until bedtime.

Ruth, he learned, taught school in winter, and, further, she was a graduate of a well known woman's college. She, on her side, recognized in him a person better educated than the other farm hands and plainly showed her interest.

The next few days Corthell toiled from daybreak to sundown for the sake of those quiet evenings in the summer dusk, and love grew rapidly in their hearts.

Each found in the other traits to admire, and Corthell watched with dread the progress of the harvest. In a few days only the regular hired man would be needed, and this knowledge gave Corthell courage to speak.

They were leaning over the top rail of the fence that lay beside the road. Mrs. Binder, who was the organist at the village church, was practicing the Sunday music at the cheap organ in the parlor. The old familiar hymns were softened by distance and roused in Corthell a flood of memories.

"I suppose I shall be through by the end of the week," said he. "Will you be sorry?"

"You know that," she said simply. "I shall be very sorry. Will you?"

"I hope I shall not have to be very sorry," he whispered. "I hope to carry with me your promise that I may come for you again. Will you promise, dear? I know I am almost a stranger, but I love you, sweetheart. Can you trust me?"

"I do trust you," she said. "When you have made a home for me, come for me. Do not be discouraged if the struggle is hard. I will wait patiently until you get a start, and then we can fight the world together."

She put her hand trustingly in his, and the brown head and the one whose black hair was slightly streaked with gray drew together.

"Nice doings," snorted Hiram Binder, as he stepped forth from the shadows. "Haven't you more pride, Ruth, than to fall in love with a tramping farm hand, and after all the education I've given you? Why, you could marry a man with a farm of his own."

"I'd rather marry the man I love," Ruth said stoutly. "I have told Will that I will marry him when he can make a home for me, and I mean it."

Binder blinked. Ruth had inherited from him the stubbornness that was tradition in that part of the country, and he knew that she meant what she said.

"You'll have to wait for a long time," he said with a sneer, as he turned away to cover his defeat. "He's got $24 comin' to him to start with."

"I think I can manage it," interrupted Corthell with a happy laugh. "You see $24 added to about $100,000 makes about $100,024. I ought to be able to start a home on that."

"You ain't that Corthell?" demanded Binder with an emphasis that showed that he read the papers. "What are you doin' here?"

"Looking for health and a wife," he answered, "and I've found both."

He watched his father-in-law-to-be stump across the grass to the house, then he turned to the girl. "You don't mind, do you, Ruth? It will not make any difference will it?"

"Not in my love," she answered simply, "but I would rather have made the fight with you."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in fact, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, sphinxlike, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds Nitrogenized, rich blood, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these Nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON said: "Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $200,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 8 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of Treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at a par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, in convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of precooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions, which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

COM. ON APPOINTMENTS.

To the chairman and members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report and recommend;

1. That the commercial classes of the Collegiate Institute be transferred from the King Edward School to the Queen Alexandra school after Christmas vacation. This is necessary on account of the crowded state of the King Edward at the present time.

2. That Miss Sloan of Owen Sound, Miss Staples of Barrie and Miss Massar of Ancaster be appointed to positions on our Public school staff at the minimum salary of $400 each, duties to commence at the date on which school opens in January, 1908.

Dr. Morrison thought that such pupils might be accommodated in the more central locations than those recommended.

Mr. Dumble asked, "Do you object to the change in vicinity?" (Laughter.)

Mr. Pringle said he had formerly been of the opinion as expressed by Dr. Morrison, but had enquired since into the matter and was convinced that there is no other course open. The Collegiate Institute and the Central school cannot accommodate these classes.

A communication was received from Miss Anna B. Sloan, Owen Sound, accepting a position in the local public schools.—Received.

Principal Fessenden wrote thanking the board for granting his request to be relieved of the duties of principal.

Miss A. M. Watt, Barrie, wrote asking to be given leave of absence, although given an appointment on the public school teaching staff, during December.—Granted.

James Davis applied for janitorship of north ward school.

Miss E. M. Ancaster wrote asking a position on the public school teaching staff.—Received.

A. A. Barrie wrote accepting a position on the public school teaching staff.

W. Miles, Brock street, wrote asking position as janitor in the public school.

Dr. Morrison, chairman of the Building Committee, made a report and recommended that he contracts for desks, book cases, and chairs be let to local furniture dealers. Messrs. D Rolleghem and Clegg, were awarded the contracts.

Mr. Robinson, during a subsequent debate, noted that he, as a member of the building committee was not notified regarding a meeting called for that committee. Mr. Robinson remarked in unmistakable language that whilst he might belong to a different class from the rest of the board he had just as much rights as any of them to get equal courtesy and should have been notified.

Mr Dumble arose and said he was sorry to see such a spirit exhibited. As far as he, Mr. Dumble, knew, no exceptions or discriminations had ever been made. It was a pity to use such arguments.

Mr. Hyde referred Mr. Robinson that if he did not get his notice, the notice must have accidentally gone astray. Letters from his firm had gone to another firm with a similar name. Peace then spread its wings o'er the troubled waters.

The matter of the Romaine street sewer was then taken up. Mr. Pringle noted that Mr. Bartlet had thoroughly investigated the matter and had made practical tests.

Chairman Fair remarked that Mr. Pringle as chairman of the committee in charge of this work, had the matter in his own hands with power to act.

Mr Robinson explained in a most

Sensational Blackmailing Case

Ottawa, Dec 3.—John R. Labatt, Ottawa, manager of the Labatt Brewing Company, was arrested late last night on a charge of blackmail.

Labatt appeared in court this morning, charged with having sent an anonymous threatening letter to Hon. H. R. Emerson last July, demanding $1,000 on threat of exposing him in connection with some scandalous affairs.

Several other leading people it is alleged, received similar letters, and for months private and government detectives have been on the hunt for the writer.

The arrest of Labatt created a great sensation, as he is considered a young man of the highest character.

Kissed the Wrong Woman

St. Catharines, Dec. 3.—The whole town today is chuckling over one of the funniest things which could befall a man which took place last night. A well-known business man received a telegram from his daughter in Buffalo saying that she was coming here on the evening train, and he was to meet her. When he got up town about train time, all the cabs had gone to the station. The only thing for him to do was wait for one of the cabs to get back, because the G.T.R depot is a long distance away, at the same time telephoning to the station agent to tell the young lady to wait for him. The first cab that came up town he got into and started back for the station. Half way there they met another cab, and his John sang out, "The looks like your daughter coming now." The hero of the story jumped out and stepped into the other cab. Seeing a lady sitting in one corner of the dark cab, without more ado he threw his arms around her and planted a kiss on her lips. The cold chills started down his back a second later when a strange voice exclaimed "Excuse me, sir, there must be a mistake," and mistake there was. It turned out to be a lady that lives near the G.T.R station, who was being taken to the hospital. Of course, she accepted the gentleman's profuse apology, though delivered in a very fluttered manner.

Broker's 'Affinity,' will Sue Him for $100-000.00 Heart Balm

New York Dec. 1.—Louis A. Prince, New York representative of the Mutual Trust Company of Mexico, whose wife caused the police Wednesday night to find him saying she feared he intended to commit suicide with another woman, does not intend to do anything of the kind, according to the other woman. The other woman also announces that she intends to sue the broker for $100,000 for breach of promise.

Thursday night Mrs. Prince called up the press by telephone and said the whole thing was a mistake. She asserted that Mr. Prince was all right, had been at a Turkish bath and had not been with the other woman at all.

Last night a woman who said she was Miss Mindie Robinson, wife of Herbert H. Robinson, a mining man, informed a reporter that she was the woman to whom Mrs. Prince alluded. She said she had left her husband for Mr. Prince, who had promised to obtain a divorce and marry her. Mrs. Robinson further announced that she was formerly a show girl, and that her last appearance was with the "Belle of Mayfair" company.

"Mr. Prince is not missing," she said. "He has been in New York all the time; at his office, his mother's home, No. 820 West End avenue, and with me. I met him first last summer. We loved each other at first sight. He promised to secure a divorce when his wife returned from Europe and marry me."

LOVE TURNS TO HATE.

"Last Sunday Mr. Prince returned. On Tuesday, in spite of his promise to me that he would not see her, I met Mr. Prince and his wife on Broadway. I upbraided him, and he said he was obliged to be courteous to her.

"That afternoon I lunched with Mr. Prince and he told me somehow that his love for all my love to hate. He wanted me to leave New York for a time, until all this blows over. He said he would pay all my expenses, but he could not afford to have his business sequestrated by such an affair. I asked him about the divorce, and he said he had no grounds for applying for one.

"I am going to my lawyers in the morning, and shall sue him for $100,000 for breach of promise. I have his letters and I have witnesses. I can stand this no longer."

Mrs Robinson has many love letters which, she declares, were written by Mr Prince. Following are extracts from several of them, all of which are signed "Louis."

Dear Lady,

Have you ever crossed the Sahara and felt that nothing but dreary wastes of sand were in sight, and then suddenly come in view of a beautiful oasis?—whatever that means! Not? Well, neither have I, but I know that I felt as the Arab traveller did in the "couth" of the palm trees when I heard your charming voice over the wire.

WON'T LIKE HER FRIEND.

[illegible] when you see you have all the world, but that I know you are young, and youth survive every ill. And, to add to the thrill the voice caused, I have just received and digested you letter and note. I think the pink and white costume [illegible] you adorably, and hope to splash in the ocean with you either Wednesday or Thursday. Engage as I must be off to Baltimore and will move with the [illegible] of visiting you on the [illegible] down.

Say [illegible] you [illegible] looked [illegible] not with me. I don't think I am going to like your friend Mr. [illegible] Bible says "Be not solitary," so I wish you a lovely time, with all the other attractions your beauty nerves. Your most devoted of admirers signs himself, LOUIS.

In a letter dated August 8, 1907, "Louis" writes,

"The amount I am sending you reminds me of the famous poem I once wrote;

"I hope that you do not feel sore dear,
As you glance on this pittance you throw,
My heart bids me send you much more, dear,
But my pocketbook sternly says 'No!'"

From the Woodstock Inn, Woodstock, Vt., on August 26, 'Louis' wrote to "Dear Child," saying that he was up in the woods on business, but there was no business. He continued;

"Will try to reach New York Wednesday night or Thursday morning, and then, if you like, a little trip over Day. What say you? I wrote to the firm to give you $20. I said I borrowed it just before I went away. I wonder what you are doing and how you are feeling. You know my feelings toward you, so need not write them. Until the end of time.

"LOUIS.

"P.S.—Au revoir, dearie. I will see you tomorrow night, and I hope that you have not changed your feelings towards me. Have you, my child?"

19,374 Applications Were Made to Adopt Barnardo Children

Ottawa, Dec 3.—The number of children coming to Canada from the Dr. Barnardo and other homes in the old country numbered last year, 3,256 but as there were 19,374 applications for children for adoption, the department of the interior, which looks after these little ones, could not begin to meet the demand.

Mr G. B. Smart, the inspector of immigrant children, reports that juvenile immigration has given down adverse criticism, "and that the great majority of these youngsters develop into excellent citizens."

A great improvement has been made by the English societies in selecting children for Canada. Those with the slightest suggestion of physical weakness or mental defect should be rejected out of kindness to themselves.

Turkeys and Hoppers

Keene, Dec. 3.—A Dummer township farmer seems to have solved in a measure the problem of getting a good income from his farm regardless of crop conditions. He has a flock of some four hundred turkeys, of the large, bronze variety, all this year's fowl. It appears that during a very dry summer about four years ago, the grasshoppers became a pest, and were particularly plentiful on a rocky part of this man's farm. The "hoppers" were turning their attention to the grain, when he decided to raise turkeys, and turned them out in the cultivated fields the grasshoppers infested. All summer they throve on the pests, and that was the beginning of his turkey farming, which has since increased to such proportions that the attention of one person is required the greater part of the time.

No Children at the Shelter

For the first time in years the Children's Aid Society shelter is without an inmate except Caretakers Mr. and Mrs. Henry. All the children who have been in the shelter have been placed in good homes and reports as to their conduct are satisfactory. The society however, now has its fatherly eye on a number of children whom existing conditions will compel the society to take charge.

THE HARRIER'S ATHLETIC MEET

The first annual indoor meet of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers was a most successful one both from point of attendance and quality of races furnished the spectators. The rink was crowded to the doors and the winners of the different events received great applause.

The different events were all well filled and keenly contested, and the very exciting finishes brought the large crowd to their feet time after time.

A large crowd accompanied T. C. Flanagan, with his Irish-Canadian runners, who captured a large share of the prizes.

Jack Tait, of the West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto, proved an easy winner in the 3-mile special, a lap ahead of Ernie Wilson.

The 3-mile race was a hard fought one between Green, of the Irish-Canadians, and Howard, the two Indian braves. Green winning by a small margin.

In the one-mile race Simpson fell and injured his knee, he stopped out leaving the race to A. W. Haddon, of the Irish-Canadians.

The final 220-yard handicap race was won by McIlmurray, of the I. C.A.C.—Time 30

Len Dobson, of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, carried off the 1-2 mile race. —Time 4.21 5-8.

Fred McGrath, of Peterborough, won the 50-yard handicap in 5 3-5 sec.

Owing to the medals not arriving in time to be presented, it was announced that arrangements would be made for the presentation to take place in the near future.

Before the 3-mile special, Mr. Clarry presented Tom. Longboat, the great Indian runner, with a bouquet of flowers.

During the evening the 57th Regimental Band discoursed music.

Tommy Burns Attempted to Explain His Nationality and was Hooted Down

New York, Dec. 3.—Although they give him all the credit for defeating "Gunner" Moir in the heavyweight battle in London last night, the English press is not well pleased with the victory won by Tommy Burns, according to the extracts from the English papers cabled here early this morning. The English believe Burns to be an American, while as a matter of fact, he is a Canadian, but it is evident that much of his unpopularity is due to that fact.

Burns attempted to make a speech when he entered the ring at the National Sporting Club, for the purpose of explaining his nationality, but he was hissed down. Even his victory after a fight which all admit was his from the third round, he was hooted.

Peterboro Artists are Immortalized

Strand Magazine Devotes Space to Recognized Local Talent

The Christmas number of the "Strand" magazine, in the course of an illustrated article upon "Canadian artists in Paris," contains an excellent photograph of a former Peterborough lady, Miss Katharine Wallis, the photograph, as noted, being taken by "Roy of Peterborough." This article referred to also contains a full page view of one of the creations in marble by this eminent Peterborough sculptress. In the same article reference is also made to paintings done by a relative of the Strickland's of Lakefield, and who is also a relative of Peterborough's deceased authoress, who wrote "In the Backwoods of Canada." In the course of this illustrated article Peterborough and its artists, whether of the brush or mallet, is given fully two pages.

Good Work by W. C. Switzer's Class

Many a poor and destitute man and woman of this city has reason to sincerely thank the members of Mr. W. C. Switzer's Bible class, in connection with the George street Methodist church for practical help in their hour of need. This class, under Mr. Switzer's personal supervision has done much creditable work in looking after the wants and comforts of the poor. Clothing, bedding, etc., are being forwarded to deserving ones. The members meet each Thursday afternoon and evening, at the residence of one of their number. They have already sent out much clothing and many quilts, and have arranged for a supply of furniture and stoves for those in need.

Lindsay Sample of Brainless Bombassity

It seems that a certain young man in Lindsay is either in serious and immediately required need of about a barrel of salt to correct, a not our attack of freshness, or possibly he found the Peterborough brand of spirits fermented too strong for his bucolic and bumptuous brain. The Post of Scugog town says;

A Peterborough clergyman complains of having been tendered only 50c. as a fee for marrying a couple recently. We don't mean to be ungallant but a good looking youth in our press room says if the girl was as ill-favored as the Peterborough young women he has met, the fee was really a munificent one.

Evelyn Thaw was Looking Stronger

New York, Dec. 3.—On motion of District Attorney Jerome, the second trial of Harry K. Thaw, for the killing of Stanford White in June, 1906, today was postponed until Monday, January 6. A special panel of 300 talesmen will report that day for jury duty.

Thaw was not brought into the court room, but was allowed to stand in the corridor leading from the prisoner's room at the rear, and had an unobstructed view of the proceedings. His wife, Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, was the only member of the prisoner's family present. She looked in much better physical condition than she did a year ago. Her face is plump now, and there is a touch of healthy color in her cheeks. She seems in high spirits today.

The proceedings came up before Supreme Court Justice Dowling. The defendant was represented by Martin W. Littleton, Daniel O'Reilly, and A. Russell Peabody. Mr. Littleton opposed the delay and demanded a speedy trial. Mr. Jerome requested the delay on account of the great difficulty that would be encountered in securing a jury with the prospect of being locked up over the holidays staring each talesman in the face. It was necessary, he said that the jury should be kept in custody throughout the trial.

Justice Dowling said that, while he favored a speedy trial, he desired time and expenses would be saved by putting the case over.

More Railways for The West to Open Up the Country

Winnipeg, December 5— Application will be made to Parliament at its next session for an act to incorporate the Alberta North-western Railway Company, with power to construct lines from a point on the line of the Calgary & Edmonton Railway Company, between Olds and Red Deer, thence northwesterly along the valley of the Red DDeer, Raven and Clearwater Rivers, to a point at or near the Rocky Mountain House on the North Saskatchewan River; thence westerly along the North Saskatchewan River to a point in Kootenay Plains in the Rocky Mountains in the Province of Alberta, and from a point on or near the North Saskatchewan River between Big Horn and Sheep Rivers, thence to Brazeau River, thence along the Macleod River.

ANOTHER RAILWAY.

Ottawa, December 4.—The Edmonton Yukon & Pacific Railway Company will apply next session for an act empowering it to construct a branch line from a point on its authorized line to Vancouver and from a point on its authorized line to the head waters of the Macleod and Brazeau Rivers and an extension of the time for completing its line either to Yellowhead Pass or Peace River and thence by such route as to found or deemed most practicable to a port in British Columbia, or to connect with an authorized line of the British Pacific Railway Company.

Wages on the Farm Have Reached Limit

The Ontario Agricultural Department has issued the following statement on labor and wages from the farmers' standpoint;

"While a considerable number of correspondents hold that there was an adequate supply of farm labor during the working season, the greater parts of the reports speak of a scarcity, more especially of men of the right quality. While some of the immigrant help are favorably referred to, more frequently there is remarkable outspokenness as to the unfitness of many of the Old Country men offering for Ontario farm labor. As to the rate of wages, correspondents are almost unanimous in declaring that it is not likely to go higher, as farmers cannot afford to pay more. A number of the reports suggest a fall in price of farm labor, in sympathy with the dullness now beginning to affect some of the town industries. Improved farm implements and the co-operation of neighbors are also helping to relieve the strain. Domestic servants on the farm were never more difficult to procure."

Saskatchewan Has a Government Mine

Regina, Dec. 3.—It is announced here that the Saskatchewan government has acquired from the Federal government a coal area in the Eagle Lake district, and the operations will be pushed so that the coal may be mined under government ownership and operation as early as possible in the coming spring. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will traverse the district, and coal can thus be readily hauled to settlers. The railway traverses a district where there is little or no free wood. The conservative papers say that this acquirement by the government of a small part of the public domain is a cauitulation of the Liberals to the contention of Mr. Haultain and Mr. Borden that the provinces should have been given the public lands.

Christmas Shopers Should Shop Early

The windows of our big stores are beginning to display Christmas goods, which reminds us that Christmas is not quite a month away. The merchants of Peterborough are noted for the fine assortment of holiday goods they offer the people from year to year, and if the window displays now to be seen are a fair basis on which to form a judgment, the Christmas goods now on hand surpass the stock of any previous year.

Certain it is that the windows of our city which now exhibit Christmas goods never contained more beautiful displays. These articles have been placed on sale early in the season by the merchants to give their patrons an opportunity to make their holiday purchases before the stock becomes so depleted that the best choice is no longer available. The merchants are also consulting their own interests in the matter, as in this way they hope that their patrons will assist them in handling their Christmas trade with the utmost convenience and facility possible, by buying their holiday goods before the great rush commences, when the fatigued and overworked clerks are no longer able to give the merchant or the public the attention and service both so much desire.

The public will therefore help themselves by making their selections of Christmas presents while the stocks are still practically unbroken, and will at the same time confer an untold favor upon the merchants and the clerks by assisting them in this way to handle the heavy holiday trade.

Will Not Limit the Skyscrapers

New York, Dec. 3.—No limitation is to be placed on the height of New York's tall buildings of the future, instead of being hell to certain legal restrictions, the builder hereafter may send a sky-scraper to as many many storeys as he chooses, provided his structure is of such fonm as to guarantee a reasonable amount of light and ventilation to his neighbors on all sides.

This is the effect of an amendment to the New York building code, which will be ratified by the Code Revision Committee at a meeting today, and the entire report of the committee probably will be adopted by the Board of Aldermen within the coming week. Several months ago, when the Revision Commission first took up the question of restricting the altitude of sky-scrapers there seemed to be a preponderance of argument in favor of limiting all future structures to about twenty storeys, and the problem evoked a great deal of comment both [illegible]

HOW CHILDREN ARE QUICKLY STRENGTHENED

Develop Them with Ferrozone, Which Makes Rich Blood, Hardy Muscle, Steady Nerves.

Children brought up on Ferrozone are known by their strong, rugged frames their chubby cheeks and healthful appearance.

Mothers find it an indispensable tonic and tedy builder, and in thousands of homes no other remedy is used.

EVERY CHILD IMPROVES ON FERROZONE

Mrs. E. Montgomery, of Pittsburg, writes: "A little niece came to visit me, and noticing her pale and haggard looks, I started her on a course of Ferrozone. The change that girl underwent in a few weeks was marvellous. Her appetite chirped up, she had more spirit and strength, and a rosy color came into her cheeks that I never saw there before. I weighed my niece about the time she started to pick up, and in seven weeks she gained almost eight pounds, and just looked the picture of health. I think this should be an example to many mothers, and I hope that others will try Ferrozone for their little boys and girls. I am thoroughly convinced that it's the most strengthening tonic it has my strongest endorsement."

The reason Ferrozone works so beneficially with Ferrozone is that it acts directly on the blood, freeing it of all unhealthy matter, at the same time giving it an additional supply of iron.

This at once results in more strength new spirit and renewed vitality. Just one tablet at meal time works wonders.

Refuse to accept any article the druggist may say is just as good. Get Ferrozone, and the result we guarantee will be satisfactory. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers.

THE JOYS OF WALKING

Under the above caption The Toronto Star makes the following editorial comment upon the benefits and pleasures of walking:—

It is to be hoped that the "walking craze" will not disappear without leaving some trace of its existence. Walking is one of the finest of exercises for legs and lungs. One of the advantages of golf is that it compels its votaries to walk and to take large quantities of pure air into the lungs. These advantages can be obtained in a less expensive way, and one that is available to a larger number of people.

While the young and athletic will enter largely into competitions, and try to make records for speed, there are other pleasures in store for those who are willing to use their legs in the old-fashioned way. A pedestrian tour gives one a more intimate acquaintance with the country than any other form of locomotion. The automobile and the bicycle fly past the farms; the pedestrian stops and chats with the man who is working in the fields. Perhaps his walk takes him as far as some country hotel, for whose plain substantial meal he will have a prodigious appetite; while the talk of the other guests will give him some views of life different from those that he observes in the city restaurant.

The young and athletic may make it a point of honor to walk both ways, but a more luxurious form of pedestrianism is to walk until you are tired, and take a trolley or a railway home again. The sensation of sitting in a comfortable car after a long walk and a country meal is a luxury beyond any that was or is enjoyed by a Roman Emperor or an American millionaire.

Local Mail Clerk Hurt

Yesterday morning Mr. Holgate, a G.T.R. mail clerk, met with a painful accident. It seems that as the train pulled into Peterborough Holgate leaped from it, mail bag in hand, to collect the letters in the box. On his return he had his right foot run over by a mail truck. The truck was heavily loaded with mail bags, and it must have crushed Mr. Holgate's foot very badly. The injured man was assisted into the train by some of the men standing about, but looked after business until he reached Toronto.

What Is Happiness?

"What is happiness?" asks James Bryce in the Atlantic. "Is it pleasure and, if so, what is pleasure? Aristotle gave us a definition of pleasure, or, rather, perhaps a description, since the logicians say that you cannot define an ultimate fact which has not been much improved upon. It is not, however, psychological definitions that need concern us, but rather this question, which occupied the utilitarian school seventy years ago, whether the pleasures taken in the aggregate as constituting happiness are to be subjected to a qualitative as well as a quantitative analysis. Shall we measure them by the intensity by which they are felt or by the fineness and elevation of the feeling to which they appeal? Is the satisfaction which Pericles felt in watching the performance of a drama of Sophocles at an Athenian festival greater or less than the satisfaction which one of his slaves felt in obtaining a jar of wine?"

Lungs That Are Starved.

It is a fact that most of us are victims of our own lazy respiration and deprive ourselves of oxygen that is so necessary if we would keep our bodies at their highest point of efficiency. Oxygen is absolutely necessary to the existence of animal life. Man gets oxygen from air breathed into his lungs. Besides introducing oxygen into the blood, the lungs act as excretory organs, removing undesirable elements from the system at each expiration. In ordinary or unconscious breathing only 10 to 12 per cent of the air in the lungs is changed at each breath, leaving 80 to 90 per cent of the lung capacity filled with stale air. Forced or conscious breathing of pure air ventilates the lungs, driving out the 80 to 90 per cent of the stationary or stale air. All bedroom windows and doors should be wide open during sleep, thus connecting the lungs directly with pure air of the outside world.—Delineator.

Good Coal Stock Is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Bagnon Mines just north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 30 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 330 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crow's Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $250.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Woman's World

NONAH NINAH [illegible]

The Japanese Prima Donna Who Is Singing In Europe.

Lovers of music in Europe are being regaled these days by the superb singing of Nonah Ninah Kamajosh, a full blooded Japanese girl, though her facial lineaments have more of a Caucasian than Mongolian aspect. She is small of stature, but her soprano voice astounds admirers by its remarkable volume.

Only nineteen years old is Nonah. She is the daughter of a hotel proprietor in Jesselton, on the island of Borneo, where she was born.

Borneo being a Dutch possession, it was but natural that her parents sent her to Amsterdam to perfect the musical talent which she betrayed at a tender age. The Dutch composer, Cortier, trained her in technique, and she graduated with high honors from the Amsterdam Academy of Music. She became the protegee of Queen Wilhelmina and of her mother, Queen Emma, and was enabled to continue her studies in France, Italy and Germany till she is now recognized as a soprano of great promise. Just now she is singing to vast audiences in the Riviera and middle Europe.

NONAH NINAH KAMAJOSH.

Care of Clothes.

The woman who knows how to put away her belongings is not only neat, but economical, and generally smart in appearance. When she comes in from a walk she never hangs up her coat by the loop inside the collar. If she puts it away in the cupboard she uses a coat hanger; if she leaves it around the room, knowing that she may need it soon, she disposes it over the back of a chair, that will keep it in shape. The skirts of her gowns never have a stringy look, because they are always hooked and then hung up by two loops. For a tailor made skirt she uses a small coat hanger, with the ends bent down a little. This keeps the skirt in excellent shape and causes it to hang in even folds. The strings of her underskirt are tied, and the garment is hung by the loops, thus never showing a bump where it has rested on the hook.

For the same reason her blouses are always hung by the armholes unless they have hanging loops. Handsome ones are stuffed with tissue paper and are then laid in drawers or boxes.

Shoes are easily kept in shape by slipping a pair of trees in them as soon as they are removed from the feet. If trees are not available, newspaper will do if it is stuffed in tight. It is well to roll each veil on a stiff piece of paper. A single fold will often spoil the set of a veil and sometimes even mar the expression of a face. Gloves should always be removed by turning them wrong side out. They should then be turned back again, blown into shape and each finger smoothed out.

Hats of course should be kept out of the dust and placed so that the trimming will not be disarranged. Furs also should be protected from dust, and a muff should always be stood on end.

If women realized that most of their belongings are lying idle more than they are being worn, they would perhaps be more attentive to these little niceties, which are small things in themselves, but go far toward keeping them looking trim. The perfection of each detail is noticeable in the woman who has mastered the art of putting things away.

How to Wash Colored Hosiery.

With colored hosiery in vogue as at present the matter of washing it without having it fade presents a problem. A common mistake is made in using very hot water and rubbing with soap. The latter especially should never be done. Turn the stockings wrong side out. Have the water lukewarm only. Put a little borax into it, with a ends of pure laundry soap, preferably the white kind. Let the stockings remain in this for ten minutes, then rub briskly with the hands. From this water put them into clear water with only borax and after that into other clear water of the same temperature for rinsing. Do not wring at any time, but squeeze in the hands, for stockings to keep their color best should not be treated. Pressing will not be necessary either if they have not been pulled awry in taking from the water.

After squeezing take each hose carefully and pull into shape, putting the hand inside down to the toes and bringing it up with the fingers outspread to smooth away wrinkles. Pin each one on the line as soon as wrinkles are out, having the toe up. In this way the water will drip out, whereas if the toe is down the water

Dutch pepper in the water will help to set the color before the first washing, and a little salt answers the same purpose. A weak alum water is also good for black.

Children's white stockings require most careful washing, for they become very dirty about the knees, yet soap should not be rubbed on.

The small boy who gets dirt on his stockings presents a problem wherein gasoline had best be used. Put hosiery thus soiled by itself in a basin and pour over kerosene. Let the stockings stand in this for twenty minutes. Into a jug put very hot water and enough ammonia or washing soda to make it slippery. Pour off the oil and pour over the water, stirring the stockings in it with a spoon. Let stand for a moment and toss into suds. All the dirt will by this time have been taken out, and the rest of the washing is simple.

How to Tell Cut Glass.

This valuable note was given by a man working in one of the best known glass houses in the country: Many women have beautiful pieces of glassware which they think genuine cut glass, yet there are many hundreds of pieces which are only clever imitations, and there is only one known means whereby even an expert can detect the genuine from the imitation. If you will move your fingers along the inside of a piece of cut glass you will observe that the surface is perfectly smooth, while little indentations will be found in the blown glass. This is caused by the shrinkage of the glass after the pieces are blown. The roughness is noticeable not from looks, but the slight indentations over the surface. Heavy glass and glass with cut edges are no indication of the ware being genuine cut glass, for it is now possible to blow glass several inches thick, while the deceptive cut edge is done with powerful chemicals. In purchasing any cut glass if you will remember to carefully examine the inside as herein mentioned you can satisfy yourself that you are not paying for something which is not genuine, and there are more imitations on the market than one might suppose.

Your Husband's People.

Be as courteous and considerate to your husband's people as you would be to your own.

Do not think that every fault found, every disagreeable word uttered, is directed at you.

Don't gossip to your husband about his people. Tell him of the pleasant things they do and not of the unpleasant things.

Do not try to keep him from them. Encourage his devotion to those of his own kin and you can be very certain it will not be greater than it is for you.

Be helpful if you can to them. Be hospitable, but do not overflow with confidences that you had better keep to yourself.

When you married your husband you married his family, in a way, and you can show no greater love and tenderness to him than by giving and inviting love and respect from his people.

A Finish For Underwear.

A favorite finish for the neck of nightgowns, chemise and corset covers is to work a row of small buttonholed scallops all around the edge, afterward putting a piece of val lace underneath the scallops.

The combination of lace and embroidery is carried out still further by a series of lace motifs set at regular intervals apart, a few simple sprays of French embroidery surrounding each motif.

The scallops which finish the neck outline should not be stamped until after the shoulder seams are stitched.

An Ingenious Device.

An ingenious woman, who does a great deal of home sewing, has discovered that little bags of sand are most helpful in her work. The tiny bags are only about 3 by 4 inches in size, being made from all sorts of heavy, nondescript scraps of material. Rendered quite heavy by their sand filling, these bags are used to hold down patterns when one is cutting out, thus avoiding much of the more laborious pinning process. Besides, the odd little weights are useful to keep parts of unmade dresses from blowing or slipping off the sewing table.

A Big Fraud.

Talk about your fraudulent advertisements! A certain thin woman sent 50 cents in stamps the other day to an advertiser who in large type had promised to impart a sure way to get fat—for incredible as it may seem there are women who want to be fat. She received in reply this message on a post card: "Buy it at the butcher's."

A useful kitchen apron is made by taking two widths of gingham the required length; gore side widths, adding a seven inch full flounce to the center width. An apron made in this manner will be found a great protection for the bottom of skirts, as the flounce receives all the dirt.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve deficiency—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, stops brought that starved and leaves to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting cures as physicians note, were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON "Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 651 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $800,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic race knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a property qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this one an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphide crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested here will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each remittance will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Mrs. Arthur Haverstock Makes Public Statement

Tells of Her Belief in the Undying Merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 19.—When interviewed at her home at 194 Argyle street, Mrs. Haverstock was quite willing to talk of her peculiarly unfortunate case. "I was always blue and depressed, felt weak, languid and utterly unfit for any work. My stomach was so disordered that I had no appetite. What I did eat disagreed I suffered greatly from dizziness and sick headache and feared a nervous breakdown. Upon my druggist's recommendation I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I felt better at once. Every day I improved. In six days I was a well woman, cured completely after different physicians had failed to help me. It is for this reason that I strongly urge sufferers with stomach or digestive troubles to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Dr Hamilton's Pills strengthen the stomach, improve digestion, strengthen the nerves and restore debilitated systems to health By cleansing the blood of long-standing impurities, by bringing the system to a high point of vigor, they effectually chase away weariness, depression and disease. Good for young and old, for men, for women, for children. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Yesterday afternoon one of the fire brigade horses hitched to a truck in front of the hall on Aylmer St., suddenly became frightened and started off. It turned the corner of Charlotte street and at the G.T.R. track, struck Giles delivery wagon. The frightened animal turned up Bethune street, where it collided with a telegraph post, leaving the truck behind. The frightened horse ran the block to its stable. Fortunately no one was injured, but the truck and delivery wagon were damaged.

Inaid manner the impossibility of fixing the sewer, incidentally giving details as to the levels and hogback of the sewer. The outlet portion is 18 inches under water and the sewerage must go backwards. The board should take steps at once to get their end of the sewer into first-class condition so the City Council could throw no reflections on the work of the board.

Mr. Pringle said he had asked Mr. Bartlett if this is a favorable time of year to do the work, and the latter replied emphatically "Yes."

School Inspector Mowat then addressed the board and noted that after visiting the various rooms he had come to the conclusion that the Peterborough schools are in good order. Applause

Mr. Bill moved, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that a copy of the resolution regretting the withdrawal of late Inspector Duncan Walker, read by the mover be sent to Mr. Walker.—Carried

Mr. Robinson moved that the schools be closed for Xmas holidays from Friday, Dec. 20th, to Monday, January 6th.—Carried

Mr Dumble moved that a strong resolution of regret over the withdrawal and, incidentally, appreciation of the past services of Principal Fessenden, read by the mover, be sent to Mr. Fessenden.—Carried with applause.

The meeting then adjourned.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe obstinate, hang-on chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

FARMING MUST BE PROTECTED FROM BIG ORGANIZED INTERESTS

Throw off the Lethargy of Political Indifference --In Some Cases the Farmers Have Lost Confidence in Their Abili y to do Anything

Toronto, Dec. 4—"The farmers of the whole continent are beginning to realize the need of some efficient organization to protect their industry from the highly organized interests which now surround them on every side."

This statement is from the address of Mr. J. G. Lethbridge, Master of the Dominion Grange, at the opening of the session this afternoon. The chief subject before which is the union of the Grange and the Farmers' Association.

SHOULD UNITE FORCES.

Continuing he said: "It has long been felt by members of the Grange as well as by members of the Farmers' Association, that the two organizations should unite their forces into one strong, aggressive movement, and this, I am pleased to inform you, has been partially accomplished at the annual meeting of the Farmers' Association held in this hall in September last, and for the purpose of completing that union we are more especially called together at this time. I extend a hearty welcome to the delegates from the Farmers' Association present today, and I trust we may be able to consolidate our forces in such a way that it will strongly appeal to the farmers of this Dominion to unite with us, so that we can make our influence felt to a greater extent than ever before in the interests of the tillers of the soil, knowing that whatever promotes the welfare of agriculture promotes the welfare of every other industry.

"Is it not a fact that there are certain conditions existing that must be met and overcome to obtain results desired by the farmer? What legislation is needed must be secured by combined effort; as an individual among six million people the farmer is helpless to procure same to obtain relief. The moment the farmer attempts to relieve any burden created by unjust taxation or unequal distribution of it, it makes no difference in what direction, he is met by an organized force. No argument need be at this time to convince any intelligent farmer that such is the case. It is not enough that he complains and wants something done, but he is morally bound to do something himself, and not merely wish it done. He has the power, and it is his duty to use that power so as to make it available and his influence felt, and if he cannot make his influence felt as an individual, his duty is to make it so through his organized efforts.

"Every farmer owes it to society to assist in securing honest legislators and just representation.

LETHARGY IN POLITICS.

"That a lethargy exists among farmers in regard to political matters is evident from the class of legislators that represent them, composed as it is, almost wholly of men from other professions and possessing but little interest in the affairs of the farmer. The farmer has submitted so long to the power that is that in many places he has lost confidence in his ability to do anything and above all, needs the stimulating influence of a farmers' organization to awaken his energies and give him courage. He must be educated

The Curtis Bros. Conclude Busiest Year Beats Past Records

The many friends and customers of Messrs. Curtis Bros., the leading brick manufacturers of central Ontario, will be pleased to learn that this well known firm, which have suspended operations for this season were kept busier this year than ever before in their long experience.

Their total output of brick was 4,200,000, which is a quarter of a million more than in 1906. This is a sufficient guarantee of the excellence and reliability of the bricks made by this firm.

Jack Tait After Longboat's Record

Next Saturday Mr. Jack Tait, the West End Y.M.C.A. man, who did so well Tuesday night, will attempt to lower Longboat's record for two miles and a half in Toronto, providing the weather is favorable. The mark made by Longboat is 12.46. Those who saw Tait run here, think he has a good chance to beat the Indian's time.

Tait's trainer is C. A. Ashley, Provincial director of the West End Y.M.C.A., and his brother, Mr. Will Tait, advises him to a great extent. He has been running since spring, and was in great shape for Tuesday's meet, as he showed when he so easily won the three-mile invitation race.

Village of Lakefield is Flourishing

Contradictory Replies to Questions Asked as to Local Option

Yesterday a Times representative was in Lakefield in the interests of this city, and found things flourishing in that pretty little burg. One surprising feature of the business life of the village, was the bustling crow of people, who all day thronged the Traders' Bank there. It may surprise our readers to learn that during several visits made to that bank during the day, enforced by others ahead, The Times saw more people doing business, and having to await their respective turns at the various wickets than are to be seen in the city at some of our local banks.

The matter of local option, now in force there, was somewhat naturally enquired about, together with its enforcement. It was funny to hear the varied and absolutely contradictory answers given by people questioned. Some said, "Why not a drop of liquor is being sold, and the people who formerly spent their money on whiskey, are now saving it" (the money); others would say, 'Oh, the act is a farce. One can get all one wants easily, and the nonsensical farce is making as many drunkards as before." Again, others would reply, "Liquor is being sold, but in smaller quantities. The practical men selling as under the Crook's Act, is putting a damper on all classes of business."

Those interested can shake the answers together and possibly an average result of the opinion might nearly hit the truth. Quite a number of local people have lately got into a habit of driving out of a afternoon and after having dinner or supper with Mr. Thos. Darry, at his hotel, enjoy a moonlight sleigh drive home later. The river is still open only the bay on which Messrs. Lillicrap and Tait's mill is situated, being frozen up. Several men were seen out rowing in punts which looked odd work although reminiscent of the summer.

New Company Formed in Peterborough

Another new company has been incorporated with headquarters in this city, which will carry on the business of real estate, insurance, etc., collecting and auditing accounts, etc. The name and title of the company is the United Agency Co., Ltd.

The names, descriptions and addresses of the original incorporators of the company are: John Oliver Fife Otonabee; Hugh Patterson Lindsay, Peterborough, and William Franklin Nelson, Peterborough, insurance agents; Roland Maxwell Glover, Peterborough, accountant; Ernest Victor Frederick, Peterborough, physician, and Peter Spers Ewing, of the village of Warkworth, township clerk.

The real estate branch of the company will be given most particular attention, under a most capable and experienced manager.

The company has made a contract with a life insurance company in Canada, whose agents will promote the interests of the company, not only in life business, but accident, fire, employers' liability and marine.

SHOULD WOMEN SMOKE IN PUBLIC? SOME APPROVE OF IT

A Majority of New York's Best Hotels and Cafes Will Not Tolerate It--Actress Starts Question

New York, Dec. 5—Whether women of fashion may smoke cigarettes in the dining and tea rooms of New York hotels and restaurants is a much-agitated question today, as a result of Mrs. Patrick Campbell's essay at smoking at the Hotel Plaza a few days ago.

Decided opinions pro and con were given to a newspaper man regarding the growing desire of many New York and foreign women to smoke in public after dinner. At a majority of the best-known hotels and cafes the positive statement was made that smoking by women would not be tolerated.

It was said at two of the most famous of Broadway restaurants, however, that no serious objection was made by the management, provided the women were well behaved, and did not attract too much notice.

It is said uncommon at these two restaurants for a beautifully gowned woman to draw forth her cigarette and smoke it with as genuine enjoyment as the men derive from their cigars. Such not so would have been called scandalous a few years ago, but a cosmopolitan element has come into the life of the metropolis, which appears to be the forerunner of indiscriminate public smoking by women.

ACTRESSES DEFEND CUSTOM.

Mrs. Campbell, whose cigarette at the Plaza caused all the discussion, is out of town, but Miss Connie Ediss, of the "Girl Behind the Counter," and Miss Blanche Ring, of "The Boy, What Why," were emphatic that women should be allowed to smoke in public if they choose, and that many women here do smoke when they choose.

"There is no reason why Mrs. Campbell's cigarette should have been de trop," said Miss Ediss last night. "I have lived most of my life abroad, and I know from personal observation that women smoke in all the hotels and restaurants in London, and on the Continent. The fact of their smoking is taken as a matter of course.

"If Mr. Martin has said no one may make it the Cafe Martin. I think he has taken a step in the right direction. New York grows more cosmopolitan every year, and the time should not be far off when the smoking of a cigaret by a woman in a restaurant will attract no more attention than the cigar of her escort."

BLANCHE RING IS OUTSPOKEN.

Blanche Ring was equally outspoken.

"Why shouldn't a woman smoke in public if she chooses?" she demanded. "Personally I don't smoke, because cigarets hurt my singing. But I have smoked, and I see no harm in it.

"It all depends, of course, on how a woman conducts herself while smoking. If the smoking is a matter of vulgar display or silly affectation, the matter is different. But where a woman is used to smoking her after-dinner cigaret, there can be no possible objection.

"It well bred American women smoke with evident enjoyment in public places abroad. I fail to see why these same women and others can make any violent objection to the custom here."

Mrs. Clinton R. Elek, national president of the Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a noted clubwoman, decidedly does not approve. At her home, No. 175 West Fifty-eighth St., she declared last night that women should make it known in no uncertain manner that smoking by women in public will never be tolerated in America.

"I hope I shall never see the day," said Mrs. Peck, "when women are allowed to smoke in public dining rooms of hotels and restaurants in this city. Smoking by women is unhealthy, it is unwomanly and unAmerican."

CLINGS TO OLD IDEAS.

"I do not believe Americans will ever so lose their old-fashioned con-

Four Children Burned to Death in a House at Three Rivers, Que.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—A report received here from Three Rivers stated that last evening about ten o'clock, Mrs Dupont, living on St. Marguerite road, noticed that the house was on fire. Her husband was absent at a school meeting. Mrs. Dupont, although lightly clad, ran out to give the alarm to the neighbors, leaving six children asleep in the house. Before help arrived, four of the children perished, one being only four months old.

Will Require $20,000

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—The selection of the athletes to represent Canada at the Olympic games in London next year is not likely to be started until next spring, outside of perhaps two or three crack skaters.

The first move after the Central Committee is in shape will be to devise means to raise the necessary funds to send the Canadian contingent of athletes over to the games. To-day it is said that about $20,000 will be required, and this will be the amount that the committee will attempt to raise.

The Central Committee will consist of simply three representatives of the C.A.A.U. and three from the Federation of Athletes and the three representatives of the Olympic Committee for Canada. This committee will have power to add to its number only upon the unanimous vote of the entire nine members.

The Olympic Committee representation in Canada, Col. Hanbury-Williams and Mr. P. D. Ross, have not selected the third member to assist them.

Clergy Advised as to Burial Duties

Must See That Burial Permit is Issued Before Removal of Corpse

The following circular, which is self explanatory, has been received by the clergymen of the various local churches, viz.:

Dear Sir,—Your attention is respectfully called to the following provisions of the Act respecting the registration of births, marriages and deaths, being sub-division 1 of Section 29 of the said Act, which reads as follows:

"No undertaker, sexton, householder or other person, shall engage in the burial of the dead body of any person, unless a certificate of registration (burial permit) has been previously issued to the knowledge of the person so removing or engaging in the burial of the dead body" In order, therefore, to prevent as far as possible the registration of all deaths happening in the province, your attention is directed to the above statutory provision and in every case where you are requested to officiate at the burial of any person, and to remove the body of any person, and to request the production of the official certificate of registration of death (burial permit) as authorized by the Registrar General, and bearing on the reverse side the signature of the undersigned. Should any burials occur without the above mentioned statute being complied with, notification should at once be made to this department. Trusting for a ready compliance with the law

Grand New Serial in Morning Times

The Times, Peterborough's earliest conveyor of the most recent current events with its usual desire to give its readers the most interesting reading matter in conjunction with the news of the day, will on Saturday give the initial chapters of that most thrilling novel, since dramatized, by Mrs. Mary J. Holmes, entitled "Dora Deane." To say much about the dramatic power and thrilling interest of the novels emanating from the pen of Mrs. Holmes, would be to impart ignorance to many of our readers, most of whom have been fascinated by the works of this talented authoress. Be sure to save Saturday's issue of The Times and the following numbers containing Dora Deane.

Mrs. Brusso Wishes Tommy to Leave the Prize Ring

Galt, Dec. 4—"Tommy Burns won? I wonder how he did it," was the exclamation heard from Moir's supporters in all public buildings in the town last night, although all the Prestonians were backers of the man who made Preston prominent. When the result of the fight became known wild excitement prevailed for some time. There was considerable betting throughout the hotels, foundries, factories and mills.

The Reporter called on Noah Brusso's mother, Mrs. Coleman this morning, and had a short interview. "I waited anxiously to hear the result and I must say I never dreamt that my son would be such a pugilist. I expect him home soon. I hope he did not get hurt and also wish he would leave the ring. I expect a communication from him at any moment."

If the champion comes home for Christmas there is no doubt but that he will receive a royal reception.

Fred McGrath Will Leave for Toronto and Take to Running Under I.C. Colors

Freddy McGrath, the local printer, who retired from the game after winning the quarter-mile championship of Canada at the C.A.A.U. fall games at Varsity oval, in 1904, has decided to don running togs again.

Tuesday evening at the local Harriers indoor meet he made his first appearance on a running track in three years, winning the 50-yard handicap dash from scratch in 5 1-5 seconds. He ran under colors of the Irish Canadian Club of Toronto, of which he is a member, and showed that he was just as good as ever.

To a reporter Freddy stated that he intended to remove to Toronto, and under the direction of the Irish Canadian take up running again in earnest.

A fifty-flat hundred yard runner and one of the fastest quarter milers in the country he will be a welcome addition to track athletics making as a good running mate for Bobby Kerr in the sprints.

Charred Remains of Men Discovered in a Mine at Fayette

Pittsburg, Dec. 4.—The bodies of twenty-five of the miners caught by an explosion of fire damp Sunday night in the Nemo mine of the United Coal Company, located near Fayette City, thirty-five miles south of this city, had been reached by rescuers at four o'clock this morning. The bodies were burned and charred almost beyond recognition.

The rescuers are now nearing the end of the workings, and they have found no signs of life anywhere. In the opinion of the owners of the mine few if any more victims will be found. Among miners and others in the village there is a firm belief that the total number of victims is between forty and fifty.

After finding eleven bodies near the twenty-ninth entry shortly before mid-night, the rescuers went to work with renewed energy to explore the remaining seven entries.

There are thirty-six entries in all, and until the last of these has been searched the full extent of the disaster will not be known.

Because of the accumulation of gas the work of rescue in the remote sections of the mine is greatly impeded. A second explosion is a constant menace, and every precaution is being taken to avert such a calamity.

Scores of frenzied women constantly surround the pit mouth, and the special detail of officers have much trouble in preventing them from interferring with the work of rescuers.

The physicians present have been in almost constant requisition on behalf of the rescuers, who, despite the fact that they work in relays of only a fraction of an hour, are constantly being prostrated by the fumes of gas. A number of the rescuers have been taken from the scene in a serious condition.

Mr. Bruce Ridpath May Return Home This Winter

Toronto, Dec. 4.—Bruce Ridpath, formerly of Lakefield, the canoe expert, who made such a hit in Germany with his marvellous stunt, may be home shortly. In a letter he inquires anxiously about the "pro" hockey situation here, and remarks that his season in Germany may close at any time. Bruce got some great press notices in Berlin. One reads:

"A water-acrobat is the newest drawing card at the Circus Busch. Mr. Ridpath, an American, 'disports' around in his pitching canoe in the water of the manege of 4m depth in such a clever way that one could desire him to teach all water-sportsmen etc., this art. All accidents on the water would then be considerably decreased. But Mr. Ridpath's act is only one of the many changes which the Pantomime "Auf der Hallig" loves, and in quite a charming way. Hundreds of people wait at the close at box-office every night."

Otonabee Octogenarian Has Passed Away

Yesterday morning Mr. James Wood of Otonabee township, passed away at his home in Villiers. The late Mr. Wood, who was over eighty years of age, was born in Scotland, but has since a youth resided in Villiers. He is survived by three sons, James, George and Robert, of Otonabee, and one daughter, Miss Mary Wood, of the same township. One brother, Mr. John Wood, of Keene, also survives.

In religion Mr. Wood was a Presbyterian, and in politics a Liberal. For many years he was actively identified with municipal matters in Otonabee, and was a member of the township council for several terms. Mr. Wood had a large number of friends and his death will be sincerely regretted.

The funeral will take place on Friday at one o'clock from Villiers, to Keene cemetery.

Cheap Fuel at Lakefield

Messrs. Lillicrap and Tait's mill at Lakefield, just at the entrance to Katchewanooka Lake, has closed down for the winter. In conversation with Mr. Lillicrap yesterday, The Times was informed that the company has had a most successful season. One point that struck our representative whilst at their mill yesterday, was the hundreds of cords of fine slabs in the yard, which the good people of Lakefield buy for $1.25 per cord. A few hundred cords sold at that price in this city would soon cause broken arms and legs among the crowds trying to get their orders in before the supply ran out.

REFORM OF HOUSE OF LORDS

Now that the question of the reform of the House of Lords seems likely to come within the range of practical political action in the United Kingdom attention is being directed to the composition of second, or upper, chambers in other countries which have popular government in some form or other, and of a more or less democratic character. A writer in the "Nineteenth Century" Magazine gives some particulars of the Japanese House of Peers, which, at the present time, are not without interest to the people of the British Empire.

It was only to be expected that with the desire apparent in almost every action of either the Government or people of Japan to utilise the experience gained by other nations, and to adopt, or modify foreign methods, to their own peculiar circumstances, we should find proofs of this in the constitution of Japan, and in the organization of the legislative and executive branches of the administration. In the composition of the Japanese Upper Chamber, or House of Peers, as it is called, a combination of some of the features found in other legislative bodies has been made, and apparently with satisfactory results. The Japanese House includes both hereditary and elected members; some selected by the Crown and others selected as representatives of the bodies to which they belong. In the House are found princes and marquises; the two highest ranks in the nobility, and very few in the number of their members. The three lowest orders of nobility each elect five of their members to represent them, in a manner similar to that by which the Scotch and Irish Peers are represented in the British House of Lords. The Crown appoints a certain number of members from men eminent in some line of activity, or who have rendered service to the State. These retain their seats for life. Then the towns and certain districts each elect a representative to the Upper House. These representatives, and also those of the three orders of nobility, hold their seats for seven years.

The Constitution was created in 1889, and in the eighteen years which have elapsed since then it has been found to work smoothly, while the relations between the Upper and Lower houses have been satisfactory. The Upper Chamber has been singularly efficient, as might have been anticipated from the manner in which it is organized, and the good material from which its membership is drawn. In Japan we find in active operation, and working successfully, the Upper Chamber of a legislative body which is very similar in its composition to the schemes proposed by Lord Rosebery and others for the reform of the British House of Lords, and it is not improbable that the Japanese model may be studied for what it is worth. Of course, there is a very great difference in all respects between Great Britain and Japan, and no comparison is possible between the situations in the two countries. But there are circumstances which will not make necessary such diversity in the legislative machines, and in this regard it is of interest to know that it was an Englishman who drafted the Japanese Constitution—an instrument that apparently has justified his hopes regarding it.

THE KAISER'S VISIT

As was to be expected the visit of the Kaiser to England has been made the basis of sensational articles in the press. We have had circumstantial accounts of the new shuffle of the international cards; new groupings of the Powers and secret understandings that are to make important changes in the situation. That these articles have been prepared with a particular desire to tickle American vanity is, we think, apparent from the remark that while Great Britain and Germany are to enter into an alliance, nothing is to be done by the allies without a previous intimation being given to Washington. But the gem of the whole fabrication is to be found in the statement that King Edward is now inclined to regret his attempts to isolate Germany and will adopt a new policy which will bring the Fatherland into close touch and accord with Great Britain and the nations with whom that Power is on the most friendly terms. Surely the fog that covered the Solent with a black pall when the Kaiser arrived must have obscured the journalistic perception of the authors of these extraordinary stories, and have made their understanding as dense as they seem to have imagined was that of the readers of their sensational stories.

Nothing that has occurred in British foreign policy during the last three or four years can fairly be alleged as showing a desire on the part of either King Edward or the British Cabinet to isolate Germany. That in that period the relations between Great Britain and some of the European Powers have become more friendly than they were previously is a matter of history. But in no case can it be shown that these improved relations were designed to isolate Germany, or that the result of them would necessarily effect that. It is, indeed, true that the change in the international situation may have interfered with the Bismarckian policy of stirring up misunderstandings between the Powers, especially between Great Britain and Russia, so that opportunities might be afforded Germany of acting as the "honest broker" in the adjustment of such disputes, and with some compensation for her services. There is nothing sinister, nothing that threatens, or is intended to threaten, the foreign relations of Germany, in the Anglo-French entente; the agreement with Spain and France respecting their interests in the Mediterranean, or in the Treaty with Russia. All these negotiations and understandings make for the peace of the world, and Germany can become a sharer in the pact whenever the Kaiser wills it so.

A Business Proposition.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

The Alternative.

At a fancy dress ball for children a policeman was stationed at the door and was instructed by the committee not to admit any adults. Shortly after the beginning of the ball a woman came running up to the door and demanded admission.

"I'm sorry, mum," replied the policeman, "but I can't let any one in but children."

"But my child is dressed as a butterfly," exclaimed the woman, "and she has forgotten her wings."

"No matter," replied the policeman; "orders is orders, so you'll have to let her go as a caterpillar."—London Answers.

Lights Out!

An irascible sergeant, going his nightly round of the barracks in order to make sure that all lights had been extinguished, noticed that a window was illuminated. He roused the occupants of the room. "Put out that light," he ordered, "and be quick about it!"

"But it's moonlight," explained a private.

"I don't care what it is," roared the sergeant; "put it out!"—London Graphic.

Costly Monotony in Dress.

Our clothes are all alike, and this monotony has led to unlimited extravagances. What has not been done to make the eternal pinafore frock look original? New elaborations are invented daily, each one more expensive than the last, but nobody is deceived. It is still the old pinafore, only a little madder, a little dearer, every day.—London Graphic.

An Unfortunate Interruption.

"George was just going to propose to me last night."

"And what happened?"

"A tire blew up, and then he couldn't think of anything else."

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. (2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

The Little Red House.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Jessie Morgan.

Brady, whizzing along Riverside in his big automobile, was a lonely man.

Before he had made his money he had lived on a farm, and in his trips back and forth from town there had been the greetings of good neighbors and the welcome of the farm hands, and at home the sociability of the meals at the great table, where maids and men gathered with the family.

There was no sociability in New York. For days he had wandered into the theaters and through the hotels, avoiding instinctively the men who would have cultivated him merely for what they could get out of him, but finding no friends.

At last, in desperation, he had learned to drive an automobile and spent his days in making long trips into the country, hobnobbing with the farmers who leaned over the fence rails to talk to him and leaving them wistfully when they returned to their toil.

Today as he sped down the drive, with its rows of cliffike buildings, he yearned for some cheery spot where he might eat and drink with a friend. And it was at this moment that his eye was caught by a sign in the window of the little red house.

The little red house was set at the edge of a vacant lot, and it seemed a very shabby neighbor to the stately white apartment house that flanked it on the left. It had a sloping roof, a few vines clung to the porch, and just above the door was the sign that had attracted Brady's notice, and the sign read, "Fresh Cherry Pies."

Brady swept up to the curb and climbed out of his machine. His great form filled the low doorway and shut out the sunlight, so that at first he could not see clearly the figure behind the counter.

"I DON'T WONDER THAT PEOPLE CAME," COMMENTED BRADY.

"I came in to ask about the cherry pies," he said. "Can I eat one here or must I carry it away with me?"

There was a ripple of laughter, and Brady moved to one side and saw that the person in charge was a girl, fresh faced, pretty and trim.

"You can eat it here," she said, taking a pie out of the case. "People usually take them away, but there is a little table and a chair, and I could make you a cup of coffee."

"Could you?" Brady's tone was eager. "I'm awfully hungry, and it is so pleasant here."

She was cutting the pie, but she looked up as he said that. "Oh, do you like it?" she asked. "I hope every one will. I am just beginning business, and I want to make a fortune."

Brady, who had made his fortune in oil, was much interested in this more picturesque method.

"Do you sell many?" he asked.

"Twenty yesterday," she confided. "I worked at night to get them ready, but it seemed as if every one wanted cherry pies. The people in the apartment house came, and I have sold out everything today except this one pie."

It was a beautiful pie, with a delicate brown crust over,ald with powdered sugar and all rosy and juicy and delicious within.

"I don't wonder that people came," commented Brady as he sat down at the little table, which she had spread with a spotless cloth.

She was like a child in her delight at his compliment.

"It was the only thing in the world that I knew how to do," she said, "and when I was left alone and lost the little income that my father had left me I decided to bake for a living."

She was sitting opposite him, and he liked the unconsciousness with which she gave him her confidence.

"I lived in the country when I was a little girl, and my mother taught me to cook."

"I'm from the country, too," Brady said.

"I thought so," she said, with a wise nod. "I think that is why I could tell you things. One can't always be sure of city men."

"Don't you hate the city?" Brady asked.

She shook her head. "No," she said. "It would be beautiful if one had friends or any one to care."

"Well, that's what I mean," Brady said. "It's no good lonesome."

He had finished his pie, and he got up reluctantly. "I'm sorry," he said, "but I guess I'd better go."

She went to the door with him.

"What a beautiful automobile!" she said when she saw it.

"Yes, it's pretty nice," Brady agreed. "But it isn't much fun driving around

"No, I suppose not," sympathetically.

There was a moment's silence. Then Brady spoke his thoughts boldly.

"Let me drive you out into the country."

She hesitated. "I don't believe I ought," she said.

Brady looked down at her. "Can't you trust me?" he asked.

Her eyes met his steady blue ones. "Yes," she said simply and went to put on her hat.

"You see," she told him as they swept along between the green fields, "if I sell twenty pies a day at 25 cents that will be $5 a day. I ought to clear $100 a month." And she leaned back, with a sigh of content.

Brady, whose income was $100 or more a day, asked with interest, "What are you going to do with all that money?"

"Save it and buy a cottage in the country, with a fireplace and a cat and a dog and a cow."

Brady's soul was stirred by this picture of domesticity, and he asked anxiously:

"Will you bake cherry pies?"

"Yes," she planned. "I am going to have a cherry tree and an apple tree. You have never tasted such apple tarts as I can make."

Brady turned in his seat and looked at her. "I am going to taste them," he informed her. "I am going to come and see you in your cottage."

She laughed. "Such air castles!" was her way of settling the question.

But Brady's chin was set with squareness, and there was determination in his tones. "I don't see how I can wait for you to build that cottage. I shall do it myself, and there shall be a fireplace—such a fireplace—with two big chairs on the hearth"—he paused expressively—"and a cat, a comfortable tabby cat, and a nice, confiding dog, and a mild eyed cow, and I am going to invite you to my cottage to make my apple tarts."

She smiled at him without self consciousness. "What dreamers we are!"

"Well, maybe you think it's a dream" Brady's tone was dogged—"but some day I shall ask you to come."

There was no mistaking what he meant.

"Please don't," she begged.

Brady gave her a whimsical glance.

"Well, I suppose it is too soon to talk about it," he agreed. "But that cottage will need something besides a cow and a dog and a cat for me to be happy. It will need a wife and a woman worth loving—and until today I hadn't seen such a woman."

"You have known me but three hours."

"Three hours or three years! What's the difference when I know I have found the one I want?"

They were back again on the city drive, and the little red house was in sight.

"We don't have to settle anything now," Brady told her quietly. "Of course I couldn't expect you to feel the way I do. But what I want to know is this—may I come again?"

She hesitated; then, as he lifted her out of the car with his strong arms, she smiled up at him.

"Yes," she said, "if you like you may come again."

A Tart Answer.

"I was writing by my study window," writes a clergyman, "and a little child was busying himself by throwing beans at the window. Losing all patience, I rushed out of the house, determined to frighten the boy. It happened that his mother was coming after him at the same moment, and we met by his side.

"I stormed at the child, and then, as the mother seemed excessively stupid, I gave her a piece of my mind. Finally as a grand and overwhelming conclusion to my scolding I said:

"A little discipline now with your children will save you much pain if not disgrace in the future. Think of that, madam—that is, if you ever do think."

"I think, is it?" she replied. "I think if you'd go back to your bedroom and wipe the ink off av your nose you'd be prettier even if you didn't make so much av a show av it."

"It was not a soft answer, but it had the effect of turning away wrath."—London Tit-Bits.

An Ideal Sitter.

A Washington artist while sketching in North Carolina was one day in search of a suitable background of dark pines for a picture he had planned. At last he found the precise situation he was seeking, and, best of all, there chanced to be a pretty detail in the figure of an old colored woman in the foreground.

The artist asked the old woman to remain seated until he had sketched her. She assented with the greatest good nature, but in a few minutes asked how long the artist would be.

"Oh, only about a quarter of an hour," he answered.

Three minutes or so later the old darky again inquired—this time with manifest anxiety—how long the operation of sketching would take.

"Not long," was the reassuring reply. "But why do you ask so anxiously?"

"Oh, nuthin', sah," the old woman hastened to respond, "only I's sittin' on an ant hill, sah."—Harper's Weekly.

So much trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company's holdings consist of 331 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunnelling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $200,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 300 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1.600 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a large farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE on the way in which the company shall be managed. Our stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and we firmly believe will within a year be selling at a par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you can determine of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve a share. To-day.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be spread. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from be mine—dividends will be reaped—a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given to a statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $4.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 6 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 100-ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars."

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested how will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Should Women Smoke?

exceptions of what a woman may or may not do in public, that the cigarette, or the after-dinner cigaret will become universal.

"I am utterly opposed to women smoking, whether in public or private, and my sentiments are echoed by those of the American women."

John Martin, proprietor of the Cafe Martin, said he had always provided a private smoking room for women, and that for years women had been allowed to smoke in the private dining rooms. Now that the well conducted women may smoke in the public dining room, and restaurants, all over the house, in fact, with the exception of the Broadway cafe.

"The smoking of a cigarette," he said, "depends upon the woman. We do not encourage the custom, but we do not forbid it. If women we know desire to smoke, they are permitted to do so, provided they do not make a display of themselves. Smoking is permitted everywhere abroad, and American women are as addicted to the habit there as are their European sisters. I believe the time is coming when all hotels and restaurants will permit women to smoke in their public rooms."

NEITHER URGED NOR OPPOSED.

At Rector's it was stated that women have smoked there at times, while the habit is not encouraged, neither is it frowned upon.

"It all depends upon the women," it was said. "Women we know as addicted to cigaret smoking are permitted to smoke. That is, they are not seen. It involves discretion upon the part of those in charge of the public restaurants. The habit is gaining ground in America as a result of European travel. Everywhere there the custom is universal and attracts no attention."

At the Plaza, Manhattan, Belmont, Waldorf, Knickerbocker, Astor, and other big hotels, it was stated by the managements that old-time social American ideas would prevail for years to come.

At the Hotel Lafayette, Raymond Orteig said women might smoke in private dining rooms, but that he did not believe the time had come when American sentiment would countenance indiscriminate public smoking by women.

Three Hundred Bulgarians Herded Like Cattle in Stock Car

Nearly All Are Destitute--Steamship Companies Promised Them Abundance of Work--Government Should Help

Toronto, Dec. 5.—"Herded like cattle in a stock car," is how Mr. Harris, property commissioner, describes the Bulgarians' condition as he found it.

A Bulgarian states that he intends to go to his native country after Christmas and bring out 500 more men, for which he will receive $8 or $10 each from the steamship companies. Word of this will be sent the Dominion government, and an effort made to stop him.

In his report the commissioner says it appears that the Cunard and Allan Lines advertised for these men, promising abundance of work with high remuneration. Eleven who arrived yesterday were refused entry to the States by the American Immigration Commissioner in the Maritime Provinces, and on his advice made Toronto their goal.

"I find 300 Bulgarians located in houses No. 9 to 51 Eastern avenue, and six buildings on Eastern avenue," says the property commissioner in his report, "while some are quartered in Gilead place and others in three houses on Front street east. These men are able-bodied, comparatively clean, and apparently healthy, their age average being about 35 years. They are mostly farm laborers, the large majority being married and having families in Europe. They hail mainly from Rusthuk, in Northern Bulgaria, and Sofia, the capital. The large proportion of these men are entirely destitute. While those in funds have but two or three dollars. About thirty have worked on railroad construction in the Dominion in the summer, and forwarded their earnings to their families in Europe. The others reached Canada in parties of from fifteen to twenty-five, during the months of October and November of this year, via the Cunard and Allan Lines, travelling mainly overland to Glasgow and Liverpool, respectively, where they shipped with the steamship companies named. In most instances they purchased transportation from Belgrade, Servia, to Toronto.

"Probably 150 secured passage through Faoum Christoff, steamship agent in Belgrade, who employs Ivan, a son of one Stoyanoff, a Macedonian, who conducts a small grocery store at No. 14 Eastern avenue, Toronto.

"All of the men in occupation of the houses referred to in the second paragraph hereof are herded like cattle in a stockk car, and at No. 51 Eastern avenue, I observed 28 men in a room about 14x30 feet. Three houses were altogether devoid of heating apparatus, and several windows were missing. I immediately provided stoves and fuel, and fires were lighted this evening.

"Two men were found to be suffering from severe colds, while at No. 17 Eastern avenue one was discovered with an acute attack of lumbago. This man was lying on a mattress laid on the floor of a room inhabited by about a dozen others. I secured the services of Dr. C. R. Cuthbertson, who prescribed for the first two and ordered the removal of the last mentioned to the General Hospital, where he was taken in the ambulance at about 7 p.m.

"I further recommend that the Federal government be asked to reimburse the City of Toronto on account of the monetary outlay in this behalf."

Mr. Hartley will not Accept the City Council's Grant of $100

(To the Editor of The Times)

Dear Sir,—In the Review of last night there was a letter signed, "Bethune Street," in which the alleged writer objected to the City Council giving a grant of $100 towards Dave Hartley, Peterborough's champion walker. Now the writer of this letter objected firstly and, I agree with him on this point, in this paltry grant of $100 being given on certain conditions. It is not my place, nor necessary to go into the subject of the conditions imposed by the council preparatory to their giving this $100.

The whole point at issue is that the writer under the pseudo name of "Bethune Street," objects to the City Council giving this trifling sum because first, "We have too many poor to fritter our money away," again, "We have too many poor families to help this winter," and lastly that Mr. Hartley is walking for the benefit of his pocket."

Now Sir, the writer of the letter in the Review is a spectre, not much of what is known as a well-to-do citizen, or he would have signed his manuscript, instead of sneaking behind a non-de-plume. Again, the inaddle of "Bethune Street" about the poor of Peterborough, is too absurd to dwell on at length. Let this writer tell when and where and to has done towards advertising Peterborough, my personal opinion is that Dave Hartley, whether he won by fair or foul means, and I assertly believe in the former, has given Peterborough throughout the whole press of this continent, more attraction than could have been gained by the expenditure of several thousands of dollars in cash.

To conclude (or forgive me Mr. Editor for transporting sporting news into the guise of a country parson's sermon, is to firstly and lastly), the dirty insinuation about Hartley walking "for the benefit of his pocket," is too absurd to need contradiction. The sentence contains its own refutation in the minds of all who knew or know Hartley. This man had trouble behind his ability, to raise the actual sum required for his walk. Still the outcome of his first great feat and his later exploit in Toronto at the Mutual street rink, under the circumstances involved, displayed, beyond the contradiction of anyone, but one non compos mentis, that Peterborough's great Canadian was in both for his "health" what extent he has ever expended one cent towards the poor of Peterborough, and his letter will command more weight.

To resume, as far as what Hartley for the glory of his town, and not "for the benefit of his pocket."

It might be added to this letter, Mr. Editor, that the writer has good means of knowing and can, if necessary, prove it, that Mr. Hartley, just before beginning his triumphant walk in the Toronto rink, was handed a paper by a "sport" offering him $2000 to lose the race. Hartley however is not built that way. It is to the regret that under existing circumstances, Mr. Hartley's refusal through pique over supposed injustice will not be recognized and that Hartley will get and accept the money. I as a heavy ratepayer will never kick over my part of the expenditure.

RATEPAYER.

Ed.—Mr. Hartley when interviewed last night by The Times, stated emphatically that he would not touch the City Council's grant.

TRAGEDY AT DETROIT REVEALED STARTLING CASE OF DECEPTION

Mrs. Griffith of Detroit Deliberately Shot Down Her Lover-Physician who was a Canadian --A Deliberate Crime

Windsor, Dec. 5.—Mrs James R. Griffith, wife of the manager of the Bookkeeper Publishing Company of Detroit, on Tuesday night, shot and fatally wounded Dr. James A. Attridge, her physician, and then turned the revolver on herself with probably fatal results.

Dr. Attridge is a Canadian, whose home is near Bridgetown. He came to this city from Highgate, Ont., fifteen years ago. In 1893 he graduated as a veterinary surgeon from the Detroit College of Medicine. During the next two years he practiced in Nortonville, Mich., came back to college, and took up the study of medicine. He graduated in 1897, and opened a practice in this city. He is 36 years old and a batchelor. The Griffiths have no children.

Besides a mother, who lives on the old homestead, in Canada, and two sisters and a brother, who all reside at home Dr. Attridge has two other brothers, J. T. Attridge, a veterinary, in Harbor Beach, Mich., and Herbert Attridge, a tailor, in Detroit.

BACK FROM HOSPITAL.

Mrs. Griffith arrived in her apartments early Tuesday evening from the hospital, where she had been for an operation, and from which she had returned with her physician. The doctor had left her. She was alone with her sister. Her home life was unhappy and left her a broken-hearted. Her home was ruined.

What were the thoughts that tortured her mind? What was it that aggravated her?

"I feel ill," she said to her sister. "Call Dr. Attridge."

The sister did as requested. That night, at Mrs. Griffith's request, was extinguished in the bedroom and turned on in the adjoining sitting room. The doctor came. Mrs. Wade discreetly retired. One shot was fired. Another shot.

Terrified, the sister fled from the room, and with screams of "Oh, my sister! My poor sister!" aroused the neighbors. The first to respond was Frank B. Hobbler. When he reached the Griffith apartments he found in the doorway between two rooms, bathed in blood, face upward, gasping for breath, the doctor. On the bed lay the woman in a pool of blood.

Mr. Hobbler notified the police and the hospitals and saw to it that the injured couple were removed with the utmost despatch.

From the preparations preceding the shooting—darkening the bedroom and lighting up the adjoining room—the brief interval between the doctor's arrival at the apartments and the shooting and the injury of the doctor, it is apparent that the woman shot her victim, not on the spur of the moment, but in the cool deliberation to murder him. He was shot as he was leaving her and standing on the full glare of the light, while she was in the dark. He was shot in the back of the head, the bullet entering the brain. There was no quarrel. Mrs. Wade heard no angry words. There was not even much time to hold an extended conversation. He perhaps saw the revolver in her hand and was flying from her, when the bullet overtook him.

WOMAN'S STATEMENT.

"It was while we were rooming on Elizabeth street that I first met Dr. James A. Attridge," said Mrs. Griffith in a statement left by her. "I met him through his being called to attend me as a physician.

"A year ago late June—on June 21, 1906—Dr. Attridge sent for me to come to his office. He had just returned to Detroit from a trip to Lansing I went to his office, and he wanted to know where Mr. Griffith was and I told him Mr. Griffith had gone to Cincinnati. He wanted to know if it would be all right for him to come up to the apartments that evening on a visit, and as he had been very friendly with Mr. Griffith I invited him. He visited me that evening and it was then that he first made known his love for me. He came frequently after that. He came again the next evening and stayed until very late.

"We continued our relations from June until February, 1907. At that time Mr. Griffith commenced to suspect that all was no right between myself and the doctor.

"I had a stormy session with Mr. Griffith and I told him at that time that I no longer loved him. He asked me if the doctor had got all my love, and I admitted it. Mr. Griffith turned very pale and told me to see the doctor and ask the doctor if he was going to do what was right by me.

"The trouble between myself and husband was caused by the trip south that I took with Dr. Attridge. I had not been in very good health and Dr. Attridge advised a change of climate, and as my heart bothered me at times, the doctor told Mr. Griffith that I was not in condition to travel alone, and Mr. Griffith said he would pay the expenses of Dr. Attridge to accompany me.

"We left Detroit on Saturday, Oct. 5th, and went direct to Baltimore, where we stayed until October 9. We registered at the Hotel Belvoir, and the doctor told me afterwards he was registered under the name of Mr. Kidridge and wife. From there we went to Washington. We registered under our own names and had separate, but connecting rooms.

"In Norfolk we registered at the Victoria Hotel as James Attridge and wife. We got to New York city, Oct. 16. In New York city we registered at the Hotel Navarre under our own names, but we had connecting rooms. This trip we took South, cost Mr. Griffith several hundred dollars.

"When I came home to Detroit, I went direct to be shot, and as I opened the door I saw a letter on the mantle from Mr. Griffith, which read: 'I have done my worst.' That note was an answer to the telegram that I sent Mr. Griffith from New York. In the telegram to Mr. Griffith I said to him, 'You can do your worst.' The reason I sent the telegram to him was that he wrote me a mean letter at New York city, that rumors were afloat about my conduct. He said that Mr. Knapp and Mr. Flesch would be on the train, etc. When this letter came the doctor and I had a quarrel in New York city.

"My husband had taken all his trunkits and belongings the day before I came back to Detroit.

"I felt sure the doctor would try to throw the blame on me.

"Finally, the husband and the doctor met at the flat. Mr. Griffith started the interview by accusing the doctor of breaking up his home.

Mrs. Goold Sentenced to Die--Her Husband Goes to Prison for Life

Monte Carlo, Dec. 5.—Death by the guillotine was the sentence imposed upon Marie St. Leger Goold, and imprisonment for life for her husband, Vere, for the murder of Emma Levin last summer. Although Goold declared that he was the murderer, the court found that he had been under the influence of liquor and therefore less responsible, while his wife was the chief instigator in the crime. The Goulds formerly lived in Montreal.

Monte Carlo, Dec. 5.—"If my husband had only let whiskey alone we would be such and prosperous today." This was the burden of Mme Goold's responses to the presiding judge yesterday during four hours of tormenting examinations. Many times she was unable to utter a sound, her lips moving inaudibly, but the judge had no mercy, showing up pitilessly the woman's adventurous career, including the short periods of outward respectability like that in Montreal. She said she and her husband had left that city with $4,000 profit from the business they had engaged in there, but in the matter of figures she contradicted herself constantly. During the rest of the examination she denied feebly all charges of having helped her husband to kill the Danish woman, Mme Levin, or of having helped to cut up the victim or of having otherwise participated in the murder, beyond trying to effect the disappearance of traces of the crime. She blamed her niece, Mlle Girodin, as being the real thief who had stolen money from a woman friend, Mrs. Gardiner, who is unable to appear as a witness on account of imminent insanity due to her name being dragged into this affair.

WEPT BITTERLY.

She further insisted Mme. Levin owed her $120, borrowed the week before the murder. The judge ridiculed this statement and prisoner had recourse to her habitual silence, declaring a little later that she only took Mme. Levin's jewels in order to throw them into the sea. The judge warned her that she was making her chances worse by her constant denials in face of indubitable evidence, but this had no effect. She wept bitterly as the presiding judge described the happy life the couple had led in Montreal and the steadfast love of the husband who even now was more generous towards her than she was to him. All this time Mr. Goold sat, behind his wife watching her twitching pale face with a dull show of imitation solicitude. When she described his drinking habits as the origin of their common ruin his face never changed expression. When her evidence contradicted his concerning her presence in the room

The Rev. Robt. Pogue Inducted at St. Paul's

Last night the services in connection with the induction of Rev. Mr. Pogue as pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, took place. There was a large public attendance, all the pews in the centre of the church and most of those at the sides, as well as the gallery, being filled.

After devotional exercises, the sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, clerk of the Presbytery, after which the induction was conducted by Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, moderator of the Presbytery of Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Millbrook, delivered the address to the pastor, and Rev. Dr. Talling, of Toronto, spoke of the duties of the congregation to the pastor and to the church.

During the evening Miss Helen Davies sang in her usual good form and voice, and the excellent choir also rendered good service.

Previous to the evening function, the ladies of the church entertained the members of the Presbytery to a dinner in the lecture room of the church.

On Monday evening a congregational reception will be tendered Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Pogue in the church, when a farewell address will be presented to Rev. Dr. Talling.

Arrested at Home of Bride

Kingston, Dec. 5.—Charles Shaw, a street railway motorman, was arrested last night in the home of his bride of twenty-four hours and landed in the police cells charged with bigamy and wife desertion. Shaw had a wife and two children, one four weeks old, on Montreal St. A few blocks off on the same street was the home of the girl whom he married on Tuesday evening. The latter is Ethel Watkins, whom Shaw deceived, and the officiating clergyman at the marriage was Rev. Charles A. Sykes, of Sydenham street Methodist church, to whom Shaw declared himself to be a single man. Shaw had everything prepared to leave for the West last night, but his lawful wife's uncle heard of his villainy, and had him arrested, when he and his new bride were receiving congratulations at the home of the latter's parents.

Shaw came here from Hamilton last spring. His first wife was formerly Miss Margaret Gascoyne, of this city. Both young women formed when the news of Shaw's rascally act was made known to them.

Weakness of China

Pekin, Dec. 5.—China's clash with both Japan and Great Britain on the subject of concessions granted to foreigners of recent years has become complicated by serious antagonism in at least two provinces—Chekiang and Shensi—to the central government in regard to the rights of recovery, and owing to the unexpected weakness of the dowager-empress's new government, of which so much was expected, China has not profited by the antagonism which is arising between her allied opponents, Great Britain and Japan.

Five Vacancies in Education Board

This year the electors of Peterborough will have to, or at least should as a public duty, turn out at the municipal elections and vote for the re-election or successors to, the five past members of the Board of Education whom the "Statute of Limitation," necessitates dethroning from office.

It might not be out of place to remind our readers that the School Board is elected on the two-year plan, and this year five of the members are retired, viz.; Messrs. John Crane, D. W. Dumble, W. H. Hill, William Pringle and Dr. Burnham. These gentlemen have all been ardent workers and steady attendants during their respective terms of office, and have served the public. Of course, they may be re-elected, and it is not beyond possibility that the five who are due to retire, will stand for re-election.

Mr. Dumble is chairman of the Queen Alexandra school Committee, Mr. Hill that on Appointments, and Mr. Pringle of the Supervision and King Edward School Building Committee.

Those who have another year to spend on the Board are Messrs. W. A. Robinson, R. F. Ackerman, R. Fair and Dr. Morrison. Mr. L. M. Hayes, who was appointed by the Separate School Board, has served two years and is also scheduled to retire.

Sergt.-Major Brittain Recipient of Swords

Sergt.-Major Brittain was yesterday congratulated by his many friends on the presentation made him the preceding evening of a pair of French dueling sabres of the latest pattern. Sergt.-Major Joe Duffus made the presentation, and Lieut. Carruthers made an appropriate address referring to the interest that Sergt.-Major Brittain had always shown in the welfare of the non-coms. class, and the happy relations that had always made the class one of the most successful of the drill shed. He thanked Sergt.-Major Brittain on behalf of the class and called upon Sergt.-Major Duffus to make the presentation.

Sergt.-Major Brittain thanked the class for their sentiments. The sabres are highly prized by Sergt.-Major Brittain, who, perhaps, is the only possessor of such a thing in the city.

The Adventurous Bigamist Gets 12 Months in Central

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—J. F. Lavergne was this morning sentenced to 12 months in the Central Prison for bigamy committed in Ottawa, September 14th, 1907.

Lavergne has a remarkable record. Leaving here twelve years ago when employed as a stableman, he went to Ogdensburg, N.Y., married and lived there until two years ago when he left for New York, where he posed as a French count. He associated with people of high social position and finally married again. Stealing $4,000 in money and diamonds from a Mrs. Jewett, whom he successfully courted, he came back to Ottawa Jas. July, where he posed as J. F. Lang, a New York broker. Last September he married in Ottawa lady, whom he cruelly deceived but his money had run out and her family became suspicious and an investigation followed. Lavergne disappeared, being recently caught at the Canadian Soo after months of search. He had a penchant for fine clothes.

Upon the expiration of his sentence he will be turned over to the United States authorities on charges of bigamy and grand larceny.

Stanley Beeton, Formerly of Port Hope, Committed Suicide

Winnipeg, Dec. 5.—Stanley Beeston, a clerk in the Bank of Montreal, and a popular young clubman, committed suicide at noon by blowing out his brains.

Deceased was teller of the bank, and came to Winnipeg from Port Hope five years ago. His father is a prominent insurance company official there. He left his desk without explanation suddenly at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, and was not seen again. He was not a drinking man, and is believed to have become suddenly insane.

Brantford, Dec. 5.—Roy R. Dawson, aged 25 years, teller at the Crown Bank, at the village of Burford, committed suicide about ten o'clock this morning by shooting himself in the head.

Manager Forneri heard a shot in Dawson's room over the bank premises, and on investigation found him dead on the bed and a revolver beside him.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized, being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great, blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

Local Lady Uses Fists to Advantage

Member of Fresh Air Club Bought Beefsteak to Help Discolored Optic

It seems that a member of the "Fresh Air Club," was up against it on Wednesday night. This member of the club had an argument with a Mrs. C——, and the argument led to more strenuous ways of backing up individual opinion. It is authorized, and on good authority, that Mrs. C——, sailed into said club member with her hands. She did not, as is generally said about women who scrap, use her finger nails and pull hair, but used the Tommy Burns style of bare knuckles and reaches for the solar plexus. At any rate the rumor as above was corroborated yesterday when a reader of The Times saw this club member out buying beefsteak with which he hoped to bring an eye then in mourning into its ordinary condition.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH CIVILIZED

As soon as she gets rested from the ocean voyage, Miss Laurance Alma-Tadema, says The New York World, is going to teach us how to behappy Her prescription is as simple as the treatment for indigestion — do without things. In the curtailing of desire, she says, lies the treatment of happiness.

Opinions differ. There is a common belief that the average person, like the baby in the advertisement, will not be happy till he gets the thing he wants. It may be something to eat or it may be a new bonnet. It may be a doll or a railway system. Outside other hand, the tattooed inlander of the South Seas is pictured as getting as much contentment out of life as a well-cared-for cow. Bounteous nature and a tropical sun enable him to dwell near a bread-fruit tree and to clothe himself in plaited leaves. He has no other needs until the superior white man comes and teaches him to wear glass beads and drink rum. But climate and the police prohibit the people of northern climes from indulging in any such idyllic existence. Besides, we have an incurable habit of increasing our needs by our efforts to better social conditions. Effort and progress require that constant struggle which makes life worth living for civilized races.

What Miss Tadema calls happiness some moralists would call virtue. But the proverb declares that virtue is its own reward, and gives no guarantee that it will bring happiness in its train.

THE "ALL RED ROUTE."

Lord Strathcona continues to show his interest and confidence in the great undertaking known as the "all red route." His support of the scheme has undoubtedly had a great influence in causing it to be so favorably considered as it has been on both sides of the Atlantic. Until more information on many of the details of the scheme are made known it is impossible for the public to form a competent opinion on the project or of its probabilities of success without the expenditure of very large sums of money by the Imperial and Colonial Governments which would be interested in the carrying out of the project. That the establishment of a first-class system of transportation between Great Britain, the Orient and Australia, by way of Canada, would be of such utility and service to the Empire as to justify substantial State aid being given to it, there can be little question. At the same time the successful solution of the financial and other problems involved may, we are inclined to think, be a work of more difficulty than a superficial view of the scheme may indicate. Nevertheless, as we have said, the confidence which Lord Strathcona seems to have in its feasibility inclines public opinion to regard it favourably and as a practical proposal.

ICEBERGS.

They Are Useful as Well as Grand and Menacing.

When an iceberg is launched upon its long journey its bottom parts are barnacled with sand, bowlders and other detritus gathered from the land surface over which it has made its tedious march to the sea. This burden is gradually cast off as it melts while drifting down along our continental seaboard.

As a result of the deposits thus made through countless centuries, combined with the products of erosion carried seaward by the rivers, the sea bed for many miles off shore has been gradually filled up, creating those vast submerged plateaus, known as "banks," which extend from Labrador to the bay of Fundy and form the breeding grounds of innumerable shoals of cod, herring and other valuable food fishes. In this way the bergs have performed an economic service of incalculable value, laying the foundation for one of the world's most important productive industries and affording a means of livelihood to those hardy bands of "captains courageous" who each year reap the harvests of the sea.

The bergs serve a further economic purpose in that to their tempering influences are largely due the climatic conditions prevailing over a great part of the interior of North America.—Alfred Sidney Johnson in the World Today.

ABSENTMINDED.

A Story of Bunsen, the Great German Scientist.

In the autobiography of Sir Henry Roscoe there is a capital example of the absentmindedness of Bunsen, the great German scientist.

He had had his evening clothes put out that he might attend a card party to which he had been invited, but forgot all about it until the next morning, when his man pointed out that the evening clothes had not been worn. And then he remarked to himself, "I know what I'll do." That evening he put on his dress clothes, went to the lady's house at the appointed time and walked in as if it were the day upon which he had been invited. The hostess, much too polite to tell him that he had mistaken the evening and that the party had taken place on the previous night, sent to her friends asking them to come in to play a rubber again. They did so. In the course of the evening the conversation turned on absentmindedness, and Bunsen began to tell them what had happened to him a long time ago—how that he had forgotten an invitation and how he had made up his mind to go the next night—and thus he told the party the whole story, forgetting altogether that he was giving them an account of what was happening at the very moment.

Brought to Terms.

In the Drayton household it is said that the father of the family has a way of presenting alternatives to his children that never fails to bring them into line.

"I wish you would speak to Bobby," said Mrs. Drayton one night. "I've told him to take his medicine and then jump into bed, and he won't do it. He just hops around and says he doesn't want to take the medicine and he doesn't want to go to bed."

Mr. Drayton stepped to the door of Bobby's room and stood there, tall, grave and impressive.

"Bobby," he said firmly, "if you don't take your medicine at once and then jump into bed you will be put to bed, do you hear me, put to bed, without having your medicine at all."

Upon which Bobby, alarmed and confused, swallowed his allotted portion and meekly retired for the night.

"Scouring the Land."

I have just been examining an old book containing the accounts of the charity estate of West Haddon, embracing the years 1773-1850. Under date Aug. 17, 1776, is the following entry:

"Paid Richard Worster seven days' work, cutting thorns and scowering and stoping of gaps, 10s. 6d."

The term "scouring the ditch" is used on Jan. 8, 1781, and appears many times after this date, the last instance being on April 28, 1820.—London Notes and Queries.

Justified.

"You are charged with having knocked your wife down, blacking both of her eyes and loosening two of her teeth. Have you anything to say for yourself?"

"She had it comin' to her, your honor."

"What did she do or say that could in any way justify such treatment on your part?"

"She said I didn't love her no more."

Cut With the Rest.

Showman—Look here, your paper said the biggest snake in my show was twenty feet long when it's really thirty-one feet. Editor—Sorry, but we were pushed for space yesterday and had to cut everything down.—London Tit-Bits.

Frenzied Arithmetic.

Teacher—Now, Tommy, if your father had twenty dozen eggs in his store and found that eighteen of them were bad, how much would he lose? Tommy—Nothin'. I guess you don't know pa.—School Board Journal.

Careful Mr. Smith.

Dr. Pill (meeting former patient)—Ah, good morning, Mr. Smith! How are you feeling this morning? Mr. Smith—Doctor, does it cost anything if I tell you?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

One of the conditions of the competition was that "Postage on all replies must be prepaid at letter rate." In some cases dissatisfaction was occasioned by the return by the postal authorities of replies said to be insufficiently prepaid. This is a matter with which we had absolutely nothing to do. Either the postmaster at the transmitting office or the Toronto post-office is responsible for the return of any properly prepaid. The competitors themselves are of course, responsible for the returns of any not sufficiently stamped—neither the editor of The Mail and Empire nor ourselves were in any way responsible for any such returns. Much as we regret such disappointment to any intending competitor, we must in justice to ourselves and to the editor of The Mail and Empire refuse to accept any responsibility.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans;

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, said homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

Home Love Is Best.

By JANE LUDLUM LEE.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

"Miss Short, I want you to be my wife. I want to take you to my home in Germany and teach you to love my people as they will love you. Will you have me?"

These words fell from the lips of a handsome German who was staying at the Ellwood inn for the summer and who for weeks had been devoted to the beautiful Eleanor Short, heiress to a cool million.

"Oh, Count Andres, thank you so much, but I am not for other lands. I'm a home girl pure and simple. Your people would not love me. I had hoped you would go without making me say this."

"You knew, then, that I would ask you?"

The girl drew herself up with a stately manner and replied:

"Since you do not spare me why should I save you? Yes, I knew that you would."

"Americans do not know the meaning of home," sneered the count. "I could not have gone without asking you, Miss Short, because—well, it does not matter now. I am sorry I asked you, and I trust you will never regret your answer. You will hear of me again." And with a stiff bow he left her.

"DEAR HEART!" HE MURMURED.

Eleanor, once more on the piazza, dropped into an armchair and rocked slowly back and forth. It was a beautiful night, a night for happiness, not for tears, and why should she cry? Yet tears would come to her eyes. She did not love the man who had just left her, and she did love some one else. She did not want a German home nor a German husband, and she resented his attack on the American home. She leaned forward on the rail and sighed.

A shot rang through the stillness of the night air, followed by a piercing scream.

In an instant the conservative patrons of Elwood inn became a clamorous crowd, surging on the piazza from every direction. The men rushed this way and that, and in a few moments the lifeless form of a woman was carried into the hotel lobby. Miss Short had been shot in the back, perhaps fatally, and her slayer was still at large.

While the doctors worked over the injured girl searching parties were organized to find the assassin. The grounds were carefully guarded, detectives were called in and went through their usual methods of cross questioning the employees of the hotel, and hours dragged by with no trace of the man who had fired the shot. Bulletins were issued from time to time regarding the condition of the patient, and by morning symptoms showed that there was a chance for her recovery.

With the recovery of consciousness came speech, and her first rambling words were, "Oh, how could he!"

An anxious mother leaned over her and gently said:

"Who, Eleanor, dear?"

The injured girl gasped, "The count!" and again lapsed into unconsciousness.

But one count had been at the hotel, and it did not take long to find him in his room and place him under arrest. He was placed under heavy bail until Miss Short either recovered to face him at the trial or died.

Days intervened while the patient hung between life and death, but finally she began to pick up the broken threads and was well on the road to recovery. Her mother, sitting by the bedside of the girl, fondly caressing her, said:

"Jack has been here every day, dear, asking and pleading to see you, and we have promised that he shall be the first. Can you see him today? The poor boy is almost frantic."

"Yes, mother; I want to see him whenever you say I may."

"He has been waiting in the other room for two hours, so I will call him."

A well built, brown faced man appeared at the door in answer to the mother's call and knelt down by the side of the girl, slipping one strong arm about her shoulders and nestling his bronzed face close to hers.

"Dear heart!" he murmured.

"Why, Jack, mother is here looking at us," said Eleanor as the color came to her pale cheeks.

"Your mother knows all about it, dear. Haven't I been telling her every day for the past two weeks? If she don't know it it's not my fault. You see, I couldn't tell you, so I had to tell some one and thought your mother a safe repository for confidences. But you mustn't talk, dear. You are just to get well, and then I'm going to take you away for months and months—just you and I, dear."

Each day found her stronger than the one gone by. Jack was in attendance almost as constantly as the nurse and Mrs. Short, and many happy hours he sat beside her, with her head on his shoulder, while he read aloud. One day as the twilight approached she leaned over and closed the book that he was reading.

"Jack, dear, you have not told me that you loved me."

"Why, Eleanor, how can you say that. It was the last thing I said last evening when your mother turned me out."

"I remember now, but that was yesterday," she said as she nestled closer to him. "That was a whole twenty-four hours ago."

"Dear heart," he said, with a smile, "as each twenty-four hours elapse I love you that much more. You know that, dear, and I don't see why we have to wait until you get entirely well. Why not be married quietly, right here in this little room, where we have been so happy with each other, and let the nurse you back to health?"

"Why, Jack, you selfish man! Not have a wedding, no bridesmaids and no long, white satin dress with a train! Oh, how could you even suggest it? But if you want me to I will, dear, for when you go far away from me the whole light seems to go out of my life, and it's been dark such a long time."

Jack's answer was to take her in his strong arms and hold her close to his heart for a moment as he whispered "Darling!"

"Jack," Eleanor murmured, "I want to ask you a question that has been on my mind ever since I regained consciousness. I wanted to ask mother, but feared to worry her. But if you will hold me tight I will ask you."

"What is it, dear?" answered Jack.

"Who shot me?" And her eyes closed as she asked the dreaded question.

"The poor count did not do it. I happened to be coming up the grounds that night as he left you, and I stopped to watch him. He walked down the front steps and sauntered over to the big elm tree at the south end of the grounds, when from the bushes the form of a woman appeared, and in an instant she leveled a pistol and shot at him. She missed him and the bullet struck you. It all came out in a few days. It has since come to light that the woman was his wife, whom he deserted in Germany."

"Oh, Jack! What suffering that wicked man has caused!"

"Yes. But he opened my eyes to how precious you were to me. I had taken you for granted, dear, not as a special blessing. We men are so selfish."

"Not you, Jack," she murmured as his arms closed around her.

He Was Examined.

Francois Arago, the great French scientist, was a precocious youth. He was prepared for the rigid examinations of the Ecole Polytechnique before he was seventeen years old. The examiner was almost brutal in his manner toward the young candidates. A favorite companion of Arago was badly frightened at his severe questions and failed to pass the examination. At length Arago's turn came.

"Young man," said the examiner sternly, "you are probably as ignorant as your companion. I advise you to go and complete your studies before you risk this examination."

"Monsieur," replied the boy, "timidity was all that prevented my companion from passing. He knew much more than he seemed to know."

"Timidity!" exclaimed the examiner. "The excuse of fools! Perhaps you are timid also."

"Far from it," returned Arago shortly.

"Take care. It would be wise to spare yourself the disgrace of being rejected."

"The disgrace for me would lie in not being examined," said the young candidate proudly.

Arago's solution of the problems set before him was so accurate and so brilliant that at last his examiner sprang from his chair and, throwing his arms about the boy's neck in delight, exclaimed:

"Bravo! If you are not received into the Ecole Polytechnique, no one will be admitted."

And Arago then began a career which added greatly to the stock of human knowledge.

A Clay Pipe Trick.

The ordinary clay pipe has under the bowl a projection or heel which it would seem impossible to break from the opposite side of an ordinary table without injuring the bowl or breaking the stem. Yet it can be done with ease after two or three attempts. Break off a piece of the stem—about a couple of inches will do—and place it on the table so that it projects a little over the edge. Ask a friend to hold the pipe obliquely, heel upward and the bowl higher than the end of the stem. He can do this by inserting his little finger in the bowl. Now get your piece in proper line with the stem of the pipe and strike it forcibly and well with the palm of your hand. The piece will fly across the table along the stem and break the heel clean off.

This seems amazing at first sight, but any one with a "straight eye" can do it with very little practice.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that nerves and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We call and cheerfully recommend

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON "Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 6 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $7.00 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there, if you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mine—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 50 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each share will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Jas Schrum, of Dartmouth, Makes Valuable Discovery

Says the Most Obstinate Case of Stomach or Liver Trouble is Quickly Curable.

Dartmouth, N.S., Sept. 21.—There is a strong moral in the statement of James Schrum, of Pleasant street. Like thousands of people, he was failing in health because his stomach and digestive organs were out of repair. His vitality was all slipping away. he was losing ground every day.

"I could not have held on much longer. I was wasting away simply because no remedy I used gave the tone and strength to my stomach that it craved for. The vital forces of my system seemed dead. I was advised to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills. What hidden weakness they searched out I don't know, but in a miraculous way they have made a new man of me. My stomach troubles are cured, rich blood now runs through my veins—clear skin and unmistakable evidences of health and vigor I feel every day. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have certainly mastered the secret of curing the sickly enervated man and I strongly urge everyone in failing or lost health to use this grand remedy.

Dr Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut are purely vegetable—all the ingredients coming from the great store house of Nature, they can't help but Heal, Strengthen, Cure.

Life on a C.P.R. Liner

A Canadian Lady's Appreciation of a Trip on the Empress of Ireland

"Mary Markwell," the well-known correspondent of the Winnipeg Free Press, writes that paper her impression of the Atlantic trip on one of the C.P.R. Empresses. She says:—

"I advise any woman contemplating a holiday trip across the ocean to go by the Canadian steamship lines. By good luck I selected the Empress of Ireland, and was so charmed by the magnificence of that palatial ship that I made the return journey on her again. Life aboard the gigantic vessel is incomparably delightful; from the bookings of berths to the exchange of English moneys as we neared Liverpool, every conceivable luxury was ours. Cut flowers for the dining tables, concerts and Sabbath services aboard, the evening recreations in the artistic music room, or cafe comforts in luxurious lounging chairs, or bridge—what no corners, while the promenade without resounded with chatter and laughter. The deck-chairs set tete-a-tete, with whispering confabs in sheltered nooks, while all around surged and swept the sea expanse all shining and glittering like a jewel casket opened to our sight. The officers manning the bridge, the most delightful hosts on all occasions, while Captain Forster, 'one eye on the weather,' handsome as Viking, beamed from his seat at table upon each and every guest gathered about that ample board. All too brief that six days' voyage between the old world and the new! All too brief the new-made friendships on that return journey—but renewed in health and spirits, carrying souvenirs of the trip, and never-to-be-forgotten memories of a vacation covering grounds one had dreamed about, but never expected to see."

Terror in the Sea of Japan

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 5.—A runaway Russian destroyer, with a mutinous crew, is on a piratical cruise in the Sea of Japan, according to reports brought from Nagasaki by the steamer Monteagle. A German steamer at Nagasaki reported having been intercepted fifty miles north of reported as having escaped from Tsushima Island by the destroyer, the seamen of which forcibly took a quantity of coal. The destroyer is Vladivostok.

That Handcuffed Reporter Again

The Stratford Herald of last issue commenting on a piece of fun, based on a local reporter's adventure, contained in these columns, says said news gatherer still another friendly "touch-up." The article in question was one printed some days ago telling how a local reporter whilst examining some new handcuffs that day procured by the police, snapped the same on his wrists and had to wend his way on to Chief Rossel's residence, late at night, to get the unwelcome bracelets unlocked. The Stratford paper, whilst not writing in any sense in a personal style, jokingly suggested that the news-gatherer deserved what he got.

Concerts by 57th Regimental Band

Mr Rupert Gliddon, the local popular and talented musician is authority for saying that in the near future the public will hear a series of band concerts of popular music. The date has not yet been arranged nor has the place for the concerts been considered. However we are going to have a series of concerts by the 57th Regimental Band during the season. This intelligence will be received with delight by many of the citizens.

The digestive impulse is the life of the stomach. If this is weakened, crippled by abuse—eating improper food—the rest of the body suffers also.

The body and brain are nourished through the digestive impulse. Food is called for and if proper in quantity and quality, the tissues are repaired as fast as mental and physical activity break them down. This is life.

Grape-Nuts food not only meets the requirements of tissue-repair, but is a powerful source of vital energy. It contains the vital phosphates stored up in wheat and barley by nature.

A food expert prepared this food so you can get these vital elements without bother cooking or other effort other than simple eating it. Eaten slowly with cream, it is delicious and satisfies the "digestive impulse." It quietly systematically builds up brain and nerve. POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court a generally known local man remarked, "You can't take blood out of a turnip, and I am going to go up on the hill instead of paying my fine. A fellow can't make 25 cents a day at my business.

It will be remembered that John Doig was the individual who bought brass castings from small boys on Sunday, November 17, and was fined and given ten days in which to pay the fine. He was also fined and given the same conditions on another charge. He returned to the court yesterday morning, having been notified that his time to pay the fine was up.

Children's Aid Society Will Assist the Poor

New Scheme Whereby Many Deserving Poor will Have Christmas Day Brightened

As noted in several previous issues of The Times the Children's Aid society are inaugurating a new scheme for the entertainment of the children of the poorer families of the city. Their idea is to hold a public dinner and provide an entertainment and Christmas tree in some public place, and invite the poorer children to attend.

Their reason for doing this, instead of delivering boys and food to the various houses, as in the past, is because of the great distance involved in making such visits, and the society will take the above way of helping the poor.

The following letter possibly explains the subject in full, viz.;

Dear Sir,—The approaching Christmas reminds us of the many poor children and families in the city, who are not in a position to enjoy the happiness of the festive season.

It has been the practice of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough in past years to distribute baskets filled with food and toys to a large number of families. With the large increase in population during the past two years it has been found impossible by our officers to distribute Christmas cheer to the large number of deserving families.

This year it has been suggested that the society hold a public dinner and provide an entertainment and a Christmas tree in some public place to which all the poor families in the city will be invited. In order to insure the best results it is desirable that all religious bodies in the city be represented and help in the carrying out of the scheme.

An organization meeting will be held on Tuesday evening next, the 10th of December, at 7.30 o'clock, in the council chamber, to which we are inviting representatives from all religious denominations and public bodies interested in charity. Will you kindly endeavor to be present on that occasion as one of the representatives of your church?

Yours truly,
E. L. GOODWELL,
Sec. C.A.S.

Hindus are Hurrying Towards California---Many are Leaving Seattle Afoot

Seattle, Wash., Dec 5.—With winter weather coming on and starvation staring them in the face, the luckless Hindus who have been making their headquarters in Seattle during the last two months, are making their way to California. Those who can raise the money are going by boat, or train. The others have started afoot.

Nine more of them arrived here yesterday from Vancouver. After talking over the situation with their countrymen who preceded them here, they decided that Seattle is not the place for them, and they say they will take the train this evening for San Francisco.

Last evening Policeman Charles Van Rickley discovered where a band of the dark skinned strangers have been staying for the last month. They are living in a shack on College street, near Rainier boulevard, sleeping on the floor. Until two weeks ago they had been employed in digging a sewer, but they have not been able to get any kind of work since. They have no money whatever, and their only food is a quarter of a sack of potatoes, and a few pounds of flour. They have not even an axe with which to cut firewood.

Huddled around the fire like so many outcasts with barely enough clothes to cover them, the Hindus are a pitiful spectacle. And yet they are too proud to ask for assistance. The neighbors say they have caused no trouble.

"I do not know what we are going to do," said John Ohm, the leader of the little band, his quavering voice plainly showing the depth of his emotion, this morning. "Because of the wet weather we are not able to get work any more. We have no money and little food. I wish we could manage some way to get back to India. We thought we would be able to get plenty of work in this country."

Charles Lopaz, a Hindu porter employed in a First avenue barber shop, who has been here several years, says his countrymen should adopt the American way of living or stay at home.

"Their habits are so different from Europeans that it is difficult for them to live here," he said. "They will not eat food prepared by anyone else. I have furnished a place to cook for many of them lately who have gone hungry for two or three days rather than eat food prepared by other hands. They will starve to death before they will forego their religion. They will not eat beef."

Mr. W. H. Hill for Commissioner

The retiring water commissioner this year is Mr. W. H. Hill, who at the end of the year completes his third year in that capacity. Mr. Hill, however, has announced his intention of entering the field for re-election next January. As far as is known at present there are no other candidates for the position. Mr. Hill has acted as a conscientious and able officer both in the above position and on the Board of Education and will possibly not be opposed.

Lumber will be Higher in the Spring

Local Lumber Firm Receive Letter to this Effect

A letter recently received by a local lumber firm shows conclusively that prices for lumber will advance in the spring if not before. The letter read as follows,—

"Dear Sir,—As a valued customer of ours, we feel that we should advise you that there will be a large curtailment this winter in the output of logs, which in turn will reduce the available supply of lumber next summer very considerably, which may have the effect of increasing prices of lumber much higher than they are at present.

"We are not advising you to buy, although we think it wise to let you know the present conditions in the bush, then, after full consideration, if you decided to buy, we feel that you will not be making much of a mistake.

"Trusting to be favored with further patronage, we remain."

After reading the letter the scribe asked the manager about the combine. He said he knew nothing of any combine in Ontario, but was aware that a combine existed in British Columbia, but the lumber situation there did not affect Ontario.

AWFUL TRAGEDY REPORTED FROM W. VIRGINIA MINES

500 Miners Entombed and None May Escape--Explosions Took Place Simultaneously In Two Mines

Pittsburg, Dec. 6.—A terrific and disastrous explosion occurred today in mines numbers 6 and 8 of the Consolidation Coal Company of Monongah, W. Va.

A long distance telephone message to the Associated Press says that the bodies of three miners have been recovered near the mouth of the mine No 6. They were foreigners.

Supt. John Malone of the mines says there are at least five hundred men entombed.

Mine No. 6 is located on the east side of the Monongahela River, and mine No. 8 on the west side.

How the explosion occurred simultaneously in both mines cannot be explained at this time.

All is confusion at the scene of the disaster, and definite information is meager.

The explosion was heard eight miles away.

It is believed that a majority of the men entombed were killed.

Immediately after receipt of the news physicians and special cars were despatched to the scene from Fairmont. The mine is too full of gas and smoke yet for rescuers to be able to go in. It is said the explosion started in number 8 and spread to number 8 mine, the two being connected.

BURIED ACROSS RIVER

The gravest fears are felt for the safety of the great number of men in the workings. The very earth seemed to be rent at the moment of the shock. Some idea of the force of the explosion may be gained from the fact that props from the mine were not only blown out of the entry, but were hurled by the force of it clear across the West Fork River. Wires are down, which is the reason for details being unobtainable yet.

WORST IN HISTORY

It is feared that the accident will turn out to be the worst in the history of mining in this country.

Supt. Malone telephones that two hundred men were in the mine at the time, and the miners do not think any could escape alive from the force of the explosion.

The fans were started at noon to clear out the foul air, and the rescuers may be expected to reach the men by two o'clock this afternoon.

The mine management declare they do not know the cause, but experienced miners declare that it must have been dust.

MINES ON BOTH SIDES.

The town of Monongah has a population of about 6,000, and while for the most part the miners are of foreign birth, there are still many American workmen. Possibly the largest steel tipple in the State is located at Monongah. The mines are both shaft and slope mines, being worked by the rope and haulage system. They lie on both sides of the West Fork River, and are connected by a steel pier bridge, owned and operated by the Coal Company.

The Coal Company is one of the largest companies of the kind in the country, and is capitalized at about $20,000,000.

They have upwards of 100 producing properties. Clarence M. Watson is the president, with headquarters in Baltimore.

MEN THROWN OUT OF MINES.

It is now said that the relief parties which is working its way into the mines will not reach the imprisoned men before four p.m. The Coal Company has special trains ready to bring the wounded to the miners' hospital here as fast as possible. A hospital has been arranged at the opening of the mine, where the wounded will receive attention. Several men were practically blown out of the mine No. six through an air hole. Their escape was miraculous.

Twenty physicians from Fairmont are now on the grounds, and every attention is being given the men. The mines did not work yesterday.

Five dead men have been taken from the mine, as follows: John Mine man, pit boss; William Sloan, coupler; Lawrence Hineman, brakeman; Charles Romaker, and Frederick Cooper.

Illinois Saloons Close By Hundreds--Eight Counties are "Dry"

Chicago, Dec. 6.—Hundreds of saloons were closed in Illinois today, the local option voted at the last election in fourteen counties becoming effective at midnight. Eight counties are now totally "dry," while six allow saloons in only a few precincts. The counties principally affected are in the southern tiers, and reflect the wave of prohibition that has been sweeping up from the South. The following counties are now without saloons; Edwards, Johnson, Massac, Pope, Union, Wabash, Williamson and Calhoun.

In some of the principal towns affected Jacksonville loses 24 saloons; Duquoin 23, Nerrin 15, Carterville 18, Marion 12, Mound City 11 and Lamora 10.

The prohibition sentiment was also felt farther north in the State, where many towns voted out the saloons. In addition, a systematic campaign for the Sunday closing of all saloons has been undertaken in Chicago, and several score of saloon keepers of the city have been arrested on evidence gathered by agents of the Chicago Law and Order League.

British Battleship Smashed Hole in Her Side and Nearly Sank

Portsmouth, Eng., Dec. 6.—There was an exciting scene in this harbor last night when the battleship Prince George broke away from her moorings and went adrift. She was finally brought under control, but she was so badly damaged in the meantime that she will have to be docked.

The Prince George grazed a number of warships anchored in the harbor and then collided with such force with the new cruiser Shannon which had just arrived in from her trials, that a big hole was pierced in the battleship's side. The Prince George took in water rapidly and by the time she had been secured by a tug and towed to dock, she had a heavy list to star-board. The Shannon was damaged only in her upper works.

Merchants and Manufacturers Number

Greatest Illustrated Account of Peterborough's Progress Nearly Ready for Press

There are only a very few days left in which those desiring to have their individual firm or business written up can secure space therein.

The "Merchants and Manufacturers" is a large, beautifully illustrated, well written, white paper, account of Peterborough and its industries, various lines of business and leading men and contains one of the most comprehensive accounts, in condensed form, of what our patriotic and energetic fellow citizens are doing and have done to place our city in the high commercial and industrial pedestal on which she now stands.

National Hotel Expension Drops

There seems to have been a whole lot of talk throughout the local press recently about the immediate hotel that certain unknown parties were going to reconstruct in addition to the present National Hotel property. A Toronto firm was alleged to have in mind the building of a hotel to take in the present National Hotel property and then extend it south on the Custom House to George street.

Mr. Winch the practical controller of the property, i.e., the National Hotel, has recently spent quite a sum of money on modern improvements, and Mr. Lawless, the hotel proprietor, has also spent large sums in making the National an up-to-date place of public entertainment.

The North American Investment Company, represented here, on several occasions by Mr. W. Y. Kinleyside, was to have built the hotel as originally noted in these columns, but yesterday it was rumored in more than one quarter that the company as above have dropped their extension ideas. Possibly one reason for this change of procedure is the fact that the stock required, some $200,000, has not been subscribed either locally or from outside the city.

Heartless Bigamist Gets One Year

Kingston, Dec. 5.— Charles Shaw was charged with bigamy in the police court today, and with a display of tears admitted his crime, and asked for immediate sentence. He was given a year in the Central Prison. His wives were not called upon to testify.

This is the man who on Tuesday married a Miss Wathin, although his wife, and two babies, one four weeks old, lived only a few blocks away. He was arrested while at the reception of his bride the day following. Yesterday the two women Shaw had so heartlessly wronged met in the home of Mrs. Shaw, and wept in one another's arms. They agreed that neither would prosecute, either for wife desertion or bigamy, and Miss Wathin agreed to do all she could to persuade Shaw to do his duty to his real wife who promised to take him back, if repentant.

—St Andrew's Boy Guild met last night. Important matters for the boys were discussed.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the examination of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and liver regulator—the medicine which is not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages, no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicine at reasonable prices.

THE WAY OF SOME BANKERS

If we are to believe the State Auditor of Illinois, who is the statutory supervisor of about 600 State banks in his jurisdiction, the situation out there warrants an optimistic view, with undisturbed confidence in local as well as national resources. He says:—

"The disturbance in New York furnishes no cause for apprehension in this section. Our State is blessed with a bountiful crop, which, during the next five months, will be converted into money contributed from all parts of the world. The banks in the country are loaded with funds, prepared not only to furnish the money required to move this crop, but ready to invest in first-class commercial paper offered in the market.

"The feature of the last bank report in response to call was an unusually strong reserve, despite the general understanding that money is tight. In this report the forty-four State banks in Chicago made a magnificent showing. Notwithstanding there is no legal requirement in the State Banking Act, and, although the federal act requires the national banks in the larger cities to carry a reserve of 25 per cent., the said forty-four state banks showed an available reserve of approximately $100,000,000 representing about 90 per cent. of all character of deposits.

"In addition, the report shows high-grade bonds aggregating over $70,000,000, a resource acknowledged the most readily convertible because there are daily market quotations thereon. Sixteen of these banks, qualified under the trust act, have on deposit with this department about $6,000,000 in high-class securities."

Here we have the statement, positively made, that the country banks of Illinois are "loaded with funds" and are prepared to move the State's big corn crop without assistance from outside—and, in addition, are ready to loan millions on first-class commercial paper! If the small State banks of Illinois can do that why is there a cry in Canada that we have not enough money in the country to serve the purposes of the crop movers as well as every legitimate business? Why these shivers, these tremors, in banking circles at headquarters? The Illinois State banks are local in character. They say to the farmer, grain dealer and small merchant in their several districts: We have the money; we know your wants; we know our duty to producing and mercantile interests; we'll see you through. Isn't that an attitude quite enough in itself to produce confidence, even if some national banks in New York have gone down, and others in the larger centres have cut credits, awaiting the clearing of the financial sky? When general managers of banks talk in a manner to create disturbed conditions they do that which resourceful people must condemn. The managers of the State banks of Illinois laugh at New York's troubles and go ahead doing business at the old stand in the old way. Would that the pilots of our banking institutions were just a little more patriotic and a little closer to the people than they are.

Hindus are Hurrying Towards California

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 6.—With winter weather coming on and starvation staring them in the face, the luckless Hindus who have been making their headquarters in Seattle luring the last two months, are making their way to California. Those who can raise the money are going by boat or train. The others have started afoot.

Nine more of them arrived here yesterday from Vancouver. After talking over the situation with their countrymen who preceded them here, they decided that Seattle is not the place for them, and they say they will take the train this evening for San Francisco.

Last evening Policeman Charles Van Rickley discovered where a band of the dark-skinned strangers have been staying for the last month. They are living in a shack on College street, near Rainier boulevard, sleeping on the floor. Until two weeks ago they had been employed in digging a sewer, but they have not been able to get any kind of work since. They have no money whatever, and their only food is a quarter of a sack of potatoes, and a few pounds of flour. They have not even an axe with which to cut fire-wood.

Huddled around the fire like so many outcasts with barely enough clothes to cover them, the Hindus are a pitiful spectacle. And yet they are too proud to ask for assistance. The neighbors say they have caused no trouble.

"I do not know what we are going to do," said John Obu, the leader of the little band, his quavering voice plainly showing the depth of his emotion, this morning. "Because of the wet weather we are not able to get work any more. We have no money and little food. I wish we could manage some way to get back to India. We thought we would be able to get plenty of work in this country."

Charles Lopas, a Hindu porter employed in a First avenue barber shop, who has been here several years, says his countrymen should adopt the American way of living or stay at home.

"Their habits are so different from Europeans that it is difficult for them to live here," he said. "They will not eat food prepared by anyone else. I have furnished a place to cook for many of them lately who have gone hungry for two or three days rather than eat food prepared by other hands. They will starve to death before they will forego their religion. They will not eat beef."

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM CU ED

50,000 BOXES FREE

Try Like I Did Under Like Conditions.
John A. Smith.

For rheumatism, that horrible plague, I found a simple remedy and in order that every suffering reader may learn about it, I will gladly mail him a package free. This marvelous remedy I found by a lucky chance while an invalid from rheumatism, and has since cured hundreds of others, among them cases of over 30 and 40 years standing. In Fountain City, Wis., it cured an old gentleman who had suffered 23 years, and after seven doctors had tried in vain. In Marion, Ohio, it cured a lady who had been bedfast for thirteen weeks. In Palmer, Nebr., it cured a lady 64 years old. In Bennington, Vermont, it cured an old gentleman who had been lame for 20 years. In Stayner, Ont., it enabled a lady to abandon her crutches. In Englewood, Ohio, it cured a gentleman of 67, who had suffered 18 years.

No matter whether your rheumatism is chronic, muscular or sciatic, nor mind if other remedies have disappointed you, write me without fail, and by return mail you will receive the trial package absolutely free and also free a book on rheumatism which is illustrated with many stipled drawings from actual life, and which will tell you all about your case.

Never before has a remedy for rheumatism been so highly endorsed as this. Among the eminent people who have endorsed it is Eugen H. Plumacher, United States Consul, Maracaibo, Publisher of "Health", London, England, Doctor Quintero, of the University of Venezuela, Stevenson Mac Adams, F. J. C., F. C. S., of Analytical Laboratory, Surgeons Hall, Edinburg, Scotland and many others. Address: JOHN A. SMITH, 23 Laing Bldg., Windsor, Ont.

Old Coughs

Keep in close touch with your family doctor. No medicine was ever made that could take his place. Trust him at all times.

Old coughs, desperate coughs, rasping coughs, extremely perilous coughs, coughs that shake the whole body. It takes a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine, to master such coughs. A great many people rely on Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

E. S. CLOUSTON,
General Manager.

Bank of Montreal,
Montreal, 31st October, 1907.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The Vice-President then spoke, in part, as follows:—

"There is not much in the General Statement, laid before you, calling for special comment. Deposits not bearing interest have temporarily increased since last year $6,000,000. Deposits bearing interest have decreased $9,000,000; partly through the withdrawal of funds for railway construction and partly owing to our depositors making more permanent investments in securities at the present tempting low prices. There has been, however, a satisfactory and general increase in our regular deposit business through the entire Dominion.

"Early in the year, in view of the approaching stringency in the money markets of the world, we slightly advanced our rates of discount, not so much with a desire to increase our profits, but more to give a practical indications to our customers of our expectations of the trend of financial affairs, and to impress upon them that in the conduct of their business they must bear it in mind and govern themselves accordingly.

"The stringency is largely the result of universal prosperity, and as a natural consequence the world has been spending more and saving less. This state of affairs will cure itself by retrenchment.

LOANS ABROAD.

"I wish to allude briefly to some criticism which has recently been made in the press respecting the practice of Canadian banks in keeping a portion of their reserves in other countries. The aggregate of call and current loans by the banks elsewhere than in Canada, approximating at times $100,000,000, has been cited as evidence that these institutions are not serving the needs of Canadian borrowers as freely as they might, were all the money loaned in this country. In the first place, let me point out that a year ago, when these loans, abroad, in England, the United States, and other countries, amounted to $96,000,000, the banks had deposits made with their foreign branches of $55,000,000, so that the actual net amount of foreign loans was only some $41,000,000. Every dollar of this money is loaned on call at short date, upon the most ample security. It constitutes a part of the reserves of Canadian banks. If to-morrow we were to call in the whole of our loans of this class, which are at all times immediately available, the mercantile public of Canada would derive absolutely no benefit from the action.

"I wish also to correct another erroneous impression which appears to have crept into the public mind, and that is, that in consequence of the financial condition in the United States our loans are tied up and the money cannot be brought into Canada. I have no hesitation in saying that there has been no time during the present crisis when we could not realize all our call loans in the United States, and transfer the proceeds to England, when we could easily import gold here if it should be considered advisable. But as we know how liquid and available they are, we continue to retain all that is not needed here, both as parts of our reserves and as a valuable aid to our international exchanges.

PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

The President in moving the adoption of the report, spoke of the recent financial panic in the United States.

"To this result," he said, "various causes contributed. Among the most prominent was a wave of distrust and hostility to corporations and capital which seems to have passed over the United States, and for which some justification was given by the management of some great countries within its borders. This hostility to corporations, to my view, merely hastened the coming and added to the violence of a collapse, bound to come anyway.

"Strangely enough, the hostility to which I refer has manifested itself strongly against railways, in spite of the fact that railways on this continent have been constructed and are operated at least as cheaply and efficiently as anywhere in the world, with a consequent preponderating influence on the development of the country, and a substantial assistance in raising the price receivable by the agriculturists for their produce.

"No doubt all these disturbing conditions may be expected to pass away, and normal and saner views once more rule, and it must not be overlooked that all the present trouble leaves the resources of that country practically undiminished and its powers of recuperation unimpaired.

"Here in Canada we have escaped most, if not all, of the troubles of our neighbors. The collapse in stocks has, no doubt, affected many investors, but, beyond a certain tightening of the money market and advancing interest, I see no evidence of serious ill effects. The banks have been acting with caution and reserve, which is eminently proper with a conflagration raging next door."

After reviewing in detail the trade conditions of 1907, the President said:

"A good deal depends on the duration of dear money in the financial centres of the world, and, not having the gift of prophecy, I refrain from expressing any opinion on that point. What the situation does seem to counsel is the wisdom of refraining from speculative ventures, from embarking much in enterprises in new fields, until capital flows more freely."

The report was adopted.

A motion increasing the directorate from ten to twelve was adopted.

DIRECTORS ELECTED.

Various congratulatory speeches were made, and the following directors elected:—

R. B. Angus, E. S. Clouston, Hon. Sir George A. Drummond, K.C.M.G.; E. B. Greenshields, Hon. Robert Mackay, Sir Wm. C. Macdonald, David Morrice, A. T. Patterson, Sir Robert G. Reid, James Ross, Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy, the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G. C. M. G.

The honorary president, president and vice-president were in the ordinary course of business elected at the meeting of the directors.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

CHAPTER I.

Poor little Dora Deane! How utterly wretched and desolate she was, as she crouched before the scanty fire, and tried to warm the little bit of worn out flannel with which to wrap her mother's feet, and how hard she tried to force back the tears which would burst forth afresh whenever she looked upon that pale, sick mother, and thought how soon she would be gone!

It was a small, low, scantily furnished room, high up in the third story of a crazy old building which Dora called her home, and its one small window looked out on naught save the roofs and spires of the great city whose dull, monotonous roar was almost the only sound to which she had ever listened. Of the country, with its bright green grass, it sweet wild flowers, its running brooks, and its shady trees, she knew but little, for only once had she looked on all these things, and then her heart was very sad, for the bright green grass was broken, and the sweet wild flowers were trampled down, that a grave might be made in the dark, moist earth for her father, who had died in early manhood, leaving his wife and only child to battle with the selfish world as best they could. Since that time life had been long and dreary to the poor widow, whose hours were well-nigh ended, for ere to-morrow's sun was risen she would have a better home than that dreary cheerless room, while Dora, at the early age of twelve, would be an orphan.

It was a cold December night, the last one of the year, and the wintry wind, which swept howling past the curtainless window, seemed to take a sadder tone, as if in pity for the little girl who knelt upon the hearthstone, and, with the dim firelight flickering over her tear-stained face, prayed that she, too, might die and not be left alone.

"It will be so lonely—so cold without my mother!" she murmured. "Oh, let me go with her; I cannot live alone!"

"Dora, my darling," came faintly from the rude couch, and in an instant the child was at her mother's side.

Winding her arms fondly about the neck of her daughter, and pushing the soft auburn hair from off her fair, open brow, Mrs. Deane gazed long and earnestly upon her face.

"Yes, you are like me," she said at last, "and I am glad that it is so, for it may be Sarah will love you better when she sees in you a look like one who once called her sister. And should he ever return——"

She paused, while her mind went back to the years long ago—to the old yellow farmhouse among the New England hills—to the gray-haired man who had adopted her as his own when she was written fatherless — to the dark-eyed girl, sometimes kind, and sometimes overbearing, whom she had called her sister, though there was no tie of blood between them. Then she thought of the red house just across the way, and of the three brothers, Nathaniel, Richard, and John. Very softly she repeated the name of the latter, seeming to see him again as he was on the day when with the wreath of white apple blossoms upon her brow, she sat on the mossy bank and listened to his low-spoken words of love. Again she was out in the pale starlight, and heard the autumn wind go moaning through the locust trees as Nathaniel, the strange, eccentric, woman-hating Nathaniel, but just returned from the seas, told her how madly he had loved her, and how the knowledge that she belonged to another would drive him from his fatherland forever — that in the burning clime of India he would make gold his idol, forgetting, if it were possible, the mother who had borne him! Then she recalled the angry scorn with which her adopted sister had received the news of her engagement with John, and how the conviction was at last forced upon her that Sarah herself had loved him in secret, and that in a fit of desperation she had given her hand to the rather inefficient Richard, ever after treating her rival with a cool reserve which now came back to her with painful distinctness.

"But she will love my little Dora for John's sake, if not for mine," she thought, at last; and then, as if she had all the time been speaking to her daughter, she continued, "And you must be very dutiful to your aunt, and kind to your cousins, fulfilling their slightest wishes."

Looking up quickly, Dora asked, "Have you written to Aunt Sarah? Does she say that I can come?"

"The letter is written, and Mrs. Gannis will send it as soon as I am dead," answered Mrs. Deane. "I am sure she will give you a home. I told her there was no alternative but the almshouse"; then, after a pause, she added: "I wrote to your uncle Nathaniel some months ago, when I knew that I must die. It is true that his resolve, but I bade him direct to Sarah, as I did not then think to see the winter snow."

"Did you tell him of me?" eagerly asked Dora, on whom the name of Uncle Nathaniel, or "Uncle Nat," as he was more familiarly called, produced a more pleasant impression than did that of her Aunt Sarah.

"Yes," answered the mother, "it was of you that I wrote, commending you to his care, should he return to America. And if you ever meet him, Dora, tell him that on my dying bed I thought of him with affection—that my mind wandered back to the years of long ago, when I was young, and ask him, for the sake of one he called his brother, and for her who grieves that ever she caused him a moment's pain, to care for you, their orphan child."

Then followed many words of love, which were very precious to Dora in the weary years which followed that sad night; and then, for a time, there was silence in that little room, broken only by the sound of the wailing tempest. The old year was going out on the wings of a fearful storm, and as the driving sleet beat against the casement, while the drifting snow found entrance through more than one wide crevice and fell upon her pillow, the dying woman murmured, "I am very cold."

Alas! 'twas the chill of death, but Dora did not know it, and again on the hearthstone before the fast dying coals she knelt, trying to warm the bit of flannel, on which her burning tears fell like rain, when through the empty woodbox she sought in vain for chip or bark with which she might increase the scanty fire.

"But I will not tell her," she softly whispered, when satisfied that her search was vain, and wrapping the flannel around the icy feet she untied the long-sleeved apron which covered her own naked arms, and laying it over her mother's shoulders, tucked in the thin bedclothes; and then, herself all shivering and benumbed, she sat down to wait and watch, singing softly a familiar hymn which had sometimes lulled her suffering mother into a quiet sleep.

At last, as her little round white arms grew purple with the cold, she moved nearer to the bedside, and winding them lovingly around her mother's neck laid her head upon the pillow and fell asleep. And to the angels who were hovering near, waiting to bear their sister spirit home there was given charge concerning the little girl, so that she did not freeze though she sat there the livelong night, calmly sleeping the sweet sleep of childhood, while the mother at her side slept the long, eternal sleep of death!

CHAPTER II.

It was New Year's morning, and over the great city lay the deep, untrodden snow, so soon to be trampled down by thousands of busy feet. Cheerful fires were kindled in many a luxurious home of the rich, and "Happy New Year" was echoed from lip to lip, as if on that day there were no aching hearts—no garrets where the biting cold looked in on pinching poverty and suffering old age—no low dark room where Dora and her pale dead mother lay, while over them the angels kept their tireless watch till human aid should come. But one there was who did not forget—one about whose house was gathered every elegance which fashion could dictate or money procure, and now, as she sat at her bountifully furnished breakfast table sipping her fragrant chocolate, she thought of the poor widow, Dora's mother, for whom her charity had been solicited the day before, by a woman who lived in the same block of buildings with Mrs. Deane.

"Brother," she said, glancing toward a young man who, before the glowing grate, was reading the morning paper, "suppose you make your first call with me?"

"Certainly," he answered; "and it will probably be in some dreary attic or dark, damp basement; but it is well, I suppose, to begin the New Year by remembering the poor."

Half an hour later, and the crazy stairs which led to the chamber of death were creaking to the tread of the lady and her brother, the latter of whom knocked loudly for admission. Receiving no answer from within, they at last raised the latch and entered. The fire had long since gone out, and the night wind, as it poured down the chimney, had scattered the cold ashes over the hearth and out upon the floor. Piles of snow lay on the window sill, and a tumbler in which some water had been left standing was broken in pieces. All this the young man saw at a glance, but when his eye fell upon the bed he started back, for there was no mistaking the rigid, stony expression of the upturned face which lay there so white and motionless.

"But the child—the child!" he exclaimed, advancing a step—"can she, too, be dead?" and he laid his warm hand gently on Dora's brow.

The touch aroused her, and starting up she looked around for a moment bewildered, but when at last she turned towards her mother the dread reality was forced upon her, and in bitter tones she cried, "Mother's dead, mother's dead, and I am all alone! Oh! mother, mother, please, do come back again to me!"

The young man's heart was touched, and, taking the child's little red hands in his, he rubbed them gently, trying to soothe her grief, while his sister, summoning the inmates from the adjoining room, gave orders that the body should receive the necessary attention, then, learning as much as was possible of Dora's history, and assuring her that she should be provided for until her aunt came, she went away, promising to return next morning and be present at the humble funeral.

That evening as Dora sat weeping by the coffin in which her mother lay, a beautiful young girl, with eyes of deepest blue and locks of golden hair, smiled a joyous welcome to him whose first New Year's call had been in the chamber of death, and whose last was to her, the petted child of fashion.

"I had almost given you up, and was just going to cry," she said, laying her little snow-flake of a hand upon the one which that morning had chafed the small, stiff fingers of Dora Deane, and which now tenderly pressed

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organs itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone is futile. It is a waste of time, and of me or ey as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Brights or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 561 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 60-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 6 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 2 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $12.00 to $21,600 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 25 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made five gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 100 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Jas. Schrum, of Dartmouth, Makes Valuable Discovery

Says the Most Obstinate Case of Stomach or Liver Trouble is Quickly Curable.

Dartmouth, N.S., Sept. 21.—There is a strong moral in the statement of James Schrum, of Pleasant street. Like thousands of people, he was failing in health because his stomach and digestive organs were out of repair. His vitality was slipping away. he was losing ground every day.

"I could not have held on much longer. I was wasting away simply because no remedy I used gave the tone and strength to my stomach that it craved for. The vital forces of my system seemed dead. I was advised to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills. What hidden weakness they searched out I don't know, but in a miraculous way they have made a new man of me. My stomach troubles are cured, rich blood now runs through my veins—clear skin and unmistakable evidences of health and vigor I feel every day. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have certainly mastered the secret of curing the sickly enervated man and I strongly urge everyone in failing or lost health to use this grand remedy.

Dr Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut are purely vegetable—all the ingredients coming from the great store house of Nature, they can't help but Heal, Strengthen, Cure.

The Financial Situation Discussed

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—The financial situation was discussed here last night by financiers of national prominence before the American Academy of Political Science. "The Lessons of the Financial Crisis," of the speakers included F. A. Vanderlip, vice-president of the National City Bank, New York, Wm. B. Ridgely, comptroller of the currency, Chas. H. Treat, United States treasurer, J. B. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, and other.

Mr. Vanderlip presided at the session, and in his introductory address said:

"Some people attribute the trouble to the policies of the president of the United States, while others find the cause in the gambling of Wall street, but it is probable that in neither extremes will be found the real cause of the present financial situation. The Boer war and the Russo-Japanese war necessarily caused the destruction of much wealth, and, immediately following these wars there came an unprecedented period of world-wide activity that found an insufficient capital."

The causes which led to the present financial crisis in the United States and means for safeguarding the country against such disasters in the future were discussed by Jacob H. Schiff, who attributed the present trouble mainly to too great expansion of enterprise of every nature, resulting in straining of financial requirements, and particularly of credit beyond legitimate limits. He maintained that the so-called prosperity madness was developed, not in financial circles alone, but in industry and commerce as well. Mr. Schieff said the greatest care should be taken in attempting to cure the disorders which have resulted in the conditions of today.

Local-Legal

At Osgoode Hall Mr. Justice Mayhew has given judgment in the case of Robertson v. Robertson, which was heard at the Assizes here. The particulars of the action, which was dismissed with costs, are as follows:—

The plaintiffs, Sarah Jane Robertson and Mary Jane Robertson, are executrixes of the will of the late John Robertson, deceased, and the defendant, Mabel Hannah Robertson, is a widow residing in North Monaghan, and the administratrix of the estate of the late William Henry Robertson, deceased. The plaintiffs allege that the said John Robertson was the tenant for life of certain lands in South Monaghan, and that the said William Henry Robertson leased the land from the former on May 2nd, 1898, and occupied them until his death in September, 1906. The plaintiffs claim that at the time of his death William Henry Robertson was indebted to John Robertson in the sum of $2,400. The plaintiffs claim this sum as arrears of rent due the estate of the late John Robertson, bequeathed the plaintiff by his last will and testament. L. M. Hayes and A. P. Poussette for plaintiffs, F. D. Kerr for defendants.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PE-RU-NA CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDED FOR COLDS AND CATARRH.

A Prominent Canadian Gives His Experience With the World-Famous Remedy For Catarrh.

Chronic Catarrh Always Begins With An Ordinary Cold.

So Says Dr. Hartman, the Greatest Living Authority On Catarrhal Diseases.

THE first effect of a cold is a thickening of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

This gives rise to a discharge, or at least a stuffiness of the nasal passages.

Sometimes fever accompanies the first attack, also a feeling of languor, dullness and aching of the bones.

If no attention is paid to it, the mucous congestion is liable to spread down into the larynx, producing hoarseness and into the bronchial tubes, producing a cough.

Even when this occurs, many people pay no attention to it.

Under such circumstances, the congestion is liable to become chronic, producing a condition of the mucous membranes known as catarrh. Catarrh lasts an indefinite time. Catarrh is essentially a chronic condition and does not leave except something is done to relieve it.

CURE COLDS—PREVENT CATARRH.

What should be done when a person catches cold is to take a few doses of Peruna.

Taken at the onset, Peruna would break up the cold and prevent all the train of symptoms which usually follow.

But, even in cases where the cold has been neglected and hoarseness or a cough has developed, Peruna can be relied upon to give prompt and permanent relief.

The frequency of coughs and colds in the winter makes Peruna a popular remedy for these ailments.

A number of the best people of various countries have given testimonials as to the value of Peruna in such cases.

Followed Dr Hartman's Advice—Restored to Health.

Mrs. Samuelle Vigneau, Avre au Berd, Isle de La Magdaline, Canada, writes:

"I write to tell you that I am perfectly well. I took only three bottles of your Peruna according to your advice and the directions in your book and it restored my health."

C. H. Parker, Ex-Warden of Compton Co., Quebec, has been mayor of Scotstown for a number of years. He is an influential resident in Scotstown and widely known.

He writes concerning Peruna. Read his letter below:

C. H. PARKER.

"I had several attacks of colds from time to time and finally a severe attack developed into catarrh.

"I was advised to use your celebrated catarrh remedy, and after taking three bottles I find myself completely cured, and I no longer suffer from catarrh or colds.

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for colds and catarrh."

If Peruna had no other medicinal value than the promptness with which it relieves common colds, it would be well worth while for any family to keep it in the house constantly.

KING EDWARD'S FLOCK OF ROYAL GUESTS COST HIM $500,000

Has to Stand Expense of Princely Guests

All Out of His Own Private Purse--Windsor Castle is Crowded

London, Dec. 7. After passing through a season of severe economy, King Edward VII. is now manifesting signs of a love for the prodigal personal expenditure that characterized King Louis of France.

King Edward's entertainment of an unprecedented group of royal visitors at his own expense this month will cost him personally a staggering sum of money, which he will have to pay out of his own private purse, there being no special government allowance for this purpose.

Never before have so many royalties visited the English court simultaneously. Even the jubilee of Queen Victoria did not bring so many European sovereigns to England. Among the King's guests were:

Emperor William of Germany.
King Alfonso of Spain.
King Haakon of Norway.
Empress of Germany.
Queen Victoria of Spain.
Queen Amelie of Portugal.
Queen Maud of Norway.
The Prince of Asturias.
Prince Olaf of Norway.

A visit from even one European sovereign always costs tens of thousands of dollars not only for entertainments, the keeping of the dozens of noblemen and servants who form the visiting royalty's retinue, but there is also to be considered the expense of renovating the royal palaces in honor of the visit, street decorations, military guards of honor, special trains, reviews of troops, and dozens of other items, all of which are unusually expensive.

A FORTUNE TO ENTERTAIN.

But this month with not less than nine foreign royalties and their numerous suites, King Edward's expense bill will run into many hundreds of thousands of dollars. Some little part of this vast sum may be meant of government funds, but the bulk of it will come out of the King's private purse. The total will be known only to that canny Scotch banker, Lord Farquhar, master of the household, who manages the King's personal finances.

The principal items of expenditure will run about as follows:

Wages to extra court officials, waiters, huntsmen, musicians, interpreters, extra police, detectives, etc.	$50,000
Decorations, repairs to Kensington Palace, Windsor Castle, other royal residences used by guests and sweeping 2,500 royal chimneys	50,000
Street decorations in London Windsor and Portsmouth	25,000
State banquets and entertainments	50,000
Reviews of troops, naval displays, etc.	150,000
Total	$325,000

Not this summary does not include the value of the gifts presented to the sovereigns; nor the value of the gifts to the retinues of the different monarchs. The bills for several of the items enumerated, like the military and naval displays and the street decorations, are met by the government and the cities immediately interested.

Taking all his expenses into consideration, it is a safe estimate to put the cost of King Edward's wholesale hospitality at $500,000.

A Bad Gang of Thiefs Rounded Up at Cobalt Loot is Recovered

Cobalt, Dec. 8.—A raid was made last night on a shack down at Mile Post 101, and as a result William Dryden, Frank Taylor, Angus Robertson, Arthur Hogben, Edward James and Donald McCullough are in Cobalt jail, charged with theft.

Lumber camps, freight cars, mining camps and shacks have been robbed, complaints being made almost daily. Petty thieving explains the mystery of how at least six men live in Cobalt without working. There are others who toil not, neither do they spin, and still survive.

William Dryden is a young Englishman about 20 years of age. He has been trying to sell good grey blankets at 80c a pair. Suspicion was aroused, and after waiting and watching the shack down at 101 a raid was made and the above arrests resulted.

A varied assortment of articles was found in the place, which would do credit to a York street pawnshop, including about 40 pairs of blankets, canned goods in abundance, peas, corn, tomatoes, etc., several sides of bacon, half a quarter of beef, boots, razor strops, a .22 Colt's rifle, pipes, two large tins of tea and a similar quantity of coffee and some cocoa for the more refined, a quantity of magazines and books, embracing both light and serious literature—in fact, everything one would look for in a New Ontario store, unless possibly soap, was found.

Mr. John Hunter Killed in Runaway

Team Dragged Him Against Bridge with Fatal Results

On Friday a fatal accident occurred at Garden Hill, when John Hunter, a well-known farmer of Hope, lost his life.

It appears that Mr. Hunter drove to Garden Hill during the afternoon, bringing with him a load of grain to the village mill. While standing a short distance away from his sleigh at the mill the horses started. Mr. Hunter caught the lines, but was unable to get the team under control. The sleigh collided with a bridge, Mr. Hunter's body striking the bridge with great force. It was evident that he had received very serious injuries, and he was placed on the afternoon G.T.R. train to be taken to the Nicholls Hospital here. Before reaching Millbrook however, he expired. The remains were removed to Mr. W. J. Gillott's undertaking rooms and coroner at Millbrook. The deceased was 67 years of age, and unmarried.

Gold Lake Hunt Club Competition

Shooting Match at Jackson Park for Belgian Hares

Tomorrow at one o'clock a most interesting sporting event will be held at Jackson Park, when the Gold Lake Hunt Club will hold the first of a series of shooting matches to be held under their auspices during the present winter months.

Tomorrow's shooting matches will be for prizes including Belgian hares, dressed and alive, geese, turkeys, ducks and other prizes. This event will be a target practice as the law strictly forbids the shooting at live birds at such matches.

All shooting in these matches comes under what is generally known as "sporting shooting," i.e., from the shoulder of a man on foot. No rifle allowed but those of a strictly sporting character or calibre. No sights allowed except strictly open, i.e., no rhodolite or needle in the barrel or Lyman sights allowed.

These rules will be strictly enforced.

The distance of the shots in these matches will be 75 yards off hand.

King Oscar, of Sweden, is at Death's Door

Has Lapsed Into Unconsciousness and End is Near Crown Prince is Regent

Stockholm, Dec. 8.—King Oscar of Sweden is dying. He has lain unconscious all day and the end is expected at any moment.

The final sacraments have been administered.

All the members of the royal family are gathered at the bedside of the venerable monarch.

Crown Prince Gustave was formally appointed regent on Wednesday last. The king at that time, fearing the worst, consented to hand over the government to him.

The only word the king has spoken in hours was an expression of thanks when the doctors had succeeded in relieving his pain. He immediately relapsed into unconsciousness.

POLICE

A local wine clerk who has recently been going the pace too swiftly in the fraternal application of suitable leg, at Saturday's session of the police court, signed the pledge and was let go with a plain warning that his next drunk will be severely dealt with.

Poor old John Oakley, an inoffensive old man, seemingly incapable of taking care of himself, was charged with vagrancy. John has been sawing wood, but has only been able to make enough to pay his board and had to come to the police station to sleep. He has been coming so often that Friday night, when he applied for lodgings he was locked up.

Saturday morning he told his worship that he expected to get a job with some farmers and begged hard to get off. His worship allowed him to go on the understanding that he would keep out of the police station.

Will Meet Tonight

The committee in charge of the benefit concert for Dave Hartley, will meet in the council chambers tonight at seven o'clock.

Invited to Join in the Holy War

Montreal, Dec. 7.—Under the heading "Soldiers, to arms!" La Croix publishes the following article in its last issue.

"The question is to wage war against Mr. Godfrey Langlois in St. Louis, at the next election contest, and we invite all true Catholics, Conservatives, Liberals, Nationalists, to group and lay their heads together without delay for that purpose. To arms! Let us all unite in an effort to throw overboard from the legislative ship that dangerous and cumbersome politician, that flat and anti-patriotic journalist. Strengthened by the religious and national interests that unite us, let us advance, as one man for the conquest of St. Louis division. Let this be a holy war."

DEATH LIST 500--THE WHOLE TOWN MOURNS 16 BODIES RECOVERED

Not One Family but Has Lost a Relative--Weird Scenes of Grief at Mine--75 Bodies Located

"To judge from the small volume of smoke it is evident that the disaster was caused by the explosion of dust, which was probably ignited by a packet of gas or a blown out shot."—C. W. Watson, President of the Consolidation Coal Company.

Monongah, W. Va., Dec. 7.—Up to this evening but sixteen bodies have been brought to the surface of Mines No. 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal Company at Monongah. Four were Americans.

The number of dead will not fall [illegible] probably reach close to five hundred. About forty per cent. of the entombed men are Americans.

All hope is gone that any of the men are still alive. Nearly 400 coffins reached Monongah today from Pittsburg and from West Virginia cities.

While only sixteen bodies have been recovered or brought out of the mine, members of the rescuing parties stated that over 75 bodies have been located.

C. W. Watson, president of the Consolidated Coal Company, said today:

"The accident was entirely unexpected. As yet we do not know the exact cause of the explosion. It might have resulted from a blown out shot igniting a pocket of gas. About 50 per cent. of the mine accidents of the country are caused in this manner. It is probable the present one resulted from the same cause. We will conduct a rigid investigation. Investigations, however, will not benefit the dead miners. Their families will be looked after. The company will bury all the dead."

All saloons in Monongah have been closed since the explosion, and the 6000 miners employed in other mines in the vicinity have suspended work and tendered their assistance to rescuing parties.

The property loss is estimated at $50,000, exclusive of the cost of rescue work.

MINE REGARDED AS SAFE.

There are between 8000 and 9000 inhabitants in the mining town of Monongah, and it is doubtful if in this entire population there are a score of persons who have not either a near relative or close friend numbered among the victims of the disaster.

The people of the town are stunned by the catastrophe they had long regarded their mines as practically immune from the dangers so common to the coal mining industry. The plant of the company was provided with every device for the protection of life and the equipment of bituminous coal.

All of last night hundreds of men stood about the entrances to the two mines. They said nothing, but when approached and asked a question, they would give to their emotions.

WOMEN'S GREAT GRIEF DAY.

All day women crowded the sides of the hills overlooking the ill-fated mines and cried aloud. As the day advanced, they became almost crazed through grief and suspense. One woman pulled out her hair, handfuls at a time. Another tore all the skin from both of her cheeks with her finger nails. Some lay down on the frozen ground and cried themselves to sleep. In this condition many were carried to their homes and, without awakening.

The rescuing parties penetrated mine No. 6 about 2,500 feet before they came upon the first of the dead. A necessity of the corpses will, it is believed, be found about a mile further out.

The four hundred men were working a territory one mile square. It will be days before a thorough search of all this area can be made. As the rescuing parties advance they must clear away the debris. The explosion wrecked over six hundred mine cars, and these choke the entries on all sides.

EXPLOSION TERRIFIC.

A peculiar and remarkable feature is that notwithstanding the force of the explosion, very little of the mine roof was wrecked. By those who witnessed it, the explosion was likened to the discharge of a cannon. Every movable object was shot with terrible force through the mine. At the entrance to mine No. 8, a concrete power house was completely demolished. A piece of concrete weighing fully 1,000 pounds was blown clear across the West Fork River, landing on the side of a hill in a radius of a half-mile not another piece of concrete can be found.

Offer Bourassa a Place in Cabinet

Sir Wilfrid Said to be Anxious to Have Him Back

To Resume His Support

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—What will be done with Henri Bourassa, ex-member of the House of Commons for Labelle, is a question that is much discussed in the lobbies these days.

The election in Labelle to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Bourassa's resignation to contest the Labelle-Chambly by-election in opposition to Hon. Adelard Turgeon, a member of the Quebec government, will be held on Dec. 30, and friends of the government and Mr. Bourassa are exerting themselves to bring the late member for Labelle back into the fold. It is even said that a conference was held in the office of the chief Liberal whip a few days ago and that Mr. Bourassa's terms were presented. Just what they are is not told, but on the government side there is a belief that a pact was entered into to present Mr. Bourassa with his old seat and eventually a seat in the cabinet. The trouble, however, is to confront Bourassa's independent opinions to the policy of the government. He has been a thorn to a premier who is autocratic enough to demand complete obedience from his subjects, but wise enough to recognize Labelle's ex-member as a strong force in Quebec politics.

An intimate friend, however, says he has Mr. Bourassa's word that he intends to devote himself to Quebec affairs.

Local Plumber Leaves for Scotland

Mr. Alex. Archibald, the well known local plumber, left on Saturday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Archibald, for New York whence they will sail on Monday on the steamer Caledonia for the old land. They will spend two months at Mr. Archibald's former home in New Mains, Scotland, returning to Canada about February 1st. This is Mr. Archibald's first visit to Scotland since coming out here five years ago, and he is taking back with him a high admiration for Peterborough. As Mr. Archibald has prospered at his trade since his arrival here, his visit to his old home may result in others accompanying him on his return.

Found Guilty of Using Mails to Defraud

Buffalo, Dec. 7.—Charles Howe Manley, a former clergyman, was found guilty in the United States district court today of conspiracy to defraud and of using the mails to defraud. The extreme penalty, imprisonment for thirteen and a half years and $2,500 fine, his wife faced when the verdict was pronounced.

Manley advertised in thirty magazines for customers for portable buildings of all sorts. He had offices here under the name of the National Construction Company, in which his female stenographers, with the help of rubber stamp signatures, figured as officers. One hundred and thirteen people in all parts of the country sent to Toronto and other Canadian cities sent Manley orders, with sums ranging from $100 to $500. Most of these got nothing, except a letter from the company. Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan really received a portable playhouse, but Secretary Joseph P. Forraker's wife who sent $101.25 got nothing. The evidence showed that Manley had no facilities for filling even an infinitesimal part of his promises. He received $15,075 from his would-be customers, and gave back about $3,000 under pressure.

THE BANK OF MONTREAL

Among the great financial institutions of the Dominion there is none in which the people take greater interest than that of the Bank of Montreal, whose stockholders held their general annual meeting a few days ago. This splendid institution's tale of growth and development is an old story, year after year repeated, until the people of Canada as well as of other countries come to look upon this Bank as one of the world's greatest pillars of financial strength.

In the statement of the bank's present business there is nothing that does not, with due reference to temporary conditions, indicate the usual gratifying state of solidity, elasticity and progress. A decrease of nine millions in interest-bearing deposits needs no accounting for, at the present price of permanent investments. It is clear enough where this money has gone and right enough, that it should go there. The general increase in ordinary deposits is on the other hand, a most gratifying evidence of the universal faith in this great Canadian institution at a time when many great banks and trust companies across the line are seeing their customers stampeded in hysterical alarm. An increase of nearly fifty millions in current loans in Canada is a vivid reminder of the giants power exercised by "the Old Lady of St. James Street" to facilitate the business of the country, and of the general way in which that power is exercised.

The speeches have seldom been more notable at any annual meeting. Mr. Clouston's reply to criticisms of the Canadian banking policy, particularly in relation to call loans abroad, was absolutely final. Sir George Drummond's review of the financial and commercial conditions of the country was convincing in its cautious optimism. It is inevitable that the meeting as a whole will have a most important influence upon the restoration of public confidence and ease of mind.

The enlargement of the Board of Directors was a natural step in view of the doubling of the business since 1900, when the present number was fixed. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and Mr. Morrice will both tend to strengthen it, if such a thing were needed, in the confidence and sympathy of the people of Canada.

A HIGH CLASS SHOE SALE

Commences This Morning at Crossmans

Profits Sacrificed to Introduce New Department

The new department, so recently installed in the large Departmental Store of A. W. Crossman's has had a splendid turnover of goods considering its comparative infancy, but they have decided to give it a genuine introduction—one that the Peterborough people will always remember and remember with the greatest satisfaction.

This shoe department is divided into two distinct sections—the women's section is on the second floor opposite the elevator and in such a location that the patrons are enabled to try on shoes in comparative privacy. The rest room is at the command of any who wish to use its large cosy chairs and wait their turn or wait for friends. The men's section is on the main floor at the rear of Semi-Ready Wardrobe and every accomodation will be found there for the comfort of the men.

The stocks in both departments are of the highest class and nothing but the newest styles in bright new goods are carried—a new department with new goods.

This morning sharp at 8.30 these two sections will be opened with nearly half a hundred liner of goods on display at prices never before heard of in Peterborough, and will be continued for two weeks. Shop early and secure the cream of the sale. Remember, two weeks only. See other local papers for specials during the sale.

Trial Catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people—without a penny's cost—the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

The Titled Dealers in Social Introductions do Thriving Business

London, Dec. 7.—The statement by Reginald Spaulding, recently arrested in America, that he was sent by the Countess of Suffield to sell court presentations of Lady Suffield's millionairess, has been received in England without the inflection of a single nose raised.

Baron Suffield, a friend to his Majesty, is extremely wealthy. So it is said, is his Majesty. Lady Suffield, more exposed than with is said that in the Spaulding charge there is not a vestige of truth.

"No one can believe in it," she said to a reporter. "In the first instance, I would never have borrowed money from such an adventurer as Spaulding has proved himself to be. Were I in need of funds I would assuredly have gone to my brother, Lord Ravelstoke, who is not only head of a banking house, but an immensely rich peer."

Despite these denials it is known throughout England that, however baseless the Spaulding tale may be it is by no means without precedent in fact.

A London clubman of renowned title and great social distinction, when told of Lady Suffield's denial of the Spaulding charge, said:

"I would not have troubled to do that if I were she. Why should any needy noblewoman be ashamed because she chaperones an heir or heiress for compensation. There is nothing dishonorable about the practice; in fact, I think it much more honorable than the English custom of running into debt to tradesmen until one must go either to Morocco or through the bankruptcy courts."

This opinion, while not often so frankly expressed, prevails generally among the English aristocracy.

It is recalled that the Countess of Selkirk took charge of William Waldorf Astor's daughter, Miss Pauline, when the American millionaire renounced his country and sought social place in England. That was but one notable instance, even at that time, and now it is known that the trade of social chaperonage is vigorously prosecuted and richly paid.

The custom has been simplified by long practice until hardly any red tape is involved. The American climber who wishes his wife, his daughter or himself introduced into swagger society, or even "presented" at court, easily obtains the name of some titled Englishman or Englishwoman willing to perform such commission on a cash basis. Any intelligent clerk at one of London's big hotels will give the necessary hints. It is true the negotiations with the obliging chaperons are carried through [illegible] people, but the chance is [illegible] they [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

JAPAN'S INDUSTRIAL SPIRIT

The national spirit manifested by the Japanese in the war with Russia awakened admiration all over the world. There had been occasional rumors of the development of a new nation in the Islands of the Pacific. Now and then some writer described the progress which was being made by the "Yankees of the Orient" and prophesied great things for the future. It was known that for a quarter of a century the Japanese youths of promise had been sent to America and to Europe to be trained in the schools. The restless activity of these sharp eyed students had attracted attention everywhere. But to thousands of people the war with Russia brought a revelation respecting the Japanese. There were some manifestations of the national spirit which appealed to people.

A writer in a current magazine shows how the Japanese in times of peace are trying to make this admiration of the world a valuable asset in developing an industrial spirit. The nation has taken up industry and commerce with the same sort of enthusiasm that was shown in the campaigns of war. New enterprises have been capitalized and old ones increased in capital until nearly $400,000,000 in gold is represented in more than 700 such projects. Many of these are in the direct line of modern progress, including fifty-one electrical companies, ten navigation and eleven steam railway companies, with decided activity in the organization of banking institutions. The larger cities are mostly interested, but the same sort of movement is apparent, all over the empire.

Other great projects are being considered, one of them a national corporation for exploiting Corea and Manchuria. Every effort is being put forth to get the sympathy and support of the people for these industrial campaigns just as that sympathy and support were given on the field of battle a few months ago. This activity in commerce and industry is being manifested in the presence of an almost hopeless war debt, a struggle to make both ends meet in administration which is a constant worry, and a pro rata taxation much above that of other large nations which have a richer population behind them.

It is this situation which leads the writer mentioned to the conclusion that the hope of the Japanese is to "capitalize their victory before its influence upon the imagination of the world wanes." In other words, the government is lending its name to these various projects capitalized at more than $200,000,000 with the definite idea that "the government guarantees the interest on the bonds" will prove a sufficiently attractive inducement to lead many foreign investors to furnish the needed funds to make Japan great in industrial and commercial fields.

Irish Jury Disagree

Dublin, Dec. 7.—The jury before which James P. Farrell, Irish Nationalist member of parliament for North Longford, and forty other men were being tried on charges of taking part in an unlawfully assembly likely to cause riot, has disagreed. This has been the result of all but one of the many trials held during the past fortnight, throughout Ireland of men charged with cattle driving and inciting to riot. Disagreements by the juries have been general. In spite of the fact that the presiding judges have pointed out that according to the evidence the men clearly were guilty. Mr. Farrell and his companions were tried at Leinster assizes.

There are still isolated cases of cattle driving in Ireland, but the practice has been largely stopped, through the intercession of the bishops, who have taken a strong stand against its continuance.

It is openly understood that Mr. Farrell, who is the editor and proprietor of the Longford Leader, organized several cattle drives in the grazing districts of County Longford and encouraged the movement.

The Financial Situation Discussed

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—The financial situation was discussed here last night by financiers of national prominence before the American Academy of Political Science, "The Lessons of the Financial Crisis." The speakers included F. A. Vanderlip, vice-president of the National City Bank, New York; Wm. B. Ridgely, comptroller of the currency; Chas. H. Treat, United States treasurer; J. B. Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, and other.

Mr. Vanderlip presided at the session, and in his introductory address said:

"Some people attribute the trouble to the policies of the president of the United States, while others find the cause in the gambling of Wall street, but it is probable that in neither extremes will be found the real cause of the present financial situation. The Boer war and the Russo-Japanese war necessarily caused the destruction of much wealth, and, immediately following these wars there came an unprecedented period of world-wide activity that found an insufficient capital."

The causes which led to the present financial crisis in the United States and means for safeguarding the country against such disasters in the future were discussed by Jacob H. Schiff, who attributed the present trouble mainly to too great expansion of enterprise of every nature, resulting in straining of financial requirements, and particularly of credit beyond legitimate limits. He maintained that the so-called prosperity madness was developed, not in financial circles alone, but in industry and commerce as well. Mr. Schieff said the greatest care should be taken in attempting to cure the disorders which have resulted in the conditions of today.

DO YOU FRECKLE?

If So, These Remedies May Be of Service.

Freckle remedies are always in order. Here are several:

Morning and night rub over the skin a combination made of a half drum of boracic acid and a quarter of an ounce of ointment of rosewater. Do not think that this is going to cause the freckles to disappear like magic. It will not. It will simply prevent them from increasing and if they are very light in color will cause them to fade after a time.

Stronger, but quite usable, if one does not unnecessarily expose the face at the time, are sixteen grains of oleate of copper mixed with half an ounce of oxide of zinc ointment. This should be rubbed on night and morning after washing.

Still another lotion that can be applied several times during the day is a mixture of two ounces of lactic acid, one ounce of glycerin and half an ounce of rosewater. It should be mopped on with a bit of muslin.

An ointment that is sometimes more convenient to pack than a liquid is made of ten grains of levigated sulphate of zinc and a half ounce of elder flower ointment. These are mixed and rubbed on night and morning.

If a person is seized with violent convulsions and loss of consciousness, you may know that he has a fit of some kind. The head should be raised a little and no stimulant given; the limbs should be allowed plenty of freedom, and a little beef tea or milk should be given on recovery.

To clean cut glass wash thoroughly with warm soapsuds and cover with sawdust for an hour or two or until perfectly dry, then brush off with a soft brush and it will be clear and sparkling.

E. S. CLOUSTON,
General Manager.

Bank of Montreal,
Montreal, 31st October, 1907.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

The Vice-President then spoke, in part, as follows:—

"There is not much in the General Statement, laid before you, calling for special comment. Deposits not bearing interest have temporarily increased since last year $6,300,000. Deposits bearing interest have decreased $9,000,000; partly through the withdrawal of funds for railway construction and partly owing to our depositors making more permanent investments in securities at the present tempting low prices. There has been, however, a satisfactory and general increase in our regular deposit business through the entire Dominion.

"Early in the year, in view of the approaching stringency in the money markets of the world, we slightly advanced our rates of discount, not so much with a desire to increase our profits, but more to give a practical indications to our customers of our expectations of the trend of financial affairs, and to impress upon them that in the conduct of their business they must bear it in mind and govern themselves accordingly.

"The stringency is largely the result of universal prosperity, and as a natural consequence the world has been spending more and saving less. This state of affairs will cure itself by retrenchment.

LOANS ABROAD.

"I wish to allude briefly to some criticism which has recently been made in the press respecting the practice of Canadian banks in keeping a portion of their reserves in other countries. The aggregate of call and current loans by the banks elsewhere than in Canada, approximating at times, $160,000,000, has been cited as evidence that these institutions are not serving the needs of Canadian borrowers as freely as they might, were all the money loaned in this country. In the first place, let me point out that a year ago, when these loans, abroad, in England, the United States, and other countries, amounted to $96,000,000, the banks had deposits made with their foreign branches of $56,000,000, so that the actual net amount of foreign loans was only some $41,000,000. Every dollar of this money is loaned on call at short date, upon the most ample security. It constitutes a part of the reserves of Canadian banks. If to-morrow we were to call in the whole of our loans of this class, which are at all times immediately available, the mercantile public of Canada would derive absolutely no benefit from the action.

"I wish also to correct another erroneous impression which appears to have crept into the public mind, and that is, that in consequence of the financial condition in the United States our loans are tied up and the money cannot be brought into Canada. I have no hesitation in saying that there has been no time during the present crisis when we could not realize all our call loans in the United States, and transfer the proceeds to England, when we could easily import gold here if it should be considered advisable. But as we know how liquid and available they are, we continue to retain all that is not needed here, both as parts of our reserves and as a valuable aid to our international exchanges.

PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

The President in moving the adoption of the report, spoke of the recent financial panic in the United States.

"To this result," he said, "various causes contributed. Among the most prominent was a wave of distrust and hostility to corporations and capital which seems to have passed over the United States, and for which some justification was given by the management of some great countries within its borders. This hostility to corporations, to my view, merely hastened the coming and added to the violence of a collapse, bound to come anyway.

"Strangely enough, the hostility to which I refer has manifested itself strongly against railways, in spite of the fact that railways on this continent have been constructed and are operated at least as cheaply and efficiently as anywhere in the world, with a consequent preponderating influence on the development of the country, and a substantial assistance in raising the price receivable by the agriculturists for their produce.

"No doubt all these disturbing conditions may be expected to pass away, and normal and saner views once more rule, and it must not be overlooked that all the present trouble leaves the resources of that country practically undiminished and its powers of recuperation unimpaired.

"Here in Canada we have escaped most, if not all, of the troubles of our neighbors. The collapse in stocks has, no doubt, affected many investors, but, beyond a certain tightening of the money market and advancing interest, I see no evidence of serious ill effects. The banks have been acting with caution and reserve, which is eminently proper with a conflagration raging next door."

After reviewing in detail the trade conditions of 1907, the President said: "A good deal depends on the duration of dear money in the financial centres of the world, and, not having the gift of prophecy, I refrain from expressing any opinion on that point. What the situation does seem to counsel is the wisdom of refraining from speculative ventures, from embarking much in enterprises in new fields, until capital flows more freely."

The report was adopted.

A motion increasing the directorate from ten to twelve was adopted.

DIRECTORS ELECTED.

Various congratulatory speeches were made, and the following directors elected:—

R. B. Angus, E. S. Clouston, Hon. Sir George A. Drummond, K.C.M.G., E. B. Greenshields, Hon. Robert Mackay, Sir Wm. C. Macdonald, David Morrice, A. T. Patterson, Sir Robert G. Reid, James Ross, Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy, the Right Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G. C. M. G.

The honorary president, president and vice-president were in the ordinary course of business elected at the meeting of the directors.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

ed those of Ella Grey as the young man answered, "I have not felt like going out to-day, for my first call saddened me"; and then, with his arm around the fairy form of Ella, his affianced bride, he told her of the cold, dreary room, of the mother colder still, and of the noble little girl who had divested herself of her own clothing that her mother might be warm.

Ella Grey had heard of such scenes before, had even been in them; but the idea that she could do anything to relieve the poor had never entered her mind. It is true, she had once given a party dress to a starving woman, and a pound of candy to a ragged boy who had asked for aid; but here her charity ended; so, though she seemed to listen with interest to the sad story, her mind was wandering elsewhere, and when her companion ceased she merely said, "Romantic, wasn't it?"

There was a look of disappointment on the young man's face, which was quickly observed by Ella, who attributed it to its right source, and hastened to ask numberless questions about Dora. "How old was she? Did he think her pretty, and hadn't she better go to the funeral the next day and bring her home for a waiting-maid?—she wanted one sadly, and from the description the orphan girl would just suit."

"No, Ella," answered her lover; "the child is going to live in the country with some relatives, and will be much better off there."

"The country," repeated Ella. "I would rather freeze in New York than to live in the dismal country."

Again the shadow came over the gentleman's brow, as he said, "Do you indeed object so much to a home in the country?"

Ella knew just what he wanted her to say; so she answered, "Oh, no, I can be happy anywhere with you, but do please let me spend just one winter in the city after——"

Here she paused while the bright blushes broke over her childish face. She could not say, even to him, "after we are married," so he said it for her, drawing her closer to his side, and forgetting Dora Deane as he painted the joyous future when Ella would be all his own. Eleven o'clock sounded from more than one high tower, and at each stroke poor Dora Deane moaned in anguish, thinking to herself, "Last night at this time she was here." "Eleven o'clock," said Ella Grey's diamond-set watch; and, pushing back her wavy hair, the young man kissed her rosy cheek and bade her a fond good-night. As he reached the door she called him back, while she asked him the name of the little girl who had so excited his sympathy.

"I do not know," he answered. "Strange that I forgot to inquire. But no matter. We shall never meet again"; and feeling sure that what he said was true he walked away.

CHAPTER III.

Three hundred miles to the westward, and the storm which on New Year's Eve swept so furiously over all parts of the State was perceptible only in the dull gray clouds which obscured the wintry sky, shutting out the glimmering starlight, and apparently making still brighter the many cheerful lights which shone forth from the handsome dwellings in the village of Dunwood. Still the night was intensely cold, and as Mrs. Sarah Deane, in accordance with her daughter Eugenia's request, added a fresh bit of coal to the already well-filled stove, she sighed involuntarily, wishing the weather would abate, for the winter's store of fuel was already half gone, and the contents of her purse were far too scanty to meet the necessity of her household and at the same time minister to the wants of her extravagant daughters.

"But I can economize in one way," she said, half aloud, and crossing the room she turned down the astral lamp which was burning brightly upon the table.

"Don't, pray, mother, make it darker than a dungeon!" petulantly exclaimed Eugenia, herself turning back the lamp. "I do like to have rooms light enough to see one's self"; and glancing complacently at the reflection of her handsome face in the mirror opposite, she resumed her former lounging attitude upon the sofa.

Mrs. Deane sighed again, but she had long since ceased to oppose the imperious Eugenia, who was to all intents and purposes the mistress of the house, and who oftentimes led her mother and weaker-minded sister into the commission of acts from which they would otherwise have shrunk. Possessed of a large share of romance, Eugenia had given to their place the name of "Locust Grove"; and as Mrs. Deane managed to keep up a kind of outside show by practicing the most pinching economy in everything pertaining to the actual comfort of her family, they were looked upon as being quite wealthy and aristocratic by those who saw nothing of their inner life—who knew nothing of the many shifts and turns in the kitchen to save money for the decoration of the parlors, or the frequent meager meals eaten from the pantry shelf, in order to make amends for the numerous dinner and evening parties which Eugenia and Alice insisted upon giving, and which their frequent visits to their friends rendered necessary. Extensive servant-hire was of course too expensive, and as both Eugenia and Alice attached the utmost contempt for anything like work, their mother toiled in the kitchen from morning until night, assisted only by a young girl, whose mother constantly threatened to take her away, unless her wages were increased, a thing which seemed impossible.

It was just after this woman's weekly visit, and in the midst of preparations for a large dinner party, that Mrs. Deane received her sister's letter, to which there was added a postscript, in a strange handwriting, saying she was dead. There was a moisture in Mrs. Deane's eyes as she read the touching lines; and, leaning her heated forehead against the cool window pane, she too thought of the years gone by—of the gentle girl, the companion of her childhood, who had never given her an unkind word of him the only man she had ever loved, and Dora as their child. Fanny's child and John!

"Yes," she said, half aloud, "I will give her a home," but anon there came stealing over her the old bitterness of feeling which she had cherished since she knew that Fanny was preferred to herself, and then the evil of her nature whispered: "No, I will not receive their child. We can hardly manage to live now, and it is not my duty to incur an additional expense. Dora must stay where she is, and if I do not answer the letter she will naturally suppose I never received it."

Thus deciding the matter, she crushed the letter into her pocket and went back to her work, but there was an added weight upon her spirits while continually ringing in her ears were the words: "Care for John's child and mine." "If I could make her of any use to me," she said at last, and then her eye fell upon Bridget, whose stay with her was so uncertain, the dark thought entered her mind. "Why could not Dora fill her place? It would be a great saving, and of course the child must expect to work."

Still, reason as she would, Mrs. Deane could not at once bring herself to the point of making a menial of one who was every way her equal, neither could she decide to pass the letter by unnoticed; so for the present she strove to dismiss the subject, which was not broached to her daughters until the evening on which we first introduced them to our readers. Then taking her seat by the brightly burning lamp, she drew from her pocket and read it aloud, while Alice drummed an occasional note upon the piano and Eugenia beat a tattoo upon the carpet with her delicate French slipper.

"Of course she won't come," said Alice, as her mother finished reading. "It was preposterous in Aunt Fanny to propose such a thing"; and she glanced toward Eugenia for approbation of what she had said.

Eugenia's quick, active mind had already looked at the subject in all its bearings, and in like manner with her mother she saw how Dora's presence there would be a benefit; so to Alice's remark she replied: "It will sound well for us to have a cousin in the poorhouse, won't it? For my part, I propose that she comes, and then be made to earn her own living. We can dismiss Bridget, who is only two years older than Dora, and we shall thus avoid quarreling regularly with her vixenish mother, besides saving a dollar every week."

"So make a drudge of Dora," interrupted Alice. "Better leave her in the poorhouse at once."

Not Her Forte.

The story goes that a pretty young lady once played in class a ballade by Chopin in a very amateurish way. Liszt walked up and down the room excitedly murmuring: "Heiliger Blumlan! Heiliger Bimbam!" the equivalent apparently of "Great Scott!" But when she had finished he went up to her in a most friendly manner, laid his hand upon her head as if in benediction and said gently: "My dear child, marry soon! Goodby!"

Fearless Women Travelers.

Miss Lavina Rudberg was chosen by Yale university to travel far up into the wilds of the Quinault Indian reservation to take the physical measurements of the braves and squaws there. She has just returned from a journey of a wild and dangerous character through forests, over mountains and over lakes in a frail canoe. Miss Rudberg and Miss Zoe Kincaid hold the record for fearlessness among women adventurers.

Keeping Grassful.

"I never eat rich or greasy foods; I never sleep in a closed room; I walk every day—that is all," a prominent actress is said to have answered when asked how she managed to keep her youthful grace and beauty of figure when actually a grandmother. Indolence and indulgence in eating what tastes good regardless of consequences have much to answer for as beauty killers.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But this article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing, antiseptic balm, put up in small nickel capped glass jars at 25c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Petrolatum, suggested by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, bloating, belching, biliousness and taste, are surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated Catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES

said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $200,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 2 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $3.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at a par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, secure shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary market conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from its mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider his ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in BULK gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * with good management and proper development, I will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months. DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Wonderful Miracles Worked By Dr. Hamilton's Pills

Learned Physician Astounded by the Increasing Numbers of His Cures.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 21.—That unusual knowledge is possessed by Dr. Hamilton is evidenced by the statement of Mrs. MacLeod, of 514 Campbell Road, of this city. For years this lady suffered with torturing reeling headaches that could only be allayed by strong narcotics. "Different physicians," she states, "failed, so I decided to see what Dr. Hamilton could do. I purchased a few boxs of his Mandrake and Butternut Pills and their use immediately gave me most grateful relief. Both ache and their depressing influence left me. Spells of fainting, weak, sour hours of sleeplessness, fear of nervous collapse, all these disappeared after treating with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. My restoration to vigorous health is complete and no remedy could do more than Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

By searching out all weak spots, by enriching the blood, nourishing and purifying the system. Dr. Hamilton's Pills work marvels for the sick and weak. 25 cents per box at all dealers.

Lakefield Formerly Called Selby

Yesterday a Times representative chatting with an old gentleman named St. Lawrence, who lives on lot No. 32, con. 12, of of Otonabee, learned an item about the ancient history of the village of Lakefield, that will probably be unknown to many of our readers, who every summer pass through our northern suburb. That is that the original name of that village was "Selby," previous to its being named Lakefield. The name Selby as given to the village was taken from the name of a female dog belonging to the late Rev. Mr. Bridges, the gentleman who built "Bridges' Tower" at Rice Lake, and whose tombstone is still to be seen in the Gore's Landing cemetery.

It was the late Hon. Zach Burnham and the late Col. S. Strickland, who, deciding that the village was not shown proper courtesy by being named after a dog, had the name changed to Lakefield.

Splendid Grant to Nichols Hospital

Mr. Richard Hall Hands Over Balance of Nichols Estate

At a meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Trust board, held in the Dominion Bank board room, the following self explanatory letter by Mr. Richard Hall was read;

The Board of Trustees Nicholls Hospital Trust.

Gentlemen,—The time having arrived for the final disposition of the residue of the Nicholls Estate a scheme was recently submitted to the honorable, the attorney-general of Ontario, and approved by him, by which, after making specific donations the executors and trustees proposed that the remainder should be given to the Nicholls Hospital. Among the specific donations is the sum of $30,000 to be expended upon additional building for the hospital. The balance in the hands of the trustees largely consists of United States railway bonds, which, at present have an abnormally low market value; consequently it has been suggested that these should be handed over to the hospital trust to be dealt with by that body. This suggestion has also been approved by the honorable, the attorney-general.

I therefore, have great pleasure in apprising you that I am now in a position to place in your hands, in addition to the sum of $30,000, for building, securities, which with the present endowment of $85,000, will give the hospital an endowment of about $200,000—this, with the income from patients and the grant from the government, should make the hospital self-sustaining, a condition of affairs which will undoubtedly give the board great pleasure.

I am sure that you will rejoice with me that such a large sum is being added to the endowment fund of the hospital, an object which we are aware was so dear to the late Mrs. Nicholls, the benefactress to whom our city owes so much.

I am, gentlemen,

Yours faithfully,

(Sgd.) RICHARD HALL

for trustees estate late Mrs. C. J. Nicholls.

This grand consummation of an splendid beneficence, ably handled by those entrusted with the large sum left by the late Mrs. Nicholls, could not have been exhibited towards a more deserving public charity. We might remind our readers that in 1885 Mrs. Nicholls presented Moira Hall together with a $15,000 endowment for hospital purposes to the city. Some time later she had the present Nicholls Hospital erected. On the death of this great philanthropist, it was found she had willed hundreds of thousands of dollars to local churches and charitable, as well as other institutions.

Now in presenting this last benefaction amounting to approximately $115,000, the executors under Mrs. Nicholls will have wound up the estate, their stewardship having been approved and passed by the attorney-general.

Messrs Rich. Hall, John Crane and W. H. Hill form a committee to deal with the securities handed over by Mr. Hall.

Husband Objected to Pet Dog in Bed

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 7.—Alice Nicolay of Toronto, Ont., was granted a divorce here late yesterday afternoon in Judge Woodmansee's court after she had related a tale of abuse and cruelty at the hands of her husband, Herman T. Nicolay. Although technically the wife brought on herself the cruelty and abuse, Judge Woodmansee did not hesitate long to grant the decree.

Mrs. Nicolay herself admitted that the trouble started because of her affection for a pet dog of the Mexican hairless variety. She took the dog to bed with her on cold nights, and this angered her husband so that he struck her and pulled her and the dog out of bed, her by the hair and the dog by his caudal appendage.

Mrs. Nocolay was in Toronto when Nicolay came to that city and after a short courtship induced her to be his wife. They were married in Toronto, April 19, 1906, and shortly there after came to Cincinnati to live, separating the first of the present year.

Judge Woodmansee restored to the wife her maiden name, but made no provision for alimony. She will go back to the home of her parents in Toronto.

Decision Given in Suit Over 55,000 Acres of Indian Land--Province is Also Liable for Half the Annuities Paid to Indians

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—Mr. Justice Burbridge of the Exchequer Court has given judgment in the matter in dispute between the Dominion and Ontario governments as to the money spent by the Dominion on the territory at one time in dispute between Manitoba and Ontario. By the judgment, such expenses as were incurred by the Dominion in negotiating the treaties, and securing land from the Indians, must be borne by Ontario. On the other hand the Dominion must shoulder the expenses incurred for Indian schools; suppression of the liquor traffic and for the encouragement of agriculture among them.

This judgment means that Ontario will be obliged to pay a lump sum to the Dominion of some $388,000 and will henceforward be obliged to pay in perpetuity a portion, about $2.75 of the annuity of $5 a head received by the Indians of the region affected. The province also must assume a perpetual liability of $1,500, a year to the Indians for pets and ammunition. The lands affected amount to some 55,000 acres, of which 30,000 lie in what now is Ontario, and 25,000 in Keewatin. Ontario will assume the proportion of the Indian annuity proportionate to the extent of the territory which has passed into her possession, and will reimburse the Dominion for its expenditure on this head since 1873.

The Strathconas will Represent Peterboro in Intermediate O.H.A.

The Strathconas, champions of last season's city league, were handed over the Peterborough franchise and will represent this city in the intermediate series of the O.H.A. this season.

The following officers were elected for the Peterborough Strathcona Hockey Club, for the coming season as follows;

Hon. Pres.—Jas. Kendry.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—V. Eastwood.
President—C. G. Graham.
1st Vice-Pres.—R. M. Glover.
2nd Vice-Pres.—F. A. Clarke.

Treasurer,—W. Regan.
Manager—W. J. Metheral.

EXECUTIVE.

Messrs. Chas. Barber, Dr. Wightman, Clarence Wilson, Leonard Hobson and W. E. Wasson, were appointed to the Executive. Mr. F. D. Craig will represent the club at the meeting to be held in Port Hope on Wednesday to arrange the district schedule.

The teams in this district are Lindsay Port Hope, Whitby, Cobourg and Peterborough.

The Strathconas this year have all their splendid bunch of last year except H. White who will, this season play with the St. Georges of Toronto, and Jack Seymour, this year with the Lindsay Midgets.

In addition to their strong team of last year the Strathconas will have Rolly Glover and Jake Moore, both of last year's seniors, and also a lot of new talent. The Strathconas won the admiration of all lovers of good clean sport, by their fast and successful team, as well as individual, work last season, and will assuredly get the enthusiastic backing and support of the public this winter. The Strathconas start out this season under the favorable auspices of a successful season last year backed up by every material indication for their doing even better this season.

Hartley Challenged by English Walker

It seems that ambitious pedestrians are anxious to hang at their respective belts the pedestrian and successful scalp recently won by Dave Hartley of this city. Yesterday, Mr. Hartley, Peterborough's acknowledged champion pedestrian, received a letter from Mr. Jas. Slemin, 17 Enderley road, East Toronto, wanting to arrange a two hour walking contest with him. He says that he can show the people here some fancy heel and toe walking. His further states that he has just recently finished a 58-mile walk at Madison Square Gardens, New York City. He would accept half the receipts, and is willing to walk longer than two hours if Mr. Hartley desires him to.

Mr. Hartley has since receipt of this letter openly said that he will pay no attention to this challenge.

Should Know of This Prescription

Also Valuable Advice How to Relieve Rheumatism

Cut this out and put in some safe place, for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple, and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is; Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It cleanses these sponge like organs and gives them life and power to sift and strain the 500 ounces waste matter and uric acid from the blood relieving the worst forms of Rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood.

As you or anyone of your family, especially the old folks, may be attacked at any time it would be wise to cut this out and save it.

A well-known local druggist authority that this prescription is safe to use at any time.

Mix it yourself.

Milk Samples from the Actual Consumers

Whilst Sanitary Inspector Ball has done all that reasonably could be expected from a human being in the collection of milk samples for inspection, it might be noted that, in the near future an important change will be made in the manner of collecting the milk for sanitary tests. At present Sanitary Inspector Ball takes samples from the milkmen on the street. But he has devised a new method which will be followed when the next test is made. It requests that householders send him the address of their house and the name of their milkman and when the next test is to be made he will call at the houses and secure the samples required.

Clara Bloodgood Committed Suicide

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7.—The body of Clara Bloodgood, the actress, who committed suicide by shooting in her room at the Hotel Stafford, last night will be taken to New York today by her husband, William Lamber of New York, who reached Baltimore this morning. He declined to receive visitors, but through John Emerson, stage manager of the company, stated that the note left him by his wife gave absolutely no clue as to the motive for her act. It merely referred to some business matters which she desired him to attend to for her in New York, and evidently had been laid aside for mailing. Mr. Lambier could not, he declared, assign any reason for the deed, and Mr. Emerson added that he himself was no nearer a solution of the matter today than on last evening. He could only attribute it to the fears of a possible physical breakdown on the part of Mrs. Bloodgood. She had had a hard season, he said, with a large number of one-night stands, and that had told on her nervous system, and occasionally she would have a little nervous spell.

The fact of her purchase of the pistol here a few days ago, and the discovery of a medical book in her room with marked paragraphs treating of the parts of the brain, seemed to indicate premeditation. The coroner said that it was plain she had made a careful study of these paragraphs, with the hope of ending her life in a flash when the time came to fire a pistol ball into her head.

Baltimore, Dec. 7. — Mrs. Clara Bloodgood, the star in the "Truth," which began a week's engagement at the Academy of Music on Monday last, shot and killed herself at the Hotel Stafford tonight. There was found in the room a book entitled "How to Shoot Straight." The presence of this indicated that Mrs. Bloodgood had evidently been contemplating suicide.

Camorra Members at War

divided into rival factions and engaged in a battle which had to be quelled by military force.

A similar incident occurred lately in a prison yard, where two Camorra convicts fought with knives.

Rome, Dec. 7.—The trial of the 51 members of the Camorra who are in jail awaiting trial for the murder of the Cuocolo couple has been postponed again.

Meanwhile the Camorrists have turned their violence against each other. Sansonetto, a young man who had been elected Camorra Chief of the Bari Province, was waylaid by a band of defeated rival candidates, who stabbed him to death.

A fierce fight took place in the prison at Resina between rival Camorra factions. Jengo, a Camorra chief, was put into a big cell containing many prisoners, among whom he found a Naples Camorra leader named Petrone. There was a dispute between the two as to their respective powers in the Camorra, and Jengo slashed his rival's face severely with a stiletto, which he had managed to smuggle into jail. Soon the cell-full of prisoners were and inflicted fatal wounds on each other.

Brigadier Liguori, of the Carabineers, has been murdered at Vietro, when entering a tavern where a secret meeting of Camorrists was being held.

Welcome to New Pastor Farewell to the Old

St. Paul's Congregation Extend Hearty Welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Pogue--Farewell to Rev. Dr. Talling

Last night St. Paul's church was the center of attraction to a large number of people. It was an event in the history of the congregation that will long be remembered by those who attended and took part in the function. Rev. Mr. Pogue and Mrs. Pogue were tendered a hearty welcome by the members of the congregation, and at the same time a "farewell" was given Rev. Dr. Talling, who so ably filled the pulpit during the past three months.

The ladies, with their usual hospitality, served refreshments from six until eight. While this was going on, Mr. and Mrs. Pogue held a reception in the Guild room, where everyone, young and old, met the new pastor and his estimable wife.

Mrs. T. G. Hazlitt, one of the oldest members of the congregation, Mrs. Robt. Hall, President of the Ladies' Aid; Mrs. Walter Roger and Mr. Geo. Roger, daughter-in-law, and son of the first Pastor of St. Paul's, Mr. Richard Hall, Chairman of the Board of Management, received with Mr. and Mrs. Pogue, and introduced them to the congregation.

After the good things provided having been partaken of, Mr. R. E. Wood, took the chair, and opened the program with a few appropriate remarks, after which Sheriff Hall delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the office bearers.

Ex-Mayor Roger followed with an address on behalf of the congregation to which Rev. Mr. Pogue replied in feeling terms.

Addresses were also delivered by Rev. Dr. Marsh and Rev Dr. Talling.

Rev. Mr. Webb, President of the Ministerial Association, also delivered an address of welcome.

During the evening Rev. Dr. Talling was the recipient of a very handsome edition in 33 volumes of the New Century Bible, from the Bible Class. Mrs. Pogue was also presented with a lovely bouquet of American beauty roses by little Miss Marguerite Connell, and Rev. Dr. Marsh, Moderator, was the recipient of a cheque from the Board of Managers.

The excellent choir furnished a number of choice selections, while Miss Davies added much to the enjoyment of the occasion by her sweet singing.

St. John in a Serious Condition--In Danger of Being Fire Swept

St. John, N.B., Dec. 9.—St. John is in a serious condition today. Yesterday afternoon both principal water drains from the reservoir burst in McSweeney's lake, some miles from the city, and this morning not one drop of water is available excepting the drainage from the pipes. Practically all manufacturing establishments are closed, street cars are stalled all over the city, the gas works has gone out of business, the electric company has drawn its fires, and St. John tonight will be in total darkness.

Gas and power for newspapers is doubtful, but this afternoon's editions will appear. Ocean steamers are delayed because laundries are unable to finish washing their lines. There is not a drop of water available in case of fire, for pipes everywhere are empty, and should a blaze break out there would be every danger of a great conflagration; even the chemical engines could only be refilled with difficulty.

Business houses everywhere must close down early for want of light. The police force has been doubled, and all precautions are being taken, but the situation is extremely grave. No repairs can be completed until tomorrow night, and until that time the city is being supplied by autos delivering water at doors.

112 Drowned on Fishing Boats

Paimpol, France, Dec. 9.—Three Newfoundland fishing vessels, the Angler, Jacques, and Croisade, with crews totalling 120 men, have been given up for lost, as they have not been reported since Oct. 1, when they left Miquelon.

New York's Greatness

New York, Dec. 8.—New York is today a boom town—as much so as San Francisco in the days of the gold fever or as the Pennsylvania cities which rose like magic in the '70s, when petroleum oozing from the ground meant millions lost or won for a song.

The main difference between New York and these cities is one of proportions. The San Francisco destroyed by fire and earthquake two years ago and the Oil City of the oil fever were not too large to be grasped by the eye, the intelligence, the appreciation of figures; New York's boom is too vast to be grasped by the imagination. Her balance sheet for a single year would buy whole states or liquidate the debts of nations.

Yet the comparison can be carried out point by point. If everything is multiplied by thousands. The $3,000,000 skyscraper is playing the same part in the story of New York to-day as did the wooden shacks of early 'Frisco and Oil City. New York is actually a city in the building, so much so that she has less people to the square mile than either Baltimore or Milwaukee. Instead of city lots selling, as they did, on the Pacific coast or in the oil regions at spectacular auction sales, New York presents the spectacle of a city adding to the assessed value of her real estate at the rate of $500,000,000 a year—enough money to pay the entire debt of Islam-ridden Egypt. Then, too, New York has so much open land that her real estate is less valuable per capita than that of Boston. Yet this real estate, worth nearly $4,000,000,000, would pay the debt of Russia or France.

New York wants to spend $146,000,000 next year for maintenance and improvements. That means nearly $400,000 for every time the sun sets. Her expense bills for administering the laws are fully $130,000,000 a year. She is spending for light, heat, schools, and police and safeguarding health and property $16,000 every time the clocks strike the hour. In expanse of territory alone, it is difficult to find comparisons. With her 327 square miles of land, New York is twice as large as Philadelphia, and ten times larger than cities like Detroit and Baltimore. Passing from these generalities to more detailed survey of the metropolis—a city not half-known to most New Yorkers—facts are met with at every turn which contribute to make this the wonder city of the world.

When real estate values are taken up, it is not a question of totals in 10 figures, but of finding comparisons that will bring the vast wealth of this city home to New Yorkers. The totals in no other American city come near enough to furnish such a comparison. It means little, for instance, to say that the total value of real estate in New York is $5,704,600,653. It may mean more to say that this is nearly six times more than the land in Philadelphia or Boston is worth, 10 times more than the total value of real estate in Pittsburg, and 30 times more than the value of the real property of Baltimore or Detroit. To put it in another way:

Four Men on as Many Diets

One Eating Peanuts, One Beans, One Sauerkraut and One Onions

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Beef eaters, sit up and take notice. The Packing Trust is ruined, disgraced, discarded. Four noble sons of Illinois are proving this for the good of humanity, and the downfall of the food trusts. One is living exclusively on peanuts and maintains that on the exclusive goober he lives well—too well sometimes, he says. But lo! there are others. Here are the participants in the combat.

Peanut eater—Dr. Thomas J. Allen, food specialist, aged 42 years; exclusive peanut diet for sixteen consecutive days; has lost seven pounds; complains of over-heating on nitrogen side and is fasting for two days.

Bean eater—Edgar Brobst, foundry man, aged 30 years; exclusive diet on navy beans for 12 consecutive days; has gained two pounds, does hard physical work; may switch to lima beans today for variety.

Sauerkraut eater—Harry Spoden, machinist, aged forty years; fourteen days on sauerkraut, nothing else; feels all right, but is annoyed by suggestive remarks of scientists, who say he's ruining his stomach.

Onion eater—James Purcell, boilermaker, aged 35 years; flunked after six meals on onions exclusively; other men refused to work on same boiler with him.

Milk eater—Thomas Allen, milkman, aged 50 years; has lived for years on malted milk and little else.

Out of a room little is discussed save the endurance contest of the various vegetarians.

There has been a great falling off in the trade of grocers in everything except these articles of diet; but that is not all.

"I have been for some time," said Allen, "a student of the nutritive values of different foods, and when it was announced in the papers that a girl had died in Morris, Ill., from eating peanut candy, I was sure that it was a mistake. Determined to live on peanuts alone for sixty days to prove their harmlessness. Since then I have had nothing but peanuts and lemonade.

"I admit it has been somewhat tiresome—so much so that I recently decided to vary it by eating nothing for a while, and have been fasting for the last two days."

There were a good many who thought the vegetarian looked hungry notwithstanding his boast that he has regained three pounds of his lost ten pounds weight.

What do you think of the sauerkraut eater in your town," was asked.

"Nothing to it," said the peanut eater, "nothing to it. Onions are good in their place, but a man could live on onions better alone than he could in company with some one else.

"I will agree to live on water alone longer than any man of my power of endurance can live on sauerkraut and water.

"I found a milkman yesterday who was living almost exclusively on milk. We want the bean eaters and the peanut eaters and the popcorn eaters and the green onion eaters to add their experience to the meeting we intend to hold next week in Aurora. We are having some fun, but the real benefit is to be derived in the experimentation of various articles, testing their food value.

Queen Alexander Acts as Cupid

London, Dec. 7.—It has just been learned that when Queen Alexandra returned to Sandringham with her daughter, Queen Maud of Norway, and Prince Olaf, as her guests, she found the servants in a state of war. There were two antagonistic camps, the general of one party being the butler, while the housekeeper was the commanding officer of the other.

As there seemed to be no possibility of the servants working amicably together the Queen determined to find out the reason. She learned that one of the footmen had been engaged for a considerable time to one of the housemaids. During the absence of the Queen and the King they had quarrelled and the engagement was broken off. As a result the other servants took sides with the quarrelling pair. The housekeeper took sides with her housemaid, while the butler espoused the cause of the faithless footman.

On learning these facts the Queen had the estranged couple brought to her and used such powerful arguments that before they left the room they had renewed the engagement and arranged that the wedding would take place at Christmas.

Copenhagen, Dec. 7.—Queen Alexandra, while staying at her Danish home, the Villa Hvidore, gave an instance of her considerate treatment of her employes, in whom she always takes a kind interest, and sees that they are comfortable.

Her Majesty, wishing to speak to her gardener, went to his cottage in a corner of the grounds. The gardener was not at home, but his wife invited the Queen in while she fetched him.

While waiting, the Queen noticed how small and inconvenient the rooms were. Within an hour she returned to the cottage with her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia, and the architect of the villa. She gave the architect an order for the immediate enlargement of the house so that the gardener and his family might have a comfortable home for the winter. Work was commenced on the cottage the next day.

Trial Catarrh treatments are being mailed out free, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. These tests are proving to the people—without a penny's cost—the great value of this scientific prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

CITY COUNCIL IN SPECIAL SESSION

The Bylaw to Provide for the Removal of Garbage Will be Submitted at the January Elections 1908's Council to Fix Tax for Same

The City Council met in special session last night, when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams, and Aldermen Elliott, Phelan, Stevenson, Bradburn, Morgan, Duncan, Wilson, McIntyre, Morrow and Johnston.

FIXED ASSESSMENT.

Representatives from the Auburn Woolen Mills, Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co., Peterborough Canoe Co., and the Alfred McDonald Estate, were present and asked the council for fixed assessment for a stated number of years on their respective properties, in order to enable them to compete with other business competitors.

These matters were referred to the Committee of the Whole Council.

SOUTH END PARK.

The question of acquiring the surplus portion of the King Edward school property for park purposes was here taken up for discussion. The special Park Committee reported and recommended that in default of better arrangements the council pay the Board of Education $3000 for the property in question.

The report was adopted.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That the council issue a cheque for $3000 for the purchase of the above property.

Ald Phelan moved in amendment, seconded by Ald Morgan,—That this matter go to the people to vote on.

The amendment was lost, and the motion carried on the understanding that the purchase be not made till next year, with the solicitor's approval.

THE GARBAGE BYLAW.

The bylaw was here submitted, and Ald. Elliott offered that an equitable proposition to pay the cost of clearing away garbage would be to make a charge of 7-10 mills on the assessment on the properties in question. Ald. Elliott registered his opposition to the original plan under which each ratepayers should pay $1 a month irrespective of his or her assessment. Such a measure would mean that many citizens would be taxed disproportionate rates.

The premises of the bylaw simply asked of the electors whether they are in favor of a garbage bylaw or not, and as such passed its second readings, which did not commit the council to any specified tax.

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan,—That in event of this bylaw proving a tax on the property, only property owners be entitled to vote.

This motion was lost.

The bylaw will be submitted to the people at the January elections, and all electors will be allowed to vote on the measure.

On motion of Ald. Morrow, seconded by Ald. Phelan, the method of paying for the removal of garbage will be left to next years council.

THE ELECTIONS.

A bylaw, appointing the deputy returning officers for the several polling subdivisions arranged for the municipal elections passed its several readings.

SMITH STREET BRIDGE.

Ald Leary thought a resolution should be passed by the council to provide for a new bridge structure over the Otonabee at Smith street.

No definite action was taken on this matter.

LIGHTEN OUR DARKNESS.

Ald Morgan submitted a list of locations wanted in lanes and alleys to prevent rowdyism. Most of these dark spots are in the center of the city and much needed.

This matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee to report on.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Ald Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Elliott,—That the Property Committee report on some practicable plan for converting the building on Simcoe street, donated by the Nicholls estate for public library purposes, into suitable premises.—Carried.

It is understood that in order to take advantage of the Nicholls estate's gift, the Mechanics' Institute board should petition the City Council for the establishment of a "free" public library.

Ald Stevenson offered that the committee should report as to exactly what the cost would be of converting the old Richard Hall building into a public library.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Morrow,—That the Mechanics Institute Board be invited to meet the council's committee with a view to arranging for the establishment of a public library in the premises donated by the Nicholls estate.—Carried.

The council adjourned.

Hundreds of Men's Bodies May Never Be Identified

Monongahegal, W. V., Dec. 9.—Sixty hours after a terrific explosion of black damp wrecked mines No. 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal Company at this place last Friday morning 58 bodies, or only about one-eighth of the total number of victims have been brought to the surface, while less than one-fourth of the total number have been actually located. The others undoubtedly between 300 and 400 in number, lie in unknown sections of the vast workings that extend two miles and more back from the main entries to the mines. Those unlocated bodies are seriously menaced by two destroying elements—decay in the overheated, humid and vapor-poisoned atmosphere of the mines, and by fires that are smoldering here and there in the workings and from time to time bursting into flame. Steadily the chance is ebbing that these bodies will be brought to the surface, identified by friends and relatives, and given Christian burial.

A large force of skilled miners, volunteers for the hazardous task of rescue work, are on the scene ready to re-enter the mines and take up the work where they were forced to leave it yesterday when fire broke out in mine No. 3. These men await only the word from Clarence Hall, the expert of the Federal government, and J. W. Paul, West Virginia's chief mine inspector. These two men are now in charge of superseding officers of the mining company and others who directed the first rescue work.

New difficulties and complications have confronted the rescuers on every hand, but only with brief interruptions the work was continued until three o'clock yesterday afternoon. Then the fire drove all from the underground regions and the search had to be abandoned. The flames have been fought by every possible means, including the laying of a water pipe from the river far into the mine.

The bodies so far recovered are in a horrible condition. An undertaker is authority for the statement that of the fifty-three bodies handled only three were intact. Some were headless, arms were missing from some, and legs or other members from others.

The condition of the bodies still in hundreds of mens bodies the mine is such that in the interest of public health the County Health Board yesterday at a special meeting adopted resolutions calling for the speedy burial of all bodies in a bad state of decomposition.

The volume of afterdamp is steadily increasing in the mine, and the danger of another explosion is becoming ominous. Several leaks have been found in the brattices, which the rescuers put up as they worked their way forward, through which gas is seeping in dangerous quantities. These are being repaired as rapidly as found, and every other possible precaution is being taken. A second explosion would be undoubtedly attended with great loss of life among the crowds that constantly surround the entrances. Forces on hand are powerless to keep back these crowds, and it may yet be necessary to call out militia for that purpose.

WHY STAY RHEUMATIC?

Nothing Short of Folly When Cure is Guaranteed with Ferrozone.

Rheumatism can't be cured so long as your system is weak and run down. You must first build up and get strength to fight off the disease.

Ferrozone cures because it builds up, because it renews the blood and dissolves the uric acid and the poisons that cause rheumatism.

It is proved right here that Ferrozone does cure.

Col. H. M. Russ, of Edwards, St. Lawrence Co., one of the fine old heroes of the Civil War, was completely restored by Ferrozone. Read his statement:

"I couldn't get around without a cane and then only with difficulty.

"Rheumatism took complete control of my limbs.

"The suffering was more intense than hardships on the battle field.

"When my doctor had done his best I got Ferrozone.

"Then came a quick change.

"Ferrozone gave me comfort at once, eased the pain and took the stiffness out of my muscles.

"I am well today. Ferrozone cured me completely. I can jump and run like I did forty years ago."

Be sensible about your cure. Ferrozone is known on all sides to be a cure that does cure. Why not get a supply today. The sooner you begin Ferrozone the quicker you'll get well. Price 50c per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

A GOOD CUSTOMER

For the year ending June 30th last Newfoundland imported from Great Britain $2,648,954 worth of goods and exported to her $1,492,736 worth. From Canada she imported $6,668,888 worth and exported to her $1,811,189 worth of goods. From the United States the Island took $3,447,250 and exported to them $1,394,282. The total imports from all sources were $10,428,946, the duty collected $2,254,456, and the total exports $12,101,161, a slight increase in imports and exports over those of the previous year. The figures show that Newfoundland buys more from this country than she does from either Britain or the United States, and that Canada sells her more goods than either of the other two. Comparative figures also show that Canadian trade with Newfoundland increased $147,159 during the year, while that of the United States decreased $161,685. Evidently Canadian trade with the Newfoundlanders is worth cultivating.

DAIRY PRODUCTS

The Canadian Government agent at Leeds, Eng., discussing the dairy situation at that point comments as follows:—

"We are pleased to state that the improvement in Canadian cheese this year has been well maintained, and one of the great difficulties that we had to contend with last year, which was the shipping of cheese in the green state, has been noticeable by its absence this year. The goods have come forward not only on good condition, but the averaging of same has been fairly well effected.

"We are now nearing the close of one of the most exceptional seasons we have had. The make opened up at the early part of the season very late, and we are going to close the season with a great shortage of cheese on that of last year. Our home make has been exceptionally large, which has filled up the shortage in Canadians, and all through the season domestic has been placed on our market within a few shillings of Canadian prices, thus causing a good health home demand. It is only within the last two weeks that there has been any noticeable falling off in the make. This week there is a great shortage, and it has stopped a great shortage, and it has dropped off fully 10 per cent. of what it was a month ago.

"The Canadian season, from a financial point of view has been disappointing, owing to the great speculations of a few who have tried to corner the market, and have evidently refitted their expct to a great extent. The result of this has caused prices to advance very rapidly during the last two of three weeks. What the future result of this manipulation will be we cannot say, but certainly it is not conducive to a healthy tone of trade from our point of view. There is every prospect of a huge make from New Zealand and Australia; we ourselves having in sight our first consignment, which is quite a month earlier than usual.

"We are looking forward next year to a better Canadian trade, and if only this system of manipulation could be kept out of your market, we should have a much healthier tone, and one that would be beneficial to every one on both sides.

"The supply of eggs on this market is very scarce, and the demand is much in excess of the supply. Present prices are 15 per hundred higher than four weeks ago, and the only countries supplying us with any quantity are Russia and Austria.

The demand is greater than the supply, which is very scarce indeed, and prices are far in excess of Irish and other grades."

The New Regime

Berlin, Dec. 6. — The Ministerial crisis has been settled as suddenly and as quickly as it broke out. Prince Von Bulow, the Imperial Chancellor, by threatening to resign has succeeded in getting pledges of support from all the coalition parties, and at the opening of today's session of the Reichstag the leaders of these parties assured the chancellor of their continued loyalty. The action taken by Prince Von Buelow introduces a revolutionary change into the German governmental methods. His appeal means nothing less than the responsibility of the ministry to the Reichstag.

It is the first time in the history of the empire that a chancellor has appealed to the majority in the Reichstag for support as a condition of his continuance in office. Up to the present time the attitude of the ministers always has been, "We are responsible to the emperor; we will hold office so long as it pleases him; we are not responsible to the Reichstag."

It is understood that Emperor William was fully aware that this step was coming before he went to England. He endorsed it fully in the belief that the old system was no longer tenable. It is even intimated that it was arranged between the emperor and Prince Von Buelow, that the latter should make an opportunity during the absence of his majesty to throw himself upon the Reichstag and thus usher in a new system of government.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

The Ebb Tide of Emmigration

London, Dec. 7.—According to a Berlin despatch, Germany is tremendously alarmed over the economic consequences of the emigrant rush from America. A correspondent says: "It is feared that the tens of thousands of Russian Pole, Lithuanians, Hungarians, Greeks, and Italians, landing at Hamburg and Bremen, after having spent their last coins on passage money back, may become stranded in Germany, and put the already overcrowded domestic labor market in a critical position." The Imperial government is being urged to consider "whether Germany should not immediately resort to the vigorous prohibitive measures enforced by the American immigration authorities and arbitrarily put up bars against the torrent of homeless undesirables."

Sight Returns to Girl

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Having been totally blind for two weeks, pretty Miss Monah McKenzie, 19 years old, of No. 2223 West Taylor street, is able to see once more. Her sight returned as suddenly as it left her, and in a short while she will be able to return to her duties at Sears, Roebuck & Co., in whose drug department she was stricken. Her case baffled expert oculists.

When she awoke yesterday her screams startled the family. She found that she could distinguish objects in the room once more, and her sight has steadily improved since.

BY-LAW NUMBER

A By-law to Fix and Provide for Levying a Special Frontage Rate Upon Lands in the City of Peterborough Fronting on Streets, Lanes and Alleys Upon Which Water Mains are Laid

WHEREAS by Chapter 42 of the Statutes of the Province of Ontario passed in the Seventh Year of the Reign of His Majesty King Edward the Seventh it is enacted, that subject to the approval of the majority voting thereon of the electors entitled to vote at Municipal elections, the Peterborough Water Commissioners shall have power by By-law to levy and charge a special rate upon the several lands, lots or parts of lots, whether occupied or vacant, fronting or abutting upon all streets, lanes and alleys in the Municipality upon which water mains, from which the Commissioners are willing to supply water, are laid; such special rate to be an annual rate according to the frontage of the said lands, lots or parts of lots and not to exceed five cents per foot for such frontage and to be subject to the same discount for prompt payment as shall be allowed in respect of ordinary water rates for domestic use and to be payable at the time or times, during each year, fixed by the Water Commissioners for payment thereof.

AND WHEREAS the said Water Commissioners have decided to fix the said special rate at four and one-half cents per foot for each foot of frontage in said streets, lanes and alleys, and to make the same payable on the same days and times as ordinary water rates are payable under the By-laws of the said Commissioners from time to time in force and effect.

THE PETERBOROUGH WATER COMMISSIONERS THEREFORE ENACT AS FOLLOWS:—

1.—This By-law shall come into force and effect on the final passing thereof.

2.—An annual special rate of four and one-half cents per foot for each foot of frontage on all lands, lots or parts of lots, whether occupied or vacant, fronting or abutting upon all streets, lanes and alleys in the City of Peterborough, upon which water mains, from which the Commissioners are willing to supply water are laid, is hereby fixed, levied and charged, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained.

3.—The said annual special rate shall be due and payable to the said Commissioners in equal portions, on the days and times specified and appointed for payment of ordinary water rates under the By-laws of the said Commissioners, from time to time in force, and shall be subject to the same discount, on each of such payments, as is allowed by said Water Commissioners for prompt payment in respect of ordinary water rates for domestic use, provided, however, that upon the production by the owner or occupant of any land, lot or part of lot against which said special rate is charged and who is also the user of water from the said waterworks on the same land, lot or part of lot, of a receipt for the payment of any sum, rate or rent, chargeable for the use of such water for the same period, the Commissioners shall remit or allow to such owner or occupant, as the case may be, such amount as may be paid as a payment on account of the said special rate, and if the sum, rate or rent paid by the said owner or occupant, as occupant, as shown by the receipt therefor, shall for the same period, be greater than or equal to the said special rate, the Commissioners shall remit to such owner or occupant, the amount of the said special rate.

4.—The votes of the electors of the City of Peterborough entitled to vote at Municipal Elections shall be taken on this By-law on the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council for the year 1898 and the polls will be held during the same hours, at the same places, and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks, as are fixed and appointed for the said annual Municipal election.

5.—The seventh day of January, 1898, at the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, and the City Clerk's Office, are hereby fixed as the time when and the place where the Clerk will sum up the number of votes given for and against the By-law.

6.—The fourth day of January, 1898, at the hour of 12 o'clock, noon, and the office of the City Clerk, are hereby fixed as the time and place for the appointment of persons to attend at the various polling places, and at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk respectively, on behalf of the persons interested in and promoting or opposing the passing of the By-law.

NOTICE

Take notice that the foregoing is a true copy of a proposed By-law which has been taken into consideration and which will be finally passed by the Water Commissioners of the City of Peterborough (in the event of the assent of the electors being obtained thereto) after one month from the first publication hereof in The Morning Times newspaper, the date of which first publication is the tenth day of December, 1897, and that at the hour, day and place therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1093 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 254 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.31 each per day, or $62.22 for the 47½ days stay.

MASSAGE

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 79 cases of club feet treated last year. Out of the 79, about 50 were from the country.

BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

EYE CASES.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

Please send contributions to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Sec.-Treas., of the Hospital for Sick Children, College Street, Toronto.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

Nobody intends to make a drudge of her," retorted Eugenia. 'Mother works in the kitchen, and I wonder if it will hurt Dora to help her. Every girl ought to learn to work!"

"Except Eugenia Deane," suggested Alice, laughing, to think how little her sister's practice accorded with her theory.

At this point in the conversation Bridget entered, bringing a letter which bore an Indian postmark, together with the unmistakable handwriting of Nathaniel Deane!

"A letter from Uncle Nat, as I live!" exclaimed Eugenia. "What is going to happen? He hasn't written before in years. I do wish I knew when he expected to quit this mundane sphere, and how much of his money he intends leaving me!"

By this time Mrs. Deane had broken the seal, uttering an exclamation of surprise as a check for five hundred dollars fell into her lap.

"Five hundred dollars!" screamed Eugenia, catching up the check and examining it closely, to see that there was no mistake. "The old miser has really opened his heart. Now we'll have some genuine silver forks for our best company, so we shan't be in constant terror lest someone should discover that they are only plated. I'll buy that set of pearls at Mercer's, too, and, Alice, you and I will have some new furs. I'd go to Rochester to-morrow, if it were not Sunday. What shall we get for you, mother? A web of cloth, or an ounce of sewing silk?" and the heartless girl turned toward her mother, whose face was white as ashes, as she said faintly: "The money is not ours. It is Dora's to be used for her benefit."

"Not ours! What do you mean? It can't be true!" cried Eugenia, snatching the letter, and reading therein confirmation of her mother's words.

After a slight apology for his long silence, Uncle Nat had spoken of Fanny's letter, saying he supposed she must be dead ere this, and that Dora was probably living with her aunt, as it was quite natural she should do. Then he expressed his willingness to defray all the expense which she might be, adding that though he should never see her, as he was resolved to spend his days in India, he still wished to think of her as an educated and accomplished woman.

"Accompanying this letter," he wrote, "is a check for five hundred dollars, to be used for Dora's benefit. Next year I will make another remittance, increasing the allowance as she grows older. I have more money than I need, and I know of no one on whom I would sooner expend it than the child of Fanny Moore."

"Spiteful old fool!" muttered Eugenia. "I could relieve him of any superfluous dimes he may possess."

But even Eugenia, heartless as she was, felt humbled and subdued for a moment, as she read the latter part of her uncle's letter, from which we give the following extract:

"I am thinking, to-day, of the past, Sarah, and I grow a child again as I recall the dreary years which have gone over my head since last I trod the shores of my fatherland. You, Sarah, know much of my history. You know that I was awkward, eccentric, uncouth, and many years older than my handsomer, more highly gifted brother; and yet with all this fearful odds against me, you know that I ventured to love the gentle, fair-haired Fanny, your adopted sister. You know this, I say, but you do not know how madly, how passionately such as I can love—did love; nor how the memory of Fanny's ringing laugh, and the thought of the sunny smile, with which I knew she would welcome me home again, cheered me on my homeward voyage, when in the long night-watches I paced the vessel's deck, while the stars looked coldly down upon me, and there was no sound to break the deep stillness, save the heavy swell of the sea. At the village inn where I stopped for a moment ere going to my father's house I first heard that her hand was plighted to another, and in my wild frenzy I swore that my rival, whoever he might be, should die!

"It was my youngest brother—he who, on the sad night when our mother died, had laid his baby head upon my bosom, and wept himself to sleep—he whose infant steps I had guided, bearing him often in my arms, lest he should 'dash his foot against a stone.' And his life I had sworn to take, for had he not come between me and the only object I had ever loved? There was no one stirring about the house, for it was night, and the family had retired. But the door was unfastened, and I knew the way upstairs. I found him, as I had expected, in our old room, and all alone, for Richard was away. Had he been there, it should make no difference, I said, but he was absent, and John was calmly sleeping with his face upturned to the soft moonlight which came in through the open window. I had not seen him for two long years, and now there was about him a look so much like that of my dead mother when she lay in her coffin bed, that the demon in my heart was softened, and I seemed to hear her dying words again, 'I can trust you, Nathaniel; and to your protection, as to a second mother, I commit my little boy.'

"The little boy, whose curls were golden then, was now a brown-haired man—my brother—the son of my angel mother, whose spirit, in that dark hour of my temptation, glided into the silent room, and stood between me and her youngest born, so that he was not harmed, and I was saved from the curse of a brother's blood.

"'Lead us not into temptation' came back to me, just as I had said it kneeling at my mother's side; and covering my face with my hands I thanked God, who had kept me from so great a sin. Bending low, I whispered in his ear his name, and in a moment his arms were around my neck, while he welcomed me back to the home which, he said, was not home without me. And then, when the moon had gone down, and the stars shone too faintly to reveal his blushes, he told me the story of his happiness, to which I listened, while the great drops of sweat rolled down my [illegible] moistened the pillow on which my head was resting.

"But why linger over those days of anguish, which made me an old man before my time? I knew I could not stand by and see her wedded to another; neither could I look upon her after she was another's wife; so, one night, when the autumn days were come, I asked her to go with me out beneath the locust trees which skirted my father's yard. It was there I had seen her for the first time, and it was there I would take my leave. Of the particulars of that interview I remember but little, for I was terribly excited. We never met again, for ere the morrow's daylight dawned I had left my home forever."

Then followed a few more words concerning Dora, with a request that she should write to him, as he would thus be able to judge something of her character; and there the letter ended.

For a time there was silence, which was broken at last by Eugenia, whose active mind had already come to a decision. Dora would live with them of course—it was best that she should and there was no longer need for dismissing Bridget. The five hundred dollars obviated that necessity, and it was theirs, too—theirs by way of remuneration for giving Dora a home—theirs to spend as they pleased. And she still intended to have the furs, the pearls, and the silver forks, just the same as though the money had been a special gift to her!

"Suppose Uncle Nat should happen to come home, and Dora should tell him?" suggested Alice, who did not so readily fall in with her sister's views.

"He'll never do that in the world," returned Eugenia. "And even if he should, Dora will have nothing to tell, for she is not supposed to know of the money. If we feed, clothe, and educate her, it is all we are required to do."

"But would that be exactly just?" faintly interposed Mrs. Deane, whose perceptions of right and wrong were not quite so blunted as those of her daughter, who, in answer to her question, proceeded to advance many good reasons why Dora, for a time at least, should be kept in ignorance of the fact that her uncle supported her, and not her aunt.

"We can manage her better if she thinks she is dependent upon us. And then, as she grows older, she will not be continually asking what has become of the money, which, as I understand the matter, is really ours, and not hers."

Still, Mrs. Deane was not quite convinced, but she knew how useless it would be to argue the point; so she said nothing, except to ask how Dora Few perhaps know that Pall Mall derived its name from an old "Pall-maille" court which stood on the site 300 years since. Who revived it and how it came by its modern name are not known.

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES

said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and his stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there, if you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development, will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $4.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 7% per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Hartley Explains His Refusal

As an article appearing in The Times a few days ago had reference to the refusal by Dave Hartley, the local pedestrian, which article intimated that Hartley would refuse the $100 grant offered by the City Council in commemoration of his splendid work and incidental advertisement of the city, but said offer on certain conditions.

Mr. Hartley wishes to correct a wrong impression that appears to have got abroad. He is deeply grateful to those who arranged the welcome in his honor and to the members of the City Council for the grant of $100. He realizes that much has been done through the kindest motives, and has only reason for refusing the grant is that there was objection to it by some of the ratepayers. He feels that it would not be right for him to accept the money under the circumstances.

Money Well Spent

A one dollar bill cannot be better invested than by sending it to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, for a year's subscription to that great weekly. To have it come to your home each week, means a treat all the year round. One dollar is a very small amount when one considers that every week for fifty-two weeks he is going to receive a copy of the best weekly paper printed today. It pleases everyone; to farmers particularly it is a wonderful help. At this season one cannot to better than send a dollar to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal.

Bridgenorth in City League

Mr. Kelly of Bridgenorth, yesterday forwarded the formal application for the admission of the team from the above place to the city league. Bridgenorth will be welcomed by the other teams in the league. Last year a fast seven represented the northern village, which will probably send in a swift team this season.

Crowley for Edmonton

"Bill" Crowley, the widely known rover point of the Peterborough hockey team has accepted a position with the Canadian Machine Telephone Company at Edmonton, and leaves for the Alberta city on Monday of next week. His new position runs into three figures per month. Crowley will, in all probability, play hockey with the Edmonton professional hockey team, of which Fred Whitcroft is manager, although hockey has nothing to do with his new situation.

Another Milk Test

Sanitary Inspector Ball is having another milk test made by the provincial authorities at Toronto. A dozen samples were sent up a week ago yesterday and ten more were forwarded yesterday afternoon. Not more than a dozen samples can be tested at Toronto at once. The tests being made at Toronto will show whether there are any impurities or foreign material in the milk being delivered to Peterborough householders, and the report will be awaited with interest.

"There's a Reason"

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulæ are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better thing is usual both for tasting and preserving the therapeutic principles used in compounding, than refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above depressing ailments, the Golden Medical Discovery is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hanging coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The Discovery "is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE WILL MEET LATE IN JANUARY

A Big Program is on the Boards for the Closing Session of the Assembly--MoKeown and Donovan to Move the Address

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Within the next week the Ontario Government will probably determine the date of the opening of the forthcoming session of the Provincial Legislature, the last of the present parliament.

The intention is to call the legislators together as early as possible, after allowing the various departments time to complete the necessary reports and statistics after the close of the year, as an exceptionally heavy session of work is anticipated. If the treasury department is able to finish the year's work in time it is probable that the opening will be set for the last Wednesday in January, the 29th.

It is likely that the reply to the address from the throne will be moved by Mr. Charles R McKeown, M.P.P. for Dufferin, and seconded by Mr. A. E. Donovan, M.P.P. for Brockville, both of whom are new members, succeeding respectively the late Dr. Lewis and Hon. Geo P. Graham, who was called to the Dominion Cabinet.

The session will be a busy one. The address from the throne may be expected to indicate a full programme of important government measures, notably redistribution, legislation on educational lines, preparatory to the issue of new readers and text books, a big program for the further development of Northern Ontario, the reorganization of the colonization department, the report of the commission in charge of the revision of the statutes and an extensive and somewhat radical program of law reform.

Other important legislation may be looked for along the lines of prison labor abolition, following the report of the committee of investigation, further changes in the license system based upon the report of Mr. J. R. L. Starr, the commissioner who investigated the license situation in Toronto, and if the municipalities pass the power bylaws, legislation will follow authorizing the necessary government expenditures to supply the power.

The flood of private bills promises to be greater than ever, although they always multiply before a general election. One of the most important public bills to be urged upon the government will be one seeking to place further restrictions on automobiles.

Presentation and Address

Miss Lillie Pratt Given Amethyst Ring by Girls' Guild of St John's

Last night at a regular meeting of St. John's Girls' Guild, the president, Miss Lillie Pratt, who is removing from the city at the expiration of the present school term, to live in her mother's Toronto, was presented with an address and a handsome gold ring set with three amethysts. The address was read by Miss Maude Smith, and the presentation made by Miss Jane L. Layfield. Miss Pratt, being taken by surprise was almost overcome with emotion but managed to express her gratitude for the handsome gift and the kindly feelings of the members of the Guild.

It might be mentioned that Miss Pratt has always been a very popular worker in not only the Girls' Guild, but in almost all the societies in connection with St John's church in which a young lady could take part. Having a splendid education and a genial way of helping to entertain she has found and taken advantage of many opportunities of making herself useful in the church. She has held office in many capacities and it can be truthfully said always fulfilled their obligations to the letter and with unfailing accuracy and promptness.

Previous to this pleasant event Miss Pratt had, as president of the Guild, awarded two medals for regular attendance to members of the society. Miss Edith Horsefall being the recipient of a very pretty hat pin and Miss Kate Martin a maple leaf pin.

After the regular business had been transacted light refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour spent.

Marathon Races Brutal?

Athletic authorities are now condemning long-distance running as brutal, liable to be followed by fatal results or serious injuries to participants. Prof. Sullivan, of the A.A.U., believes that Marathon races, as at present conducted, are brutal and must be stopped in America, he finds fault in the race that they appeal to fledgeling, whose courage is out of proportion to their strength. He suggests that races be limited to ten or fifteen miles, and says that physical examinations by competent physicians should be mandatory a week before and each day during the race. He would also limit entries to athletes of at least seventeen years of age.

Mr. Sullivan concludes: "Discretion in the form of moderation in the exception of McCaffrey's record Marathon runners, no man has won two Marathon races. This would seem to indicate that the permanent loss of the maximum of vitality incident to winning a single Marathon race operates to incapacitate from successfully undertaking a second contest."

Father Drove Over His Little Son--His Brains Crushed Out

Belleville, Dec. 10.—A terribly sad accident occurred here at 10.30 o'clock resulting in the death of seven-year-old Charles C. Leavens, second son of D. H. Leavens, a prominent farmer of the front of Thurlow township and grandson of Postmaster Leavens of this city. Father and son were driving a number of cattle to the stations for Wm. Clarke, butcher. The father was in the rig, and the boy was with the cattle. When near the station, the cattle started to stampede, and the boy ran out, endeavoring to head them off. Mr. Leavens started up the team and did not notice the boy until he was under the horses' feet. One of the horses stepped on the boy's head, crushing out his brains. He was dead before a physician arrived.

Charlie was a very bright child, and his parents are prostrated.

A DROWNING ACCIDENT

A rumor was afloat last night of the effect that a man fell off the C.P.R. bridge into the O. and was drowned, this evening and was drowned. Grappling irons and a punt were secured from the Peterborough pumping station and the river was dragged but the body was not found. The drowning was witnessed by [illegible] supposed to have been [illegible] Myrtle.

THEATERS AND CONCERT HALLS CLOSED IN NEW YORK SUNDAY

But the Saloons were Crowded--Billiard and Pool Parlors and Bowling Alleys Benefitted by the Change

New York, Dec. 10.—New York held its first dry Sunday yesterday of a Sunday without any theatrical attraction.

In accordance with Justice O'Gorman's decision last week, the doors of 500 concert halls and theaters were closed; but, according to the American, the backrooms of 6,000 saloons and all the billiard and pool parlors together with the bowling alleys, were wide open.

Except one of those did the biggest business for any Sunday in their history.

Attendance at the churches was so many intoxicated men seen in the streets.

Driving academies and roller skating rinks were closed tight, while restaurants and beer gardens, operating under restaurant licenses, were permitted to run without hindrance and with much accompaniment.

For the first time in December in fifty years no ball was held on Sunday night in Tammany Hall.

PENNY ARCADES OPEN.

With one exception all the proprietors of the penny arcades and exhibitions followed the lead of the owners of the large theaters, and kept their places closed. The solitary exception was that of the keepers of a little nickel moving picture show called the Comedy Theater, at No. 68 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

The place seats 500 people, and holds shows every fifteen minutes. It started at one o'clock and did a land office business all day, the only intermission being between 8 and 9 o'clock, when the doors were closed for a short time while the police conducted a raid and carried to the station house Mrs. Ethel Gordon, of No. 64 West One Hundred and Seventh street, who was acting as cashier; Edward Rault, the ticket taker, P. Brier, the picture machine operator, and George Klein, the "barker."

HAD AN INJUNCTION.

At the station house their employer told the police that they were keeping their place open under the instructions of their attorneys, who held an injunction obtained by them in the Supreme Court of King's County last week, restraining the police from interfering with their Sunday blows, covering the theater.

Notwithstanding the fact that all the so-called sacred concerts and theatrical amusements were closed the attendance at the churches last night was not above the normal.

THRONGS ON BROADWAY.

The most spectacular effect of the enforcement of the law was the thronging of Broadway and other main avenues in the various sections of the city with crowds that reached election night proportions.

141 Bodies Recovered at Monongah--Hurried Funerals Held in Rain

Monongah, W. Va., Dec 10.—With 112 bodies on the surface at ten o'clock today, 25 more ready to be brought out of mine No. 6, and four awaiting removal from No. 8, it was expected that the total number of bodies recovered from the wrecked mines by noon would be 141.

The rescuers are working the right side of mine No. 8, where it is thought a majority of the bodies yet in the mine will be found. The work of rescue is being pushed rapidly, and before night it is expected that most of the bodies will have been taken out. It has been raining here steadily since last evening, and this dispersed a large part of the great crowd.

The relief work is well under way. There is now plenty of food, but there is urgent need of clothing in many families. Cash funds are being raised in many places and instalments are already being forwarded from some points. The coal companies of this district have contributed $20,000 cash.

See Dark Horse in Speaker Cannon

New York, Dec. 10 — Wall Street appears to have killed off Roosevelt pretty well as a third-term candidate. Very little is now heard of him in connection with the next Republican nomination, and it seems plain that some other candidate will be named. The candidate, however, cannot be Taft, for Taft represents Roosevelt's policies; he cannot be Hughes, for Hughes is against trusts; so the man is yet to be found. The financial interests are also against Bryan on the Democratic side, for with him in office the war on corporate interests would simply be renewed. Consequently the Democrats, if they have any real hope for success, will no name Bryan, but some one who will be safe from a financial standpoint.

Among the leaders of the local Republican organization there has developed during the past few weeks a remarkable sentiment in favor of Cortelyou for President. This sentiment is partly due to the belief of the organization men that Cortelyou has more sympathy with organization methods than Governor Hughes has. At the same time, many of these men believe that there is a strong and growing popular sentiment for the Secretary of the Treasury in this, his own state, and they predict that if it should become generally understood that President Roosevelt favored the nomination of Cortelyou, it would be comparatively easy to commit the New York State delegation to his candidacy. Moreover, Cortelyou is regarded with much favor by the financial world.

The politicians seem to agree that it will be difficult to commit the New York delegation to any other than a New York State man. In their view, the New York State delegates will be for either Roosevelt, Hughes or Cortelyou. If the nomination of Roosevelt appears to be without the range of possibility later on by reason of unwillingness on the part of the President to accept the nomination under any conditions, sentiment among the delegates will be divided between Hughes and Cortelyou. As to the relative popularity of Roosevelt and Hughes among the rank and file of voters in this county, Republican district leaders say that the President and the Governor are about evenly matched.

The question is whether New York delegation shall go instructed or uninstructed. The design of those who will attempt to prevent an instructed delegation will be to make it appear to other states represented in the national convention that there is really no strong demand upon the Republicans of New York, with its thirty-nine votes in the Electorial College, for the nomination of Hughes, else why did they not show the interest and take the trouble to instruct their delegates, as in other states, of offering favorite sons to the convention? If the Hughes men are strong enough they will put none but Hughes men on guard, but their strength is doubtful. The Republican district leaders in New York county have been requested by Herbert Parsons, chairman of the Republican county committee, not to commit themselves for the present to any Presidential candidate.

Speaker Cannon is looked on in Bryan circles as one who will bear watching. It is pointed out that he is in a better position to capture the nomination than is generally appreciated. He will go into the convention with the solid Illinois delegation at his back, and he will have the support of the high protective tariff influences of the country.

Roosevelt to Announce Plans

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 10—The Record-Herald today says:

"The question of President Roosevelt's desire about being nominated for a third term will be settled once for all one way or the other, on Dec. 21st, when Attorney-General Bonaparte addresses a banquet of the new Illinois Athletic Club in Chicago.

"The president's political views and his third-term ideas will be fully told by Mr Bonaparte, who is regarded as being the president's official spokesman for the occasion.

Marriage Cure for Drink

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Judge John R Newcomer, who represents the old goddess in the Harrison street station, yesterday announced the following important discovery.

That of all drunards arrested, 80 to 90 per cent. are bachelors.

Thirteen "drunks" were before him yesterday. Of these none was married, and only one had ever been—he was divorced years ago.

The judge's deductions were made upon what passed before him in the day, however. He has been studying the statistics for weeks and is certain now that marriage is better than the gold cure and much cheaper.

A spree means at least $6 for the court costs, but the fine is $5 to $25 in addition. A marriage license in Cook county costs $1.50. The minister's fee is nominal and a judge will perform the ceremony for nothing.

Judge Newcomer declared that several men who came before him very regularly for slipping too deeply of the cup which cheers and inebriates married and are seen by him no more.

So interested has he become in his study of the subject of these ones that now when a pale, remorseful one stands trembling before him and the bluecoat thunders out: "Drunk and disorderly, y'r honor!" the court asks:

"Married or single?"

The answer usually is "single." Then the judge smiles slightly, turns knowingly to Prosecutor Barnes, who, too, is studying the topic, and says: "See?"

One of the prisoners yesterday had been up for drunkenness several times before Judge Newcomer lately, and when he was placed at the bar of justice yesterday he caught the appearance of this colloquy to the extent that when he was asked to give an account of himself, he answered:

"Judge, if you give me another chance I'll never come before you again; I'll go out and get married."

He was dismissed.

Smallpox Has Cost Ontario $2,000,000 In Last Ten Years

Toronto, Dec. 12—In commenting officially today on the smallpox area, which now extends from Goderich to Belleville, and into the northern districts, Dr. Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, said that smallpox in the last ten years had caused a loss to the people of Ontario, in time, wages and outlay of $2,000,000.

"It is quite evident the law provides the machinery for the enforcement of vaccination," he said. "At the present time Quebec is merely an unvaccinated province, and the legislature is after the municipalities themselves. The law gives them machinery, why will they not enforce the wise and beneficial law, the Act not only empowers but requires that the council of any city, town, incorporated village and township in Ontario, shall contract with some competent physician or physicians for the period of one year and so on from year to year for the vaccination of all poor persons at the expense of the municipality.

"That a responsibility is placed upon the parents of every child born in the province. The baby must be vaccinated within the first month after birth, while a similar duty is imposed in respect to all children over the age of three months upon becoming residents of the province.

Dr. Hodgetts also pointed out that as regards hospitals, the trustees are required by sect on 7 of the Vaccination Act to provide for the vaccination of the poor, and are required to make annual returns to the provincial secretary of the number so vaccinated, and, further, no warrant shall hereafter be issued for the payment of any legislative grant until the certificate has been supplied. How many hospitals can qualify?

When asked regarding the "orgeous" thing, Dr. Bruce Smith, inspector of hospitals, said it was the first time his attention had been drawn to the section in question, and he would look into the matter.

Millionaire's Daughter in Chicago Jail Serving Sentence as Shoplifter

Chicago, Dec. 11 — Marian Clarke Hurley, millionaire heiress, daughter of Albert Gates Hurley, who is said to have been United States Minister to Bolivia, yesterday told her life story as she sat in her room in the House of Correction, where she is serving a four months' sentence for larceny.

From Newport's luxury to Chicago's House of Correction is a far cry, from the menus of the fashionable hostelries of America and Europe to the rough fare of a prisoner, from the fastidious creations of Parisian modistes to coarse blue and white striped wrapper is a sad and striking contrast.

A week ago the young woman was taken from apartments in the Auditorium Hotel by officers of the detective Bureau. Petty thefts from various jewelry and fashionable furnishing stores had annoyed merchants and police and watch was set for the thief.

ARREST FOLLOWS THEFTS.

Large bills for merchandise were sent to the hotel after the merchandise had been claimed by Miss Hurley, who gave to the merchants the name of "Helen Clark," in many instances, instead of awaiting the arrival of the goods at the hotel, the young woman would call for them at the shops and nonchalantly order that the bill be sent her at the Auditorium.

Days passed before suspicion fastened itself upon her. On one occasion she was followed. Proof of her guilt became evident and her arrest took place.

All efforts made by the police to ascertain her identity were frustrated by the unusual prisoner. When arraigned before Municipal Judge Sadler at the Harrison street police station the young woman pleaded guilty to the charge of larceny and asked that she be sentenced to jail.

Instead of an immediate sentence being imposed, her case was continued and Miss Hurley was remanded to a cell. Fearing that an effort was being made to force her family, the young prisoner declared her intention of making a further confession.

To Miss Minnie Jacobs, a probation officer, the strange shoplifter boldly stated that she had committed crimes against society.

"I have fooled the police in Denver and in other places," she declared defiantly. "I am guilty now but want no leniency. My people mount to nothing. Will you ask the judge to sentence me?"

Again arraigned in court, Marian Clarke Hurley was sentenced to four months in the House of Correction. With a hard laugh she turned aside inquiries concerning her threats. When she entered the prison at Twenty-sixth street and California avenue her demeanor underwent a rapid change.

Distraught, anxious, fearful that the facts she had tried hard to conceal would become known, she was a subject for the prison hospital within a day.

No messages came to the comely prisoner, whose gentle manner soon endeared her to the hearts of the attendants. No friends came to visit with this "butchered" woman to whom the very knowledge of her crime, and imprisonment has become a horrible, nerve-racking nightmare.

That the bridewell prisoner is the daughter of Albert Gates Hurley, multi-millionaire resident of Shelburg, political leader in his home State and said to have been minister to Bolivia, become known yesterday.

That Marian Clarke Hurley is a graduate of Miss Ely's fashionable New York school and of the National Park Seminary of Washington, also became known.

A Court of This County May be Cut Off

Meeting to Consider this Important Matter on January 9th

A meeting will be held on January 9th at 11 o'clock in the morning in Judge Weller's chambers, to consider the advisability of abolishing the third Division Court at Keene, as it is considered that there is not sufficient business there to warrant the holding of court. A proclamation to this effect was given out in the County Court room on Tuesday afternoon.

The committee to deal with the proposal will be composed of Judge Weller, Sheriff Reid and Warden McNelly. If the decision to abolish the court is arrived at part of the duties taken up by the third Division Court will be transferred to the second, and the remainder to the first Division Court, and other alterations will be made as may be rendered necessary thereby.

Alex. Graham Shot Near Gooderham

Word was received here yesterday that Alex Graham, a local man, had been shot in the woods near Gooderham, where he was employed for a lumbering firm. It is, as yet, impossible to get any particulars. A long message to Buckhorn yesterday afternoon resulted in ascertaining that the news of Graham's accident had been learned at Buckhorn. Tomorrow's issue will give full particulars.

Jap Woman Held For Ransom

Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 10—Berkeley's Japanese colony is excited over the alleged abduct or from this place of Kin Arayama, a pretty little native of Japan who resided with her husband.

As a result of her disappearance and later recovery, Kunoichi Ishii, of Berkeley and Yoshi Ise, of Isleton, a small town on the Sacramento river are in the county jail, with the charge of attempted extortion against them.

When the news of the alleged abduction by Ishii and Ise was spread among the Japanese friends of Urayama at once instituted a search. A tip was received that the woman and her alleged abductors were in Alviso.

At one o'clock Sunday morning they hired an automobile and started for Alviso. At a country farmhouse Mrs. Urayama was found. K. Nosu, who had been with the woman at the farm, got wind of the approaching posse and made his escape.

Mr. Sugimori of Osaka says that K Nosu, a relative of confidential nature entered into with her home on August 20, and that the latter made over money to the husband through Nosu's representatives Ishii and Ise, to secure her for a sum of money. In the event of Urayama's failure to pay the money the woman would be taken from him.

Has a Remedy For Money Stringency

Denver, Col., Dec 12—Peter J. Lonergan, a prominent banker and director of Union Dime Savings bank, has offered a solution of the present financial stringency. Mr. Lonergan has been prophesying a panic for some time to the present one of a decade of years, and has been doing his utmost, both in correspondence and personal interviews with statesmen and bankers, to induce to have the plan adopted.

In his scheme for the readjustment of financial conditions, Mr. Lonergan opposes the issuance of all national bank notes and the retirement of all United States bonds. In the place of the bonds, he advocates an issue of non-interest bearing notes and as a substitute for national bank notes an issue of notes by a "central" bank, which shall be secured by deposits of bullion.

FAVORS FEDERAL CHARTER

In outlining his plan in a letter to President A. H. Curtis, of the Bank of North America, Mr. Lonergan says, "I am in favor of all banks in the United States in existence January 1, 1908, whether federal, state or territorial, being granted a federal charter on their existing status as to capital with federal inspection.

"Of creating the central bank of the federated banks of the United States.

"Of federating all of the banks into the federated banks of the United States, instead of the American Bankers' Association.

"That all of these banks shall deposit 5 per cent. of their capital with the central bank as a guarantee fund, which shall be loaned to any solvent bank in temporary need.

"That the government permit the federated banks to issue currency through the central bank, such currency issues to be secured by coin or bullion to be deposited with the central bank.

"The bullion or coins so deposited to consist of all our own coins and all coins that will stand remaining at a parity of our present ratio of value, which would take in the Mexican dollar, Japanese yen, Russian rouble, Indian rupee, Siamese tical, Philippine peso, etc., etc.

"The bullion to consist of 7 per cent. base bullion, such as is used in our nickels and cents, 33 per cent. of gold 900 to 1,000 fine, and 10 per cent. of silver, 900 to 1,000 fine.

CENTRAL BANK TO ACT.

POLICE

It was stated in the evening papers last evening that two men had been arrested for burglarizing Mr. Thos. Brightman's house and stealing a quantity of jewelry. These men were not arrested on this charge, but for another offence. The police however, captured the burglar last night, with the stolen property on his person, and he is now behind the bars.

Seriously Injured by Falling Tree

A few days ago at Jack's Lake lumber camp, a son of Mr. B. Jones, was seriously hurt. It seems that two men had just felled a large hemlock, which, in its descent struck Jones on the head, crushing him to the ground.

The injured man was removed to the camp. Mr. Andy Pattison got for Dr. Bell, who as quickly as trouble was on the spot and when thinks the patient owing to his physical condition will recover.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, DECEMBER 10, 1907

BY WHAT CAPITAL?

The special correspondent of the Western Mail of Cardiff, who visited Canada, a few months ago, closed one of his articles on the Dominion by asking whether England or the United States will furnish the capital that is necessary for the development of this country. It is perhaps of greater importance to the United Kingdom than to Canada how this question shall be answered. We think the claim sometimes made, that an increase in the investments of money from south of the International Boundary, will weaken the feeling of loyalty to British connection among the Canadian people, has no real foundation. Capital is cosmopolitan and it would be difficult to point to a single instance in which any representative of the United States investments in this country sought to influence public opinion in favor of the severance of the Imperial tie and the union of the Dominion with the Republic. On the contrary, investors from the United States find so great a degree of security under British institutions as exemplified by the laws and courts of Canada that they would probably be the last people to advocate a change in this respect. But if our neighbors are to furnish the bulk of the capital, which the expanding industries of the country require, it will unquestionably lead to very close commercial relations between the two countries, and this in the long run will be far less beneficial to the United Kingdom from a commercial point of view, than that degree of business about if the requisite capital were furnished from that source. All Canadians would greatly prefer to see the latter course prevail, and we find no difficulty in believing that the British public would do the same.

We are not disposed to complain of the comparative slowness of British investors to seek Canadian opportunities. As a matter of fact there is a very great deal of British capital invested in Canada, more, possibly, than most of us suppose, but undoubtedly in the newer and more speculative lines, people from the United States have shown themselves the more ready to try their fortunes. One reason for this is that they are close at hand and can readily examine anything that is offered. Another is that they are familiar with the lines of investment which Canada presents. It is a great mistake to suppose, as many do, that the British investor is exceptionally timid, for he is quite otherwise. He takes longer chances with his money than any other person in the world. But he has not yet got in the ways of looking to Canada as a place to put his money, except in certain lines. For example, a good area of timber land is every soon taken up by United States buyers, but as far as we know very few English moneyed men have been buying timber. Almost any amount of money can be got in the United States for the purchase of Canadian real estate in large blocks, but English capitalists do not appear to have turned their attention in that direction. As for mining, we are not surprised at the slowness with which our friends in the United Kingdom display about locking gold of no wild speculative. These three lines are those in regard to which the most surprise is expressed as to the difficulty of interesting English capital, and we repeat that we do not see any reasonable cause for complaint, not that we would not prefer the money to come from our own people but because we cannot blame them for not engaging in investments with which they are unfamiliar. But there is a vast field outside of these lines, and it includes industrial and local transportation undertakings. We confess to surprise that the men, who have made Great Britain such a marvelous workshop, have not as yet to any considerable degree realized the opportunity offered by Canada. We suppose this is because the country is yet in the making, and financial circles, in the United Kingdom, have been chiefly concerning themselves with the larger transportation questions, which are at the foundation of the country's development. While we may regret that more British capital does not find its way into Canada, we ought not to lose sight of the fact that it is to London that our railways go when they want money.

Trapped Bride

Ripley, Tenn., Dec. 10—Etta Clarence Smith, the 15-year-old girl who became the bride of A. H. Hall, billiard room proprietor of Sedalia, Mo., and who lived for two weeks in the same house with Hall's first wife and two daughters after Hall had introduced her as his niece, says that she will not help him to use "the new" defence, that he was delirious with typhoid fever when he married her.

In an interview at her home here she says that she will return to Sedalia and appear against Hall at his trial.

Etta Smith says that her parents first learned that Hall had another wife through letters written by Hall's business partner, Earl Yankey, to her sister, Minnie Smith.

She says that she did not learn until she returned home that she did wrong when she went to join Hall in Sedalia, and on going to his home with him after he had told her that he had another wife.

H. M. Smith, the young woman's father, says that he can easily prove that Hall apparently was in good health during the two weeks he courted Miss Smith here, and that he gave no indication that he had typhoid delirium.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

A Strenuous Hint.

It was growing very late, but the young man in the parlor scene showed no signs of making a home run.

"You evidently have a very vivid imagination, Mr. Borem," said the dear girl as she made an unsuccessful attempt to strangle a yawn.

"Why do you think so?" queried the unsuspecting Borem.

"I thought perhaps you imagined yourself in the arctic regions, where the nights are six months long," she explained.

And thirty seconds later he had faded into the glumpsome gloom.

Not Run by an Irishman.

When a French chauffeur brought an imported machine to the repair shop one of the mechanics became interested in the ingenious speed indicator which records the distance covered in the metric system.

"It's surely fine," remarked the man, "but it would take a Frenchman to read it."

"Do you tink," exclaimed the chauffeur, "dat zees mashcen cez run by an Irishman?"

A Criticism.

"Mrs. Chatterton is a perfect talking machine."

"As a piece of machinery, though, she lacks one detail."

"What is that?"

"The exhaust."

Big Difference.

"Paw, what is the difference between a chef and a cook?"

"A chef, Tommy, superintends the cuisine, and a cook bosses the kitchen."

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital needs to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1603 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 254 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $3.34 each per day, or $82.22 for the 47½ days stay.

MASSAGE

last year. Out of the 79, about 50 were from the country.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

was to get there, as she could not travel alone.

"I have it," answered Eugenia. "I have long wished to spend a few days in New York, but that bane of my life, poverty, has always prevented. Now, however, as old Uncle Nat has kindly furnished us with the means, I propose that Alice and I start day after to-morrow, and return on Saturday. That will give us ample time to see the 'lions' and get the city fashions."

"It will cost a great deal for you both to stay at those large hotels," said Mrs. Deane, and Eugenia replied:

"One hundred dollars will cover all the expense, and pay Dora's fare besides. What is the use of money if one can't use it? I shall get my furs and jewelry and forth, while I'm there, so I'd better take three hundred or fifty dollars, for fear of any accident. We are not obliged to spend it all, of course," she added, as she saw the look of dismay on her mother's face. "And we can bring back whatever there is left."

For nineteen years Eugenia Deane had been suffered to have her way, and her mother did not like to thwart her now, for her temper was violent, and she dreaded an outbreak; so she coldly acquiesced in reply, and when, on Monday morning, Eugenia started for New York her purse contained the desired three hundred and fifty dollars, which, after her arrival in the city, was spent as freely as if it really belonged to her, and not to the orphan Dora, who was now staying with Mrs. Grannis, a kind-hearted woman in the same block where her mother had lived. The furs were bought, the pearls examined, the forks priced, and then Alice ventured to ask when they were going to find Dora.

"I shall leave that for the last thing," answered Eugenia. "She can't run away, and nobody wants to be bothered with a child to look after." So for three more days little Dora looked out of the dingy window upon the dirty court below, wishing her aunt would come, and wondering if she should like her. At last, toward the close of Friday afternoon, there was a knock at the door, and a haughty-looking, elegantly dressed young lady inquired if A little orphan girl lived there.

"That's her, Aunt Sarah," exclaimed Dora, springing joyfully forward; but she paused and started back as she met the cold, scrutinising glance of Eugenia's large black eyes.

"Are you the child I'm looking for?" asked Eugenia, without deigning to notice Mrs. Grannis' request that she would walk in.

"I am Dora Deane," was the simple answer; and then, as briefly as possible, Eugenia explained that she had been sent for her, and that early the next morning she would call to take her to the depot.

"Did you know mother? Are you any relation?" asked Dora, trembling with eager expectation; and Alice, who, without her sister's influence, would have been a comparatively kind-hearted girl, answered softly, "We are your cousins."

There was much native politeness and natural refinement of manner about Dora, and instinctively her little chubby hand was extended toward her newly-found relative, who pressed it gently, glancing the while at her sister, who, without one word of sympathy for the orphan girl, walked away through the winding passage, and down the narrow stairs, out into the sunlight, where, breathing more freely, she exclaimed, "What a horrid place! I hope I haven't caught anything. Didn't Dora look like a Dutch doll in that long dress and high-neck apron?"

"Her face is pretty, though," returned Alice, "and her eyes are beautiful—neither blue nor black, but a mixture of both. How I pitied her as they filled with tears when you were talking. Why didn't you speak to her?"

"Because I'd nothing to say," answered Eugenia, stepping into the carriage which had brought them there, and ordering the driver to go next to Stewart's, where she wished to look again at a velvet cloak. "It is so cheap, and so becoming too, that I am half tempted to get it!" she exclaimed.

"Mother won't like it, I know," said Alice, who herself began to have some fears for the three hundred and fifty dollars.

"Pudge!" returned Eugenia, adding the next moment, "I wonder if she'll have to buy clothes for Dora the first thing. I hope not," and she drew around her the costly fur for which she had paid fifty dollars.

Of course the cloak was bought together with several other articles equally cheap and becoming, and by the time the hotel bills were paid there were found in the purse just twenty-five dollars with which to pay their expenses back to Dunwood.

There were bitter tears shed at the parting next morning in Mrs. Grannis' humble room, for Dora felt that the friends to whom she was going were not like those she left behind; and very lovingly her arms wound themselves around the poor widow's neck as she wept her last adieu, begging Mrs. Grannis not to forget her, but to write sometimes, and tell her of the lady who had so kindly befriended her.

"We can't wait any longer!" cried Eugenia, and with one more farewell kiss Dora went out of the house where she had experienced much of happiness, and where had come to her her deepest grief.

"Forlorn! What is that old thing going for? Leave it," said Eugenia, touching with her foot a square green trunk or chest which stood by the side of the long, sack-like carpetbag containing Dora's wardrobe.

"It was father's — and mother's clothes are in it," answered Dora, with quivering lips.

There was something in the words and manner of the little girl as she laid her hand reverently on the offending trunk, that touched even Eugenia; and she said no more. An hour later, and the attention of more than one passenger in the Hudson River cars was attracted towards the handsome-looking ladies who came in laden with bundles, and followed by a little girl in black for whom no seat was found save the one by the door, where the wind crept in and the unmelted frost still covered the window pane.

"Won't you be cold here?" asked Alice, stooping a moment, ere passing on to her own warm seat near the stove.

"No matter, I am used to it," was Dora's meek reply; and wrapping her faded, half-worn shawl closer about her, and drawing her feet up beneath her, she soon fell asleep, dreaming sweet dreams of the home to which she was going, and of the Aunt Sarah who would be to her a second mother.

God help them, Dora Deane!

CHAPTER IV.

One year has passed away since the night when, cold, weary, and forlorn, Dora followed her cousins up the graveled walk which led to her new home. One whole year, and in that time she has somewhat changed. The merry-hearted girl, who, until a few weeks before her mother's death, was happier far than many a favored child of wealth, has become a solemn, quiet, self-reliant child, performing without a word of complaint the many duties which have gradually been imposed upon her.

From her aunt she had received a comparatively welcome greeting, and when Eugenia displayed her purchases, which had swallowed up the entire three hundred and fifty dollars, Mrs. Deane had laid her hand on the little girl's soft auburn hair, as if to ask forgiveness for the injustice done her by the selfish Eugenia, whose only excuse for her extravagance was, that "no one in her right mind need to think of bringing back any money from New York."

And Dora, from her seat on a little stool behind the stove, understood nothing, thought of nothing, except that Eugenia looked beautiful in her velvet cloak and furs, and that her aunt must be very rich, to afford so many handsome articles of furniture as the parlor contained.

"And I am glad that she is," she thought, "for she will not be so likely to think me in the way."

As time passed on, however, Dora, who was a close observer, began to see things in their true light, and her life was far from being happy. By her cousin Alice she was treated with a tolerable degree of kindness, while Eugenia, without any really evil intention perhaps, seemed to take delight in annoying her sensitive cousin, constantly taunting her with her dependence upon them, and asking her sometimes how she expected to

A Sad Bereavement.

An honest countryman, anxious to explore the wonders of the British museum, obtained a special holiday a short time since. Accordingly, taking with him a couple of friends, he presented himself at the door for admittance.

"No admission today, sir," said the keeper.

"But I must come in. I've a holiday on purpose."

"No matter. This is a close day, and the museum is shut."

"What!" said John. "Ain't this public property?"

"Yes, but one of the mummies died a few days ago, and we are going to bury him."

"Oh, in that case we won't intrude!" said John in a hushed voice. So he retired.—London Tit-Bits.

The Unpopular Pump.

"That famous temperance reformer Francis Murphy," said a Pittsburg man, "had many an odd adventure in the course of his very useful life. He once told me of a case where a drinking man with a neat joke got for the moment a little the better of him in an argument. The man was a clubman, a bon vivant, famous for his wine cellar, and Mr. Murphy read him a strong lecture on the drink evil. But the bon vivant only smiled, shook his head and said:

"'Well, Mr. Murphy, I have seen many a pleasant party around a table, but I have never seen one around a pump.'"

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Petrolatum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use internally, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, bloating, belching, biliousness, bad taste, etc., surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES

said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 8 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda, yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1.400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder. Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is he character of J. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development, will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Perney Hirtsehman Tells His Part of Story

The Case Fully Reported, Proves the Work Was Done by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Halifax, N.S., Sept 25.—A well-known resident at 93 Sackville st. Mr. Perney Hirtschman, who has been in a somewhat serious condition lately, has recovered, and says: "Six months ago my appetite fell off and my health became very poor. I had terrible attacks of indigestion and often was unable to sleep at night My poor color showed what an ill man I was. I tried numerous remedies but the only genuine one was Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Two boxes cured my indigestion. My appetite increased and my strength came back quickly. Today I have a fine zest for my meals. I feel as strong and healthy as a young boy. Because they are so cleansing and so tonic in their effect I think Dr Hamilton's Pills should be used by every person. My wife used them regularly with grand results.

Winter Races by Local Turf Club

The Peterborough Turf Club under whose auspices races are run that the most sceptical could not point the finger of graft at have held a meeting when arrangements were made for the annual winter meet. The dates decided upon were Jan. 21 and 22, and a good program will be arranged. Peterborough is on the circuit and a number of the best horses in the country who will go down the eastern line, winding up at Ottawa, will be here for the meet. The first day's racing will include the 2.35 and 2.18 class, and on the second day the bill will consist of the 2.22 and free-for-all. The winter meet has always proved a success, but there is good reason to expect that the event this year will break all previous records. County Court Met Yesterday

Murray to be Tried for Drawing Gun on P. C. Newhall

The autumn session of the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace opened yesterday afternoon at one o'clock before his Honor Judge Weller.

The members of the bar present were, Messrs. P. D. Kerr, D. O'Connell, G. Gordon, R. E. Wood and [illegible] Medd.

The grand jury was first empanelled, with Mr. W. E. Conway, as foreman, and consisted of the following: W. E. Conway, Thos. Hall, Jr., A. C. Denike, William Graham, Joseph Green, G. N. Hamilton, W. S. Johnston, W. Kelly, Thos. Lillico, A. McIntyre, Robert Miller, A. R. Nicholl, Thomas Nicholl.

His honor stated that many of the prisoners in the jail were serving sentence for vagrancy, four were committed for theft. There were two cases from a criminal standpoint to be tried. One was against a man named Murray, who was charged with attempting to hoax Police Officer Newhall at the C.P.R. station some time ago.

The other case was that of theft against a man living in Cavendish, who is charged with stealing goods. He also advised the jury to visit the jail, and explained that the vagrants then were not sent to the County House of Refuge in view of the fact that no arrangements could be made between the city and county as regards the cost of maintenance. He would have directed the jury to visit the House of Refuge had it not been for the fact that a grand jury visited that institution not very long ago.

The first case that came before his honor, was that of Collier vs. Donohue. Mr. W. H. Collier claims $200 principal and interest, on a promissory note for $500, which is now overdue. Hall, Medd and Davidson for plaintiff, O'Connell & Gordon for defendant.

The MacPherson Co. vs. Pappas case was settled out of court, as was the only jury case on the docket, that of McIntyre vs. Nelson.

Alberta Rancher Gives Experience

Mr. Alfred Dawson, formerly of South Monaghan, now of Maple Creek, Alberta, is in the city. Mr. Dawson left for the West about five years ago, and has been engaged in ranching since, and speaks hopefully of Alberta's future. He says prospects are somewhat better for this winter. In his locality the farmers had a good average crop, but he reports that ranching is being very largely discontinued. The farmers are taking the place of the ranchers to a very large extent. Mr. Dawson says that there are quite a number of Peterborough people in his locality.

Has Ananias Been Outbeaten in Stories

Yesterday a story was current throughout the city regarding a strange discovery made in the interior department of a lunge, supposed to have been prepared and stuffed by a local taxidermist.

It seems that a prominent Belleville sport recently sent in immense lunge, which he caught with an 8-ounce rod, to Mr. Elcombe to be stuffed as a souvenir of his prowess in the fishing line. While preparing this lunge preparatory to setting it up, Mr. Elcombe found in its department of the interior two spikes weighing four pounds.

Memory Improved

Since Leaving Off Coffee

Many persons suffer from poor memory who never suspect coffee has any thing to do with it.

The drug—caffeine—in coffee, acts injuriously on the nerves and heart, causing imperfect circulation, too much in the brain at one time, too little in another part. This often causes a dullness which makes a good memory nearly impossible.

"I am nearly 70 years old and did not know that coffee was the cause of the stomach and heart trouble I suffered from for many years, until about four years ago," writes a Kans. woman.

"A kind neighbor induced me to quit coffee and try Postum. I had been suffering severely and was greatly reduced in flesh. After using Postum a little while I found myself improving; my heart beats became regular and now I seldom ever notice any symptoms of my old stomach trouble at all. My nerves are steady and my memory decidedly better than while I was using coffee.

"I like the taste of Postum fully as well as coffee. My sister told me two years ago that she did not like it, but when I showed her how to make it according to directions, she thought it was delicious.

"It is best to pour water over your Postum, let it come to a boil, then boil 15 minutes. That brings out the flavor and full food value."

Making Good.

There is no way of making better friends like "Making Good:" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made drunkards.

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifested, hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into notice for a brief period and then been as soon forgotten.

For a torpid liver with its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue, with bitter taste, loss of appetite, with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an honest, square-deal medicine—tells all its ingredients printed on bottle-wrapper—no secret, no hocus-pocus business, therefore don't accept a substitute that the dealer may possibly make a little larger profit. Insist on your right to have what you call for.

Don't buy Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription expecting it to prove a "cure-all." It is only advised for woman's special ailments. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Less advertised than some preparations sold for like purposes, its sterling curative virtues still maintain its position in the front ranks, where it stood over two decades ago. As a soothing vigorating tonic and strengthening nervine it is unequaled. It won't satisfy those who want "booze," for there is not a drop of alcohol in it.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the original Little Liver Pills, although the first pill of their kind in the market, still lead and when once tried are ever afterwards in favor. Easy to take as candy—one to three a dose. Much imitated but never equaled.

Good Coal Stock Is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines [illegible] north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000 00 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy for $3 is tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 320 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crows Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. $3 per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $250.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

We are offering these shares in blocks of 100 to 10,000 at 25c per share. For further information address

—COAL—

We have acquired options on certain coal-bearing lands in the Belly River Basin, near the Town of Lethbridge, Alberta, containing in all 2640 acres which comes under the new government Leasehold Act, which extends for a period of 21 years with an option of renewal at the expiration of that time. The government annual fee is $2640.00.

We are forming a syndicate of $25,000.00 to acquire sufficient capital to begin operations. Of this amount we want to raise $15,000 cash in order to put in a small plant to begin operations. After such has been done our intentions then are to form a Joint Stock Company for, say, $500,000 capital, or for such amount as the syndicate may agree upon. The syndicate is to own 51 per cent. of this stock for their share of the money and time expended in the interests of the company. Balance of stock to be sold to the public for the purpose of installing an up-to-date plant, etc.

$3.00 PER TON

is the price that is being paid at the mine for No. 1 quality of hard coal of which we might say ours is similar. It burns to an ash. Has no clinkers and is right in the hard coal belt.

The seams which outcrop on the Belly River are 5 1-2 to 6 feet in thickness and in places reach a depth of 16 feet at some distance back from the river. With these reports in view, we estimated that 50,000 tons could be mined to the acre. It is doubtless the best coal deposits that we have ever looked into and a chance is hereby given to our customers to join with us in this syndicate, for you can readily see that as soon as the Joint Stock Company is formed, your holdings will be worth ten times as much. We are subscribers ourselves to the amount of $5,000. As we expect the syndicate allotment will be largely over-subscribed, we would advise immediate steps, if you wish to get any of the syndicate shares.

Should your subscriptions not be accepted, your money will be refunded. No subscriptions will be taken for less than $100.00.

A FORTUNE

Now that you have the opportunity to get in on the ground floor of a company, do so. Don't always be a common stock holder. We might also add that a few of our best coal dealers here are joining in the syndicate.

As this will be the only time this advertisement will appear, it is necessary for you to consider that a delay may rob you of the opportunity.

MOST MAGNIFICENT CATHEDRAL IN WORLD FOR THE CATHOLICS

Roman Catholics of the United States are Planning to Erect it at Washington Honor for Foreign Power

Baltimore, Dec. 11.—Roman Catholics of the United States are to undertake to erect at Washington the largest and most magnificent cathedral in the world. Prominent priests and laymen are at work on the project, which will distribute the cost of this great structure among 15,000,000 Catholic laymen in the country. This may require two years.

Baltimore as the head of the Church See, but if the words of Cardinal Gibbons have been correctly interpreted, some other city will be selected for the great cathedral. There is uniform belief among the clergy and laity that this other city will be Washington, and that New York or Chicago is out of the question. Those who are working on the plan are confident that the project will have the backing of Cardinal Gibbons, the ruling head of the Church.

DECLINES TO DISCUSS IT.

The facts which the American has learned concerning the project-ed cathedral were put before Cardinal Gibbons this afternoon.

"I cannot discuss this," he declared. "Of such I have heard nothing of it."

"You would be pleased to see such a monument to the Church erected here, would you not," he was asked.

"I do not want to go into the matter. I tell you that officially I know nothing about it. I will say, however, I am always in favor of any advancement for the Church and such a cathedral certainly would be a great achievement for American Catholics."

"Would such a structure be erected in Baltimore to take the place of the present antiquated cathedral" was asked.

"I will say this, and then you must excuse me," he said, feelingly. "It is hardly likely that the present cathedral at Baltimore will be superseded by any modern structure than the one now in existence. Be sure you remember these exact words. That is all I have to say just now upon that topic."

POLICE

Yesterday morning at the police court Charles Maher, who was taken into custody Tuesday night by P. C. Adams, on the charge of stealing a gold watch and $50 from the residence of Mr. T. Brightman, 243 Stewart street, received a trial. It was the third time of the stolen property at Clarke and Schneider's jewelry stores.

Alice Maher, said boon arrested, the jewellery, which was Miss Brightman's property, stolen from her room, was submitted to her for identification, identified, and restored. Prisoner remanded for a week.

Wm. Metcalf, a Brakeman, stood trial yesterday afternoon at the police court on the charge of non-support of his wife. It will be remembered that McCrea was fined before the magistrate a few weeks ago on a similar charge, but was allowed to go. A new information was laid out against him under the Ontario Statute. Mr. R. F. McWatters acted for Mr. McCrea and Mr. G. Carlton defended the husband. The case was enlarged for week.

Farmers will Receive 20 Millions More Than in 1906

Montreal, Dec. 12.—Mr. T. D. Griffin, land commissioner to the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, has telegraphed the management of the company in Montreal that extensive inquiries made by his department throughout the entire West of Canada indicate that the farmers will receive twenty millions dollars more for their grain crops than the total amount they received for last year's crop.

Bruce Ridpath Returns

Toronto, Dec. 12.—D. Bruce Ridpath the hockeyist and cricketer, who has been in Europe for the past three months, returned home yesterday. He played in the six-day cycle races at Berlin and Hamburg, and his engagement lasted from September 18th to November 23. He never missed a performance, playing once a day. He was billed as "D. Bruce Ridpath of Chicago, the equator wonder." The Germs thought Chicago was better known than Toronto, and billed the young Canadian as coming from that place.

Ridpath will likely stay in Toronto this winter, and play hockey with the professional team. He has an offer from Manager Sexsmith of the P.A.C. hockey team of Pittsburg.

Next season after a tour of the States in summer months Ridpath has engagements at the New York Hippodrome and the four old country Hippodromes at London, Manchester, Liverpool, or Glasgow. He sold his cameos in London, but retained others which were built at Peterborough and Toronto.

NEW YORK MILLIONAIRES ARE FOUNDING AN AFRICAN EMPIRE

Expect to Turn Millions into Billions by Developing Resources of 166,000 Square Miles of Congo Territory

New York, Dec. 12.—In the heart of Equatorial Africa a group of New York millionaires has acquired an empire.

Out of the empire, representing in direct and indirect control a region of 166,000 square miles, they expect to increase their millions, perhaps to turn them into billions.

The men who are exploiting this untrodden wilderness are largely financial private, and among the Thomas F. Ryan, James D. Stillman, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., H. P. Whitney, P. D. Allards, and the Guggenheim brothers. Other names have been mentioned, including those of J. P. Morgan, Thomas F. Walsh, and Anthony N. Brady, who may own stock in the two great companies which have been formed, but they are not directors in either, and have taken no active part in their organization.

These men have as partners King Leopold, king of the Belgians, and a few Belgian financiers.

POWER VIRTUALLY ABSOLUTE.

Their empire is in the heart of the Congo Free State, in fact it stretches almost across the greatest breadth, from east to west, and consists of between eight and nine million acres, or, roughly speaking, an area about the size of New Hampshire and Vermont. Over this they have powers which are virtually absolute. Nominally the Congo courts have jurisdiction over the territory, and it is governed by the laws of the Congo, but actually these Americans are its masters. They have the right to enforce it, and the crimes of their concession-aires the upon them are chiefly. They may employ native labor or may import coolies or Americans, just as they like, but there is no doubt they will employ native.

King Leopold signed all these American concessions, one month ago. Mr. Ryan is not a man who [illegible] going into [illegible] knowledge of what he is doing or without [illegible] will reap a substantial profit from the investment. The man who advised him that they would be wrong to invade the Congo was John Hays Hammond, the mining engineer, who had looked Central Africa over in a general way and who knew the vast mineral wealth that lay hidden in its monumental rocks. He had traveled through its forests of rubber trees, [illegible] ivory and other valuable woods, and he knew that, even if the gold, the copper, the silver should not turn out to be worked, there was enough money to be realized out of the rubber and the ivory to [illegible] should open up the country. This has report supported by the reports of other experts. Mr. Ryan accepted the suggestions of the king of the Belgians that he take a long lease of the vast territory.

Greatest Woman Hero Pensioned by Carnegie

Newport, Dec. 12.—As long as she lives, Mrs. Ida Lewis, keeper of Lime Rock Lighthouse, will receive $30 a month, having been pensioned by Andrew Carnegie. Ida Lewis is the greatest woman life saver in the world. She has to her credit in the fifty years she has tended Lime Rock Light eighteen rescues, all of them made under adverse conditions at the risk of her own life.

At seventy she is a weather-beaten woman, showing traces of beauty, healthy and able to pull an oar. She would not hesitate today, if there was a call for aid, to go out in the roughest even though it looked like a foolhardy attempt.

When she became a widow, thirty-two years ago, she succeeded her husband as keeper of the light on the rocky ledge at the entrance of Newport Harbor. How well she has filled the trust may be gauged from the fact that Congress has made her keeper of the light for life. Whether she is able to attend to her duties or not her salary will go on. Added to the pension is the Carnegie pension and she has saved something from her salary.

In her lonely home where the crashing of the sea and the roar of the breakers have been the music of her life her wants have been few. She has been visited by the cottagers and the visitors at Newport. The government has honored her with medals. The Humane Society of Massachusetts and several life-saving societies have also given medals to her for various rescues.

She seldom wears them, but when she does, sometimes, because some one requests it, her decorations are sufficient to make a veteran of the Old Guard uneven in her presence. Her greatest prize is the boat which the citizens presented to her. It is a fine lifeboat and as seaworthy as it is beautiful. It is a part of her life.

The most recent bit of daring of this woman who has done so much work in the government service was the rescue of two soldiers from the fevering waters of Narragansett Bay when their small sailboat had capsized in the wind. In her boat the fearless woman went to their aid with a sea cunning that was old even for that part of the coast. She skilfully placed her boat beside the capsized craft, locked it so that the men could climb in and then landed them at the light.

Last week the Society of the American Cross of Honor singled her out as the bravest woman in America, and added a medal to the collection she has.

Turf Club Races Attract Attention

Much interest is being taken, not only in this city and county, but throughout the province in the winter meet of the Peterborough Turf Club, which it has been decided upon. Some good races will be held, and with the old staff of officers, everything in connection with the meet should be run off to the entire satisfaction of the starters and the public. The public appreciates good races, and no doubt the meet will be accorded a liberal patronage.

Remember the dates, January 21st and 22nd.

Havelock Hockey Team Elects Its Officers

Havelock, our eastern suburb, while smallest in population than patriotism, has still a strong sporting element. This burg has reorganized its hockey team and elected officers as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Jas Thompson.
President—Jas. E. Fowler
Vice-Pres.—T. F. Doneen.
Manager—B. T. Andrews
Treasurer—T. Morris
Secretary—H. Connolly.
Executive Committee—F. Brown, O. Bicken and W. Foster.

The captain of the team will be elected later by the players elected by the manager and the executive, and he will control the team during matches.

The secretary was instructed to write the clubs of the surrounding towns with a view to forming a league in order to arouse interest in hockey this season.

The start made by the club is a good one and it may be assured that the management can be depended on to make a success of it.

Conditions Out West

Winnipeg, Dec. 11. — "Winnipeg business firms have things well in hand and are well able to cope with the situation. They have seen hard times than they are likely to see now." This statement was made by W. A. Matthews, general manager of R. G. Dun and Co., during the course of a talk on conditions in the West. Mr. Matthews has been so far west as Calgary, and returns to Toronto Wednesday.

The present situation, he considers, is in keeping with a world-wide financial stringency, and in the West it has been caused by a rapid growth having got ahead of banking facilities. The West is like a boy who has outgrown his clothes," declared Mr. Matthews. Conditions in Canada are not nearly as bad as in the United States, and Mr. Matthews does not think they will be. The check which is being felt now is an excellent thing for the country, and the result of very rapid expansion. With resources such as the West possesses it cannot be kept down, and it will not really hurt by present conditions. The tide of immigration is turned toward the West so strongly, and railway extension is so rapid that the check cannot be held back very much.

Mr. Matthews did not think that really solid merchants would be seriously affected by the stringency, as he found a disposition on the part of the bankers to help those engaged in legitimate business. Speculation, however, would be checked, as it should be, for it had assumed too great proportions for safety. The bankers had become a unit upon this, and there would be little money for such objects for some time. Legitimate merchants would not be allowed to suffer.

In the East the manufacturers had all been busy up to the present and business had been good, but just now there is a tendency to restrict the output, because the depression is being felt in the East just as in the West. The bankers have pursued a prudent policy, and the Canadian banking system has stood the test well.

Unemployed in Toronto May Organize a Parade--"Bread or Work"

Pitiful Gathering Held in Toronto

Several Were Out All Night in the Snowstorm

Toronto, Dec. 12—A mass meeting of unemployed, followed by a "bread or work" parade to the City Hall and the Legislative Buildings, will probably be the outcome of the meeting of a hundred or more workless men in the Maple Leaf Lodging House, 130 Wellington street west, yesterday morning.

"It ain't any use our meeting here and talking," declared William Mills, late of London, England, who acted as chairman. "We've got to organize and walk the streets in a body, before the people of this city will really believe that there is destitution here."

ALL OLD COUNTRYMEN.

The meeting was called by H. Lambert, manager of the lodging house, and the majority of those who attended were until about a year ago residents of England, Ireland, or Scotland. It was an all-British work conference, as Mr. Lambert explained. He himself came out under the auspices of the Salvation Army, and has great complaint was that after being assisted here with his family he was left to shift for himself. However, he eventually landed in Toronto, where he was fortunate enough to get four months' work on the corporation. Then he started the lodging house.

Before the meeting commenced yesterday morning, about a score of men were given a light breakfast in the basement of the premises. "Warm your hands and fill your mouths," was the refrain of a jolly song in the dining room, when a press representative dropped in.

"Some of them did not have anything to eat all day yesterday," said Mr. Lambert. "We have the pride of the Englishman. A lot of them would rather starve than come here to beg a meal."

WANTED THE PLAIN FACTS.

"Now, open the plain truth about it, don't tell any lies," was the chairman's warning when the meeting opened in the large room upstairs at ten o'clock.

Telling his own story, the chairman said that he had been induced to come to Canada through a "lot of lies printed by the steamship companies, in Lloyds' and other newspapers."

"I sold my home—and I had a good home—to come out here with my family. I was a hack driver, and had a good business. When I got here I found six months' work. But that is long now, and means starvation to me and my family. If things go on as they are all winter."

BLAME IMMIGRATION.

Mr. Mills had some hard things to say about the immigrants on agents, and "their false representations."

"They ought to be shot," he declared.

"Or horse-whipped," said Mr. Lambert.

The chairman described some of the glowing lectures of Canada, sent out in England, for pro-pective emigrants.

"And when I come here I find that this is the Glorious Country, and this is the Land of Gold I have been hearing about. It is a land where I cannot earn bread to feed my wife and children during the winter."

The Salvation Army and Sea Rose people were not exempt from Mr. Mills' criticism.

"After their emigration work they throw a sprat to catch a mackerel," he said. "They look on the graft they get out of it."

One man in the audience, Murphy by name and brogue, put a very popular question when he enquired why the Mayor of Toronto couldn't do at least as much for the English speaking unemployed as for the Bulgarians.

"I read in the papers," said he, "that they found work for the Bulgarians and housed them. Why can't they do that for the English and Irish people?"

Another man declared that the reason Old Countrymen could not get along well here was because they had a spirit of independence, and would not lie down and be trifled about like the foreigner.

"The city of London is full of foreigners," he said, "and the English people never think of scoffing at them. I tell you the Englishman will not take abuse. He would sooner be knocked out than take it."

FOOD FOR THE CHILDREN.

"Talk is cheap," declared Mr. Lambert at last. "We do something. It's to feed the starving children that we want to get at. All the married men here step up and sign their names. We will see that their children do not starve anyway. It's married men with families first—single men afterwards."

A committee of fourteen was appointed to arrange for the petitions to the civic authorities and the governments, also to arrange for the mass meeting and the parade.

Mr. Lambert extended an invitation to the men to meet at Carlton street church last night.

"This place will henceforth be a mission under the direction of the Methodist Church," he said. "Any clothing and food left here will be judiciously dispensed to deserving people."

Murray Sentenced to One Year in the Central Prison

County Court was resumed yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, before his Honor Judge Weller. The first of the criminal cases was taken up. William Haines, of Cavendish, was charged with breaking into the store of Robert Bell on the 12th day of October, stealing a number of articles, including 300 feet of lumber, etc.

Mr. R. E. Wood [illegible] for the Crown, and Messrs. E. D. Kerr and E. L. Goodwill appeared for the defendant. Haines pleaded not guilty. A jury was quickly empanelled. After [illegible] were sworn Crown Attorney R. E. Wood addressed them, in the interests of the Crown. It appears that Wm. Haines, defendant, sold a house and some property to Richard Bell, who was to have possession by the first of October. Bell agreed to pay Haines $25, and have the contents of the house. On the Sunday following the payment of the $25 Bell visited the house which he had then rented to a man by the name of Vickers, and found it locked, but a window was smashed. He went over to Westlake's, a nearby neighbor, got Vickers, and returned to his house. Upon examination, the above mentioned articles were missing. Haines was suspected as having carried them off.

The case was resumed.

At the County Court yesterday, Judge Weller sentenced Murray to one year in the Central Prison for [illegible] on P. Newbold, [illegible] station.

To refresh the memories of our readers, that about the 22nd of October, three suspicious looks individuals were peddling jewellery, town P. C. Newbold was informed by [illegible] and followed the two who [illegible] on the C.P.R. midnight train. Newbold in plain clothes, accompanied by P. C. Adams, went to the station where Murray, the prisoner, tried to sell a [illegible] watch and chain for $6, a doz.—to the police officer, who grabbed two of the men in the rough-ride that followed. One got away, and Murray was in the act of drawing a revolver, when it was knocked out of his hand with the policeman's baton.

Murray was arrested and committed for trial, his case being heard yesterday afternoon before Judge Weller, who sentenced him to one year in the Central Prison.

300 Widows and 1,000 Fatherless --107 Bodies Found

Monongahela, W. Va., Dec. 11. — The excitement of the first few days following the terrible disaster at the Fairmont Coal Company mines here has about subsided, and the situation has settled down into a steady, systematic search for the bodies of the victims. Up to noon today 100 bodies had been brought to the surface, and with large additions to the rescuing force it is hoped to have the mines cleared very soon.

Half a dozen relief stations are now in operation, and supplies of all kinds are coming in rapidly, and being as quickly disbursed. The cash contributions to date total $40,000.

The relief committee estimates that there are 300 widows and 1,000 orphans as a result of the disaster, and destitution among them will be very great.

The Barnardo Home Children on Parade

Yesterday some ladies in charge of the children of the local Barnardo Home, had their own troubles, or, as they possibly might name it, "pleasures." Anyway two of those self-denying and capable ladies connected with the above local charitable institution were busy, those ten minutes, one in the advance guard the other at the rear of a small army of kids running from, say 8 to 15 years of age.

The little ones were marshalled along Water street south, and the ladies in charge had their own troubles keeping the diminutive future heads or mothers of families in lines of fours as they duly marched along to see the great toy display in Soden's Book Store. A passing glance showed that these children, no matter whether the casual reader believes in bringing these children to Canada or not, were well clad, clean, and happy looking. This is a tribute to the local management.

Meeting of Directors of Star of the East Co

A meeting of the directors and shareholders of the Star of the East Gold Mining Company was held yesterday morning in the Sons of England Hall, Hunter street. There was a small number in attendance and no business of importance was transacted. Among the prominent officers of the company in attendance was Mr. Ira Dale, of Franklin, Penn.

The small gathering however, is no indication of the excellence of this mine which is attracting the attention of capitalists from every section of the United States and Canada. The samples shown by those in charge of active operations indicate a rich find that will ultimately result in great dividends to those fortunate enough to hold stock. Some of the samples seen by a Times reporter showed a proportion of gold that must eventually, if not in the immediate present, pay large profits to shareholders.

Off to England for Christmas Holidays

Quite a large number of people well known here, are going to the Old Country to spend the Christmas holidays. Among those who are going across the ocean for Christmas are Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Poole, and family and maid, Mr. T. Rydard, Mr. T. Hallett and Mrs. D. Moon. The above people sail on the C.P.R. steamship, Empress of Ireland, from St. John, on Friday. They were booked by Mr. W. Mellroy, the local C.P.R. ticket agent.

Entertainment for the Children

At a meeting of those interested in the Children's Aid Society, it was unanimously decided to hold a children's entertainment in the Market Hall some day during Christmas week. Mr. Peter Campbell occupied the chair, and some discussion took place as to what kind of an entertainment should be given the deserving poor of the city. A committee was appointed and they will meet tomorrow night to complete arrangements for the concert and treat to the poor children.

Food vs. Cosmetics

Every drop of red blood coursing through one's arteries carries to the skin health or disease, dependent largely upon the character of the food taken into the system.

Eat greasy, uncooked, heavy foods and the complexion soon tells the tale of disordered liver and warns one that a change should be made in the diet.

All over America the people are learning the great value of Grape-Nuts ready cooked food, and thousands find it just the food they have long been seeking. Grape-Nuts food is cooked at the factory for a period of 12 to 14 hours. It is easily assimilated even by the most sensitive stomach, and contains just those elements necessary to make strong, healthy bodies, clear brains, and beautiful complexions.

Geo. Williams Arrested

Last night George Williamson created a disturbance at the Opera House and was being ejected by the house constable of that place of amusement, and Constable Archie Moore. However, the services of the veteran P. C. McCarty were required, and "Charlie" took charge of the unruly one, and without gas-stance landed the would-be Tommy Burns in the local dungeon.

Britain's Fine Crops

Ottawa, December 12.—Reports received at the Department of Trade and Commerce from Great Britain say that this year's harvest has been one of the finest ever gathered. Owing to diminishing acreage the total yield has been less, but the yield per acre of wheat has been 33.87, as compared with an average of 31.41 in the previous ten years.

There has been a corresponding increase in yield for the year of other field and root crops.

DEATH FROM HEART DISEASE

A Case of Neglecting a Weak Heart and Tired Nerves.

If your heart flutters, be careful. An attack is liable to come on at any time. Excitement, over-exertion or emotion may cause it.

If blood rushes to the head, if palpitation and short breath are noticeable, there's cause for alarm.

If you want a good honest remedy try Ferrozone. We recommend Ferrozone because we know it's just right for heart trouble. It cured A. F. Beattie, who lives at Allan Hotel, Bay City, Mich. See if your symptoms resemble these:

SYMPTOMS OF WEAK HEART.

Nervousness	Palpitation,
Trembling,	Dizziness,
Sinking Feeling,	Heart Pains,
Short Breath,	Weakness.

Mr. Beattie says:

"I was weak and miserable.

"I was subject to heart palpitation and dizziness.

"As I grew worse I began to have trembling and sinking sensations.

"Ferrozone strengthened my heart, gave vigor to my nerves, soon made me well. It's a great rebuilder."

By strengthening the muscles of the heart, giving proper circulation and causing a general rebuilding of the whole system, Ferrozone is bound to do grand work in heart trouble; try it. 50c per box, or six for $2.50. at all Dealers.

STRAIGHT SALARIES—NO FEES

The Ontario Government has under consideration a comprehensive scheme for the general abolition of the fee system, particularly in relation to semi-judicial offices.

Hon. Mr. Whitney, the Prime Minister, is out of Toronto, but a member of the Ministry told the News that, in view of the consideration and investigation which must necessarily precede any legislative action, it was doubtful if any program would be sufficiently matured to present to the legislature at its coming session. It is not improbable, however, that indications of the Government's plans may be submitted.

The object in view is understood to be the payment to all such officials as sheriffs, registrars and County Crown Attorneys of straight salaries, instead of the existing practice of authorizing them to collect fees. It is believed that the change will do away with many abuses, be equitable and just to the officials, and in many ways be of benefit to the municipalities. It is recognized that the remuneration would have to be determined to a large extent upon local conditions, and the average amount of work the officer is called upon to perform. The adoption of an equitable scale of salaries would be one entailing a close examination of many individual cases in which exceptional circumstances exist.

Some action may also be taken in relation to substituting the fees allotted county magistrates and justices of the peace by a direct stipend. Another matter which may have consideration is the advisability of prohibiting County Crown Attorneys from engaging in private practice.

THE ATLANTIC PASSAGE

The advocates of the Blacksod Bay route for Atlantic steamships are urging their scheme with great pertinacity. It will, however, be a work of difficulty to divert the traffic from routes on which great vested interests have been built up. At the same time the promoters of this new route hold their inducements for the adoption of their scheme which are very attractive. They cut down the time required for passage from land to land between Ireland and Canada to three and one-half days—a proposition most attractive for those who suffer from mal de mer. It is not suffer, however, that the shortest distance by sea between the two shores would give the best route, since the further distance to be traversed by land from the two ocean terminals have to be considered in reaching a conclusion on the whole problem. The comfort afforded by great vessels like the two gigantic Cunarders is a new element in the question which must be considered when a shorter sea route, combined with several transfers and railway journeys of some length, is the alternative scheme. In any case we may look forward with considerable confidence to improvements being made in the Canadian route.

SUNKEN CITIES.

Ancient Legend of the Lost Dutch Town of Stavoren.

Along the shores of the German ocean, as in other parts of the world, there are legends of great and populous cities swallowed up by the sea. Sometimes these legends are based upon facts and occasionally not. A writer in the Scientific American says: "The most striking of all the legends is that dealing with the lost Dutch town of Stavoren, at the entrance of the Zuyder Zee. Here there lived a rich and powerful lady, whose pride, cruelty and selfishness aroused the anger of heaven and caused the wicked and misguided city to sink beneath the waves. A small portion of the city (where the good people lived) was saved, and its name still cleaves to the small town of Stavoren. It is an indisputable fact that in the thirteenth century Stavoren was a wealthy and powerful commercial city. However, due partly to the port's becoming choked with sand and partly to the irruption of the Zuyder Zee in 1277, it rapidly lost its importance, and at the present time what is left of it affords shelter to only about 800 souls. The roofs and spires of the now submarine buildings can, it is said, be often seen far down in the depths when the sea is still and the weather is clear, while silent listeners on Christmas eve will hear the distant and muffled tone of church bells arising from the depths, only to break in bubbles and ripples on the surface of the Zuyder Zee.

"Disaster befell the small hamlet of Tiefengruben about thirty years ago. This was a pretty little village situated near Kranichfeld, in Thuringia, Germany. In the center there was a small innocent looking pond, upon which the good people used to keep their ducks and other water loving fowl. One stormy day, why and wherefore heaven only knows, the village went down, and its place was taken by a large lake, which still marks the site of the ill fated village. The benighted peasant returning home after a hard day's work felling timber in the forest surrounding Kranichfeld often sees uncanny looking lights flitting about over the marshy ground and mutters a prayer for the rest of the troubled spirits who, he thinks, are hunting for their lost home. These lights are merely ignited marsh gases, or 'will o' the wisps.'

"Many other towns have disappeared, due to landslides, avalanches and the like, which have buried them into lakes and inland seas. Local legends say that huge devilfish live in these lakes, and it is their movements which cause the towns to slip down and hurl their contents into the depths, where the monsters can then glut their maws on mangled flesh and blood. Since the eleventh century 'Old Hans,' as the Frisians call the north sea, has devastated no less than 144 towns and villages, either by swallowing them up entirely or else by burying them under heaps of sand."

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

The Selfishness of Bachelors.

Assuredly the erudite Gibbon and the crotchety Deyverdun would have liked a woman to attend to their household affairs, but each preferred that the other take the chance of assuming a burden, and, however prudent a wife thus obtained might have proved to be, we may be certain that her advent would have been attributed to human prescience and that she would not be regarded as coming, as the Scriptures truly say, "direct from the Lord." And yet the pompous Gibbon should have known better. Twenty odd years before, while still capable of feeling human emotion, he had fallen in love really and truly with the Lausanne minister's daughter, Susanne Curchod, and would have married her but for his father's disapproval. But self interest prevailed, and he let the beautiful girl go to become the wife of Necker and the mother of Mme. de Stael. Doubtless the melancholy aspect of the great man's autobiography is due largely to his subsequent feeling of aggrievement at having deprived himself by excessive caution of a most desirable companionship.

But it is ever so with men who have passed forty unsubdued by domestic discipline. Their flagrant demands invariably exceed the bounds of reason. Observe Gibbon's requirements—a mistress, a lively acquaintance, a good natured friend, a dignified head of the table, a frugal housekeeper and a useful nurse, all molded into one feminine form.—George Harvey in North American Review.

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PEPPER"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment. Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1093 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 254 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.21 each per day, or $57.22 for the 47½ days stay.

MASSAGE

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 79 cases of club feet treated last year. Out of the 79, about 50 were from the country.

BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

EYE CASES.

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

Please send contributions to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Sec.-Treas., of the Hospital for Sick Children, College Street, Toronto.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

repay the debt of gratitude she owed them. Many and many a night had the orphan wept herself to sleep, in the low, scantily furnished chamber which had been assigned her; and she was glad when at last an opportunity was presented for her to be in a measure out of Eugenia's way, and at the same time feel that she was doing something towards earning her living.

The oft-repeated threat of Bridget's mother that her daughter should be removed, unless her wages were increased, was finally carried into effect; and one Saturday night Mrs. Deane was startled by the announcement that Bridget was going to leave. In a moment Dora's resolution was taken, and, coming to her aunt's side, she said:

"Don't hire another girl, Aunt Sarah. Let me help you. I can do almost as much as Bridget, and you won't have to pay me either. I shall only be paying you."

Unclasping the handsome bracelet which had been purchased with a portion of the remaining one hundred and fifty dollars, Eugenia, ere her mother had time to reply, exclaimed:

"That is a capital idea! I wonder how you happened to be so thoughtful."

And so it was decided that Dora should take Bridget's place, she thinking how much she would do and how hard she would try to please her aunt, who quieted her own conscience by saying it was only a temporary arrangement until she could find another servant.

But as the days went by the temporary arrangement bid fair to become permanent, for Mrs. Deane could not be insensible to the vast difference which Bridget's absence made in her weekly expenses. Then, too, Dora was so willing to work, and so uncomplaining, never seeking a word of commendation, except once, indeed, when she timidly ventured to ask Eugenia if what she did was enough to pay for her board.

"Just about," was Eugenia's answer, which, indifferent as it was, cheered the heart of Dora, as, day after day, she toiled on in the comfortless kitchen, until her hands, which, when she came to Locust Grove, were soft and white as those of an infant, became rough and brown, and her face gradually assumed the same dark hue, for she could not always stop to tie on her sunbonnet when sent for wood or water.

With the coming of summer, arrangements had been made for sending her to school, though Mrs. Deane felt at first as if she could not be deprived of her services. Still, for appearance sake, if for nothing more, she must go; and with the earliest dawn the busy creature was up, working like a bee, that her aunt and cousins might not have so much to do in her absence. At first she went regularly, but after a time it became very convenient to detain her at home for at least two days in every week, and this wrung from her almost the only tears she had shed since the morning when, of her own accord, she had gone into the kitchen to perform a servant's duties.

Possessing naturally a fondness for books, and feeling ambitious to keep up with her class, she at last conceived the idea of studying at home; and many a night, long after her aunt and cousins were asleep, she sat up alone, poring over her books, sometimes by the dim light of a lamp, and again by the light of the full moon, whose rays seemed to fall around her more brightly than elsewhere. It was on one of these occasions, when tracing upon her map the boundary lines of India, that her thoughts reverted to her uncle Nathaniel, whose name she seldom heard, and of whom she had never but once spoken. Then in the presence of her aunt and cousins she had wondered why he did not answer her mother's letter.

"Because he has nothing to write, I presume," said Eugenia, who would not trust her mother to reply.

And Dora, wholly unsuspecting, never dreamed of the five hundred dollars sent over for her benefit, and which was spent long ago—though not for her; never dreamed of the letter which Eugenia had written in reply, thanking her uncle again and again for his generous gift, which she said was very acceptable, for "ma was rather poor, and it would aid her materially in providing for the wants of Dora," who was represented as being "a queer, old-fashioned child, possessing but little affection for anyone and who never spoke of her uncle Nathaniel, or manifested the least gratitude for what he was doing."

In short, the impression left upon the mind of Uncle Nat was that Dora, aside from being cold-hearted, was uncommonly dull, and would never make much of a woman, do what they might for her! With a sigh, and a feeling of keen disappointment, he read the letter, saying to himself, as he laid it away, "Can this be true of Fanny's child?"

But this, we say, Fanny's child did not know; and as her eye wandered over the painted map of India, she resolved to write and to tell him of her mother's divine words—tell him how much she loved him, because he was her father's brother, and how she wished he would come home, that she might know him better.

"If I only had some keepsake to send him—something he would prize," she thought, when her letter was finished. And then, as she enumerated her small store of treasures, she remembered her mother's beautiful hair, which had been cut from her head as she lay in her coffin, and which now held a place in the large square trunk. "I will send him a lock of that," she said; and kneeling reverently by the old green trunk, the shrine where she nightly said her prayers, she separated from the mass of rich brown hair, one long, shining tress, which she inclosed within her letter, adding, in a postscript, "It is mother's hair, and Dora's tears have often fallen upon it. 'Tis all I have to give."

Poor little Dora! Nathaniel Deane would have prized that simple gift far more than all the wealth which he called his, but it was destined never to reach him. The wily Eugenia, to whom Dora applied for an envelope, unhesitatingly showing what she had written, knew better than to send that note across the sea, and, feigning the utmost astonishment, she said: "I am surprised, Dora, that after your mother's ill-success you should think of writing to Uncle Nat. He is a suspicious, miserly old fellow, and will undoubtedly think you are after his money."

"I wouldn't send it for the world, if I supposed he'd fancy such a thing as that," answered Dora, her eyes filling with tears.

"Of course you wouldn't," continued Eugenia, perceiving her advantage and following it up. "You can do as you like, but my advice is that you do not send it; let him write to you first if he wishes to open a correspondence."

This decided the matter, and turning sadly away Dora went back to her chamber, hiding the letter and the lock of hair in the old green trunk.

"How can you be so utterly void of principle?" asked Alice, as Dora quitted the room, and Eugenia replied: "It ain't a lack of principle, it's only my good management. I have my plans, and I do not intend they shall be frustrated by that foolish letter, which would, of course, be followed by others of the same kind. Now I am perfectly willing that Uncle Nat should divide his fortune between us and Dora, but unfortunately he is a one-idea man, and should he conceive a fancy for our cousin our hopes are blasted forever; so I don't propose letting him do any such thing. Mother has given up the correspondence to me, and I intend making the old gentleman think I am a most perfect specimen of what a young lady should be, saying, of course, an occasional good word for you! I believe I understand him tolerably well, and if in the end I win I pledge you my word that Dora shall not be forgotten. Are you satisfied?"

Alice could not say yes, but she knew it was useless to reason with her sister, so she remained silent; while a curious train of thoughts passed through her mind, resulting at last in an increased kindness of manner on her part towards her young cousin, who was frequently relieved of duties which would otherwise have detained her from school. And Dora's step grew lighter, and her heart happier, as she thought that Alice at least cared for her welfare.

Roadside Wit.

He who matched wits with the author of "The Ancient Mariner" had indeed a lively task before him, for Coleridge was never caught napping. The poet was so awkward a horseman that his riding often attracted comment of anything but a complimentary nature. One day he was riding along the turnpike road in the county of Durham when a wag, who met him fastened upon him as an excellent subject for sport. Consequently he drew rein and said in an impertinent drawl:

"My graceful friend, did you happen to meet a tailor on the road?"

"I'm inclined to think I did," said Coleridge meditatively. "I was not sure at the moment, but he said something about my meeting a goose farther along the road."

The wag put spurs to his horse, and the poet jogged calmly on his way.

Past Salaries of Actors.

A number of autograph letters of Edmund Kean supply some interesting information about the salaries of actors early in the nineteenth century. One relates to an offer by Mr. Ellison offering Kean £3 a week as acting manager of "the new theater in Wych street." Later this rose to £25 a month. In 1820 Kean was offered $12,000 a year to go to America. In the prime of his popularity he received £200 for a week in Edinburgh and apparently reached the highest point when Mr. Bunn wrote from the Theater Royal, Dublin, on Feb. 8, 1829, and offered him £50 a night to play in Dublin and Cork.—Liverpool Mercury.

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortes, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunnelling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit, on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 100 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Hunningtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 3 to 7½ per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

No Further Details Regarding Ed. Beemin

There has been nothing further learned of Edward Beemin, who as reported in The Times of yesterday, is missing since Monday evening. The missing man resided in Myrtle, and was C.P.R. pump man for the Peterborough and Myrtle section. He and his wife were shopping in the city on Monday, and were preparing to leave for home on the 5:18 C.P.R. express. His wife went on the train but Mr. Beemin was detained to get a parcel he had left for which he went back. He was naturally accorded the privilege of travelling on any of the freight trains. When he returned to the station, he walked over to the bridge to board a west-bound freight for home. He was seen walking to the freight, and there ends all his personal history so far as known. Whilst grave doubts are held, and strict investigations have been made, nothing tangible has been adduced.

LATER.

Last night The Times called on a number of citizens living or doing business near the scene of the alleged drowning accident of yesterday and asked for particulars as to date. At a late hour no thing definite could be ascertained, the only story with any significance was that given in our yesterday's issue and that of the evening press. No body had been found, and the whole story as given previous to this issue seems founded on hearsay and fiction. We trust that the future result of the story will bear the same trade-marks.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

No Inquest on Alex. Graham's Death

In our issue of yesterday appeared the following:

Word was received here yesterday that Alex. Graham, a local man, had been shot in the woods near Gooderham, where he was employed for a lumbering firm. It is, as yet, impossible to get any particulars. A phone message to Buckhorn yesterday afternoon resulted in ascertaining that the news of Graham's accident had been learned at Buckhorn.

We might add that Dr. Gray, the local coroner, when called up yesterday by The Times, said that no inquest will be held in this matter. The doctor whilst a most efficient and painstaking official, whilst not saying so in so many words, intimated that deaths in such back country districts were no more thoroughly investigated as they might be.

The McCarthy-Huffman Controversy

Yesterday evening, in view of the recent controversy in the local press about Mr. Alan McCarthy and outside moving concerns, we might note that Mr. Chas. Horsford called at The Times office and said that, in reference to the house moved by Mr. McCarthy in the south end of the city that he had to call on Messrs. Huffman & Co., of Millbrook, to assist him. Our informant said that after Huffman & Co. had moved the house in question Mr. McCarthy claimed credit for the job. Here's a chance for the people of Peterborough, to decide between two conflicting moving firms and settle in their minds whether Mr. McCarthy or Messrs. John Huffman & Co., are wrong.

Miller for Brantford

"Giddy" Miller, of last year's Peterborough team, will play left wing for the Brantford professionals this season. He will leave for Brantford in a few days and should have no trouble in making good. The Brantford team will line up as follows;—Goal, Lehman; point, Ray Brown; cover, Capt. McDonald; left wing, Miller; rover, Taylor; center, Cochrane, right wing, DeGray. Taylor and DeGray played on the Canadian Soo team last year, while McDonald was with Calumet, and Cochrane with Houghton.

Millbrook Contractor was Injured

Mr. Alf. Huffman of the firm of John Huffman Bros., of Millbrook, was in the city yesterday on business. Some days ago this popular mechanic, who is well known throughout the county had the misfortune to be hurt whilst engaged in his business tearing down a private residence near Bethany. It seems that whilst busy on the job two scantlings, measuring 3x4 fell down, jamming his head between them. Fortunately he escaped without serious damage, but sustained serious injuries. He will however be able to attend to business in a few days. Mr. Huffman is well known in this city and his recent injury will be learned with profound regret by his many friends here.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, food rising in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such diseases or the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edw. M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Joe. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive booklet containing extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing Dr. Pierce's strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in connection with "Golden Medical Discovery." If bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Good Coal Stock is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines just north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 50 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 330 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crows Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 2,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $350.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal. They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

We are offering these shares in blocks of 100 to 10,000 at 25c per share. For further information address

—COAL—

We have acquired options on certain coal-bearing lands in the Belly River Basin, near the Town of Lethbridge, Alberta, containing in all 2640 acres, which comes under the new government Leasehold Act, which extends for a period of 21 years with an option of renewal at the expiration of that time. The government annual fee is $26 40.00.

We are forming a syndicate of $25,000.00 to acquire sufficient capital to begin operations. Of this amount we want to raise $15,000 cash in order to put in a small plant to begin operations. After such has been done our intentions then are to form a Joint Stock Company for, say, $500,000 capital, or for such amount as the syndicate may agree upon. The syndicate is to own 51 per cent. of this stock for their share of the money and the time expended in the interests of the company. Balance of stock to be sold to the public for the purpose of installing an up-to-date plant, etc.

$3.00 PER TON

is the price that is being paid at the mine for No. 1 quality of hard coal of which we might say ours is similar. It burns to an ash. Has no clinkers and is right in the hard coal belt.

The seams which outcrop on the Belly River are 5 1-2 to 6 feet in thickness and in places reach a depth of 15 feet at some distance back from the river. With these reports in view, we estimated that 50,000 tons can be mined to the acre. It is, doubtless the best coal deposits that we have ever looked into and a chance is hereby given to our customers to join us in this syndicate, for you can readily see that as soon as the Joint Stock Company is formed, your holdings will be worth ten times as much. We are subscribers ourselves to the amount of $5,000. As we expect this syndicate allotment will be largely over-subscribed, we would advise immediate steps, if you wish to get any of the syndicate shares.

Should your subscriptions not be accepted, your money will be refunded. No subscriptions will be taken for less than $100.00.

A FORTUNE

Now that you have the opportunity to get in on the ground floor of a company, do so. Don't always be a common stock holder. We might also add that a few of our best coal dealers here are joining in the syndicate.

As this will be the only time this advertisement will appear, it is necessary for you to consider that a delay may rob you of the opportunity.

DRUNKEN REVEL TO AID ALDERMAN --40,000 REALIZED

Vice Flaunted Itself---Men and Women Lay Aronnd in Drunken Stupor, while Thieves Reap a Harvest

Chicago, Dec. 12—The underworld of Chicago last night offered its annual masquerade and fancy dress ball of the First Ward Democratic Club—a hodgepodge of wine, liquor, and vulgarity—to its personification of success, "Bathhouse" John Coughlin, alderman of the First ward. The orgy at the Coliseum was a rebuke, and the cash receipts its contribution to that "statesmen" of local affairs.

The bleak interior of dawn was in the east before the fourth annual masquerade and fancy dress ball of the First Ward Democratic Club staggered to a finish. From midnight the pace grew faster and more furious until the maudlin men and women dropped exhausted from the excesses of drunkenness and debauch.

The affair carried out its pretext of being a "masquerade" until after the grand march, led by the alderman, who is the beneficiary of the event. Until that time none were permitted on the dancing floor unless masked. The early dancers were comparatively few, as the seats for women, levee resort owners, saloon keepers who were out to carouse, were crowded until midnight in garnering their own in.

WOMEN'S COSTUMES SKIRTS.

A domino across the eyes of several masked women was the only necessary accompaniment of a skirtless costume. But no modesty of nature suggested to those to leave the floor after the unmasking. Tawdry costumes of harpies, minxes, Indian maidens, gesaic girls, Tokays, and chorus ladies of all abbreviated skirts when any were worn—made up the costumes of the women masked. Strong men, gladiators, Indians, knights of old, and Asiatic fantasies sufficed for the men who were masked.

After midnight the grand march was started. The cash registers had been closed in the resorts of the First ward, and the proprietors and their hangers-on had arrived. The city council also had adjourned, and the "Bathhouse" could get away from his part in directing the affairs of the city to the personally more important task—that of replenishing his own cash box.

"Bathhouse" John, arrived in an evening dress suit, into which his willing attendants had hustled him early on the afternoon, and when he perforce were to the council meeting led the grand march. "Big Tim" Sullivan of New York, who was expected to assist, telegraphed at the last minute that he could not attend. He was fought by the falling of the "Kid" in New York and considered his services in devising ways of breaking the law more necessary than to assist in the jubilation of Chicago's lawless.

The grand march circled and recircled the hall, the men in evening dress and the women in silks and laces, that all bedecked with diamonds and jewels presenting an impressive array of the first ward's wealth from drink, white slavery, and kindred vices. As the strains of the march swung into a waltz, the masks were thrown aside, and the tenth annual orgy was in full swing.

Around the immense dance floor were the stalls, charitably called boxes. Each contained a "stable," according to the vernacular of the ballroom. Behind the boxes was a promenade, and further back under the gallery were tables. In the sunken arena in the basement tables, and at every other spot were a footing might be found among the seething crowds, were more tables, each with a waiter, anxious to bring liquid refreshments. In fear that these facilities might not suffice, a bar extended the entire length of the arena, where thirsty ones might drink as long as they were able to stand or their money lasted.

Any "stable" or individual who could be counted upon by the "Bathhouse" managers to buy champagne with sufficient rapidity was provided with a box free. Those with less means and smaller pocketbooks contented themselves with the outside tables. Few saloons in Chicago sell in a year the amount of champagne and beer consumed on this occasion. Carrying wine by the bottle or by the cases and threes proved too slow as the night waned, and it was handled to the boxes in cases. The wine agents and the whiskey and brewery men were there, and bottles were opened for the exercise.

REVEL ENDS IN STUPOR.

After three o'clock in the morning the last glamour had vanished from the revelry, and it rushed on, stripped to its true character of a drunken debauch. Men and women in maudlin stupors snored and gasped under tables and over chairs around the edges of the hall. In the center of the dance floor less stupefied couples were attempting to go through the motions of the dances which the musicians were wearily grinding out. The police were busy dragging here and there to stop the fights springing up on every side. In and out among the sleepers, pickpockets and sneak thieves flitted, gathering in watches, overcoats and other valuables. The "Bathhouse" had sought seclusion, knowing the spending was started.

In the underworld of the First Ward this morning there are grand headaches and many flat pocketbooks. The "Bathhouse" may have a good ache, but he has $40,000 as his profits.

"It's a little of the bunk, you know," he explains.

Two Little Girls Were Burned to Death in a House at Cobalt

Cobalt, Dec 12—The house of W Dewart, which stood on the Conisgas property, was burned to the ground last night at 10.30 o'clock, and his two baby girls, Evelyn, aged 5, and May, aged 3, were burned to death while sleeping together.

Both parents were absent at the time, and the origin of the fire is not known.

The blaze was first seen by a woman, who gave the alarm. When the fire brigade arrived it was too late to save anything.

Some parties broke through one of the doors, and, grabbing up the babies, brought them to the house of a neighbor. One breathed only a few minutes.

When the mother saw the fire she became very hysterical. One more child who was visiting with relatives survives

There will be no inquest.

CITY WILL PROVIDE WORK IN THE WAY OF STONE BREAKING FOR THE NEEDY CITIZENS

City Board of Works, at a Meeting Held Last Night, Decided to Purchase $100 Worth of Stone to Provide Work for the Unemployed

The City Board of Works met last night, when there were present, Mayor R F McWilliams, Ald Duncan, chairman, Aldermen Wilson and McIntyre.

The question of Mr. Wm. Davidson's account of $25 for sewer connection with his premises, on Dickson St., and which deposit he is seeking repayment of, was thoroughly gone into.

It appears that Mr. Davidson had dug up the street, and taken the law in his own hands, whereas according to bylaw he should have first secured permission from the city engineer before proceeding with the work. Mr. Davidson claims that he had taken the intervening time in ignorance of the law, and with no intention to defy the city, and as soon as his attention was drawn by the engineer to the requirements of the law under such circumstances, he had immediately made his deposit with the city treasurer. The board decided to return Mr. Davidson's cheque, but in future to prevent the opening of streets without permission.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by the Mayor,—That Mr. Davidson be refunded his deposit of $25, but in future the engineer be instructed to subscribe a fine of $10 on any person opening a street without permission before accepting a deposit for a sewer connection.—Carried.

Ald Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That the city buy in a hundred dollars worth of stone to be broken for road purposes. Tenders to be asked for the same.—Carried.

The idea of this resolution is to provide labor in the shape of stone breaking for deserving citizens.

THE DAVE HARTLEY BENEFIT CONCERT

The committee in charge of this function met last night, and decided to rent the market hall for the concert which will be held some date next month. Tickets for the occasion will be issued at once, and arrangements are under way for a musical program of an exceptional attractive nature.

The committee have every assurance of raising a substantial sum by this means for the benefit of Dave Hartley, Peterborough's phenomenal pedestrian. Everybody should buy a ticket.

Correspondent Objects to Asking Aid

(To the Editor of The Times)

It was noted in yesterday's Review, as Mr. Renart Hall, the officers trustee, under the late Mrs. Robt. Nicholls' estate, has given the old property lately occupied by Mr. Hall's dry goods firm, that the city may sell this property and ask Andrew Carnegie to give one of his conscience-saving grants, to the city for a free library. Now sir, I am as anxious as any other man in Peterborough to have access to books dealing with my own trade, but I would sooner go ignorant than have my native town buckle down and beg from a man like Carnegie. This man may have given thousands of dollars towards charity, but Peterborough does not want his kind of charity.

Yours truly,
INDEPENDENCE.

Large Bat Killed in Mid Winter

Mr. Jas. Jackson, who works at Kennedy's slaughter house, yesterday saw something flying about the establishment that attracted his attention. He got after the flying creature with a stick, and after a long chase, managed to knock it over. The thing was an immense bat whose wings would stretch from tip to tip fully six inches. The bat had an unusually heavy coat of fur, thus showing that nature had provided for the abnormal presence at this time of year.

After knocking it down Mr. Jackson captured this hybrid which recovered temporarily, later on died. He has the bat in his possession yet and will have it stuffed and set up. This is a story, whilst absolutely true, just possibly unique in natural history. When one thinks of a bat, the bugaboo of women during the summer, who fear lest it get in their hair, appearing now, it is enough to make the public look for polar bears clasping the equator. Still this story is absolutely true.

News Briefs

Ottawa, December 12.—The Government is taking its time about filling the vacant senatorship for Nova Scotia. Some three years ago Mr. Curry, of Windsor, was called to the Upper House but he declined to accept the proffered honor. As Mr. Curry would not take the oath of office he could not resign, and the Senate had to wait until the two years had elapsed before they could declare the seat vacant. This was done last session.

Dublin, December 12.—The financial worry in America is having its effect in Ireland.

There is a complaint among the peasantry regarding the non-arrival of remittances from the United States. These are usually counted on, especially during the month or so preceding Christmas.

Numerous complaints have been received from America regarding lack of employment and scarcity of money.

Orono, Me., December 12. — A positively authenticated instance of a hunter killing two deer with one rifle shot occurred one day last week less than two miles from this village.

Edwin Currier and two friends, all living at Basin Mills, were out hunting, when they came upon two deer, a small doe and a large buck. Both were side by side, the buck a few feet from the doe. Mr. Currier fired at the buck, but at the moment he pulled the trigger the doe threw up her head. Great was the hunter's surprise to see, not only the buck fall, but the doe to stagger off as if badly wounded, and fall within a few rods.

Examination showed that the bullet had gone through the buck's neck, cutting the large vein, and had struck the buck fairly in the spine, killing him almost instantly.

Berlin, December 12.—Speaking before the Reichstag committee on the budget, Admiral Von Tirpitz, secretary of the Admiralty, defended the proposal to shorten the age limit on German battleships from 25 to 20 years. He said the introduction of telescopic gun-sights had considerably enlarged the effective fighting range of battleships.

The recent battle of Tsushima had proved that the range of large guns would have to be increased, and, consequent upon this, a greater displacement had become necessary. Germany's old warships were built for short range fighting, and they have lost considerable in value, the admiral said, through this development. Short range artillery would constitute a point of great weakness in the German line of battle. Other countries were taking these changed conditions into account, the admiral continued, as for example, France, where entire squadrons of new warships had been demanded.

St Louis, Dec. 10—After running one mile over hills and hollows, Policeman James G. Reynolds, Carondolet station, plunged into the River Des Peres under the Alabama avenue bridge at 2.10 this morning, and rescued Mrs. Frank Deters, twenty-eight years old, and her four little children, whom she had intended should drown with her. The young mother fought fiercely to die.

The children—Margarette, Henrietta, Frank and Amelia, the baby—were rescued one by one as their mother, whom they permitted to tie them to her with a clothesline. The two older children declared they fought as best they could when dragged into the water of the small river.

The bridge is over a mile from where the policeman was when he first heard the screams of the children. He waded into the river to a depth of three feet, seized Mrs. Deters, and tried to draw her out of the water. She resisted, and he then tried to force the children to loosen their hold on their mother. It was then he learned they were tied to her.

The policeman cut the ropes and again tried to pull the woman to the shore, but she continued to resist. He then found that there was a rope binding the children's legs together, and he cut off the fetters. After carrying the children ashore he saved the mother.

Deters was surprised when his family was brought home, saying he had got missed them. He said his wife had been acting strangely ever since her aunt, to whom she was devoted, died in Cincinnati seven months ago.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies it under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftimes, with a debilitating pelvic catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Was Robbed and Shot

A daring holdup and attempted murder was committed between Canville and Millbrook last night, which set the residents of that neighborhood in a terrible state of excitement.

A farmer, the victim of the holdup and highway robbery, was returning to his home, when he was met by a thug and his money demanded. It is thought that the farmer put up a stiff fight, but he hesitated to draw his revolver, but sent bullets into the farmer, and succeeded in making off with his victim's cash.

The robber is described as a most sinister-looking character, having two front teeth missing, wearing a black rough cap, dark coat and red sweater. He made for the railway tracks and in the direction of Myrtle

CANADA ANNOYED --TO CANCEL SUBSIDY TO AUSTRALIAN LINE

Grant of $180,000 to Steamship Service to the Antipodes will not be Re-voted--Commonwealth is Raising Tariff

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—Canada's answer to the exclusive trade policy of the Australian commonwealth, announced in the carrying from the parliamentary estimates for next year of the subsidy vote of $240,000 towards the Canadian-Australian steamship service.

If the commonwealth is determined to exclude Canadian products from its markets, there is no further reason for keeping up this expensive steamship service, which has for many years operated between the Australian ports and the city of Vancouver. Moreover, the bulk of the trade which Canada is now doing with Australia finds its way to the latter by way of New York.

No doubt when the matter comes up in the house this session in official statement will be made on the government on the step they have seen fit to take in the matter, and also made more than one effort to obtain an agreement with Australia for mutual preferential trade, but thus far, our cousins of the antipodes have shown no desire to all embrace the proposal.

The present steamship contract between Vancouver and Australian ports in August next, by which time, of course, it is quite possible arrangements may be made either for a continuance of this service or for an improved arrangement. Both Australia and Fiji contribute towards the subsidy paid to the Union Steamship Co., of New Zealand.

The Japanese Press Counsell Government to Ignore Canada

London, Dec 12.—The Daily Mail's Tokio correspondent states that the recent anticipation that the problem of Asiatic immigration to British Columbia would be settled by Japan's imposing restrictions is not yet realized. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, almost in despair at the procrastination of the Japanese officials, with whom he has had several abortive conferences, declares, "We are no further ahead than on the day of my arrival." Baron Hayashi in an interview on the subject regarded the unofficial character of Mr Lemieux's visit, pointing out that he was merely at Tokio to inspect local conditions. The Japanese press has been urging the government not to give a moment's consideration to a proposal to restrict the supply of unskilled labor to Canada. The Jiji, the only independent newspaper in Tokio, insinuates that the matter has been settled already, and that the visit of Mr. Lemieux is merely a "bluff" to appease popular sentiment. Other journals are distinctly bellicose. The Tokio "Puck," which caricatured Secretary Taft during his recent visit, has treated the Canadian envoy in a similar fashion.

Canadian Club Meets Tonight

This evening a meeting of national interest is to be held in the National Hotel, when the Peterborough Canadian Club holds its first official meeting in the above-mentioned hotel this evening. The speaker of the evening will be Professor Shortt, of Queen's University, Kingston. His subject will be "Problems of Immigration."

Only members of the club will, of course, be permitted to attend. Membership tickets may be had, and may be got from the following officers, R. D. Kerr, D. O'Connell, Dr. Cameron, H. E. Layfield, T. F. Matthews, J. H. Farmouth, D. Hughes-Jones, J. Crane, H. LeBrun, and H. R. H. Keener.

The dinner will cost 50 cents. The only speaker will be the guest of the evening. Tickets for the dinner will be on sale at the National Hotel on Friday evening. The president, Mr. R. D. Kerr will act as chairman.

Large Importation of High Grade Pipes

Yesterday Mr. M Papas, the George street cigar man took stock. He ascertained that in his shop at 347 George street, he had in stock 151,387 cigars. These include cigars from $25 a thousand to imported aBock and Henry Clay's, worth at wholesale $100 a thousand. Yesterday he received direct from Dublin, Ireland, the largest stock of pipes that ever come to Peterborough in one individual importation. These are the celebrated "W" brand of briar pipes, solid silver-mounted, with genuine amber mouthpieces and each in a case.

Besides this importation Mr. Papas has in stock thousands of other makes of pipes including the equally celebrated "B.B.B." "G.B.D." "H. B." and Meerschaums. Those looking for suitable gifts for Christmas, wedding or birthday purposes, drop at 347 George street, the finest assortment of smokers' goods in the city. Here can be seen at a glance the largest stock of smokers' sundries to be found in any cigar store in Ontario. These facts can be seen by anyone coming to the store, it is no bluff. Visitors to the store need not buy but it will pay them to call and see the stock. Every brand of tobacco made in Canada, the United States or England, can be found in Papas' store. A large stock of Vassiadi, Philip Morris and Melakrinos cigarrets, from Cairo, Egypt.

Lindsay Man Asks The Government to Find the Child

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Among Attorney-General Foy's callers this morning was Mr. J. G. Marion of Lindsay, whose adopted daughter Dorothy disappeared from school at Lindsay on November 21st.

According to Marion, the kidnapper was Mrs. Marois of Montreal, the child's mother, and Marion's object in calling on Mr. Foy today was to have the department take up the search for Mrs. Marois and the 12-year-old girl.

"I am a poor man," Marion said to a press representative, "and already I have spent $350. We lost trace of the woman at Montreal Junction. From there she could go to Montreal on a street car, evading the police at the Windsor street station, or, else, to the States.

"Mrs. Marois gave us the child three years ago, and we adopted the child legally. My wife is almost frantic. Both of us became attached to the child, and not having children of our own, we lavished parental care and affections on the little one. She was a wild tot when she came to us, but when taken from us had become as sweet a child as you could wish to see.

"Dorothy was received into our church," went on Marion, "and we loved her as our own. So devoted was she that she insisted on making the little girl's clothes."

Householders Must Remove Snow

It is now in order when Chief Hessel sets out armed with his club and the authority of such bylaws behind him, to see that citizens get busy in certain prescribed districts with shovels, sand-paper and leather-soled boots to ensure their pavements being cleaned of all trace of snow. The district in which the police will observe the Medes and Persians law is as follows:

George from King to Murray.
Hunter, from Aylmer to Queen.
Queen from Aylmer to Water.
Water, from Charlotte to Brock.
Charlotte from Aylmer to Water.

It was rumored yesterday that we did not give it full credit that the chiefs to go forth and with a magnifying glass see out where some short-sighted citizen forgot to remove the snow layer by a passerby's watchful eye. Only one notice is to be given to people within this radius concerning the rigid laws now in force.

The Worst Forms of Bladder Trouble

Relieved by This Simple Home Mixture—Anyone Can Prepare

Here is a prescription that anyone can mix at home. Any good prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients named at little cost; being compounded of vegetable extracts, it is harmless and inexpensive. Best of all it does its work well, relieving even the worst forms of bladder trouble, frequent urination, backache, kidney complaint, and by its direct action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys, makes these most vital organs rid the blood and system of waste matter and uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Here it is; try it if you suffer: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces; Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known local druggist is authority for the statement that one week's use shows good results in nearly every instance, and quite frequently cures in less than a week. Those subject to lame back, frequent desire to urinate, pain in bladder and even chronic rheumatism are generally relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

Berlin, Dec. 12.—Dr. Czerny, of Heidelberg, an eminent authority on cancer, reviewing the latest German researches into the nature and treatment of disease recommends the simple life as among the best means of preventing cancer. He advises that the skin be kept moist scrupulously clean, that rich food be avoided, that liquid irritants be avoided. There are, he says, 90,000 deaths from cancer annually in Germany. He admits that X-rays and radium have frequently checked cancerous growths, and occasionally cured them. He finds that no certain conclusion as to their efficacy is to be drawn. Further research is necessary.

Both Gained

Man and Wife Fatten on Grape-Nuts

The notion that meat is necessary for real strength and the foundation of solid flesh is now no longer as prevalent as formerly.

Excessive meat eaters are usually sluggish a part of the time because they are not able to fully digest their food, and the undigested portion is changed into what is practically a kind of poison that acts upon the blood and nerves, thus getting all through the system.

"I was a heavy meat eater," writes an Ills. man, "and up to two years ago, was in very poor health. I suffered with indigestion so that I only weighed 96 pounds.

"Then I heard about Grape-Nuts and decided to try it. My wife laughed at me at first but when I gained to 128 pounds and felt so fine, she thought she would eat Grape-Nuts too.

"Now she is fat and well and has gained 10 pounds. We never have indigestion any more and seldom feel the desire for meat. A neighbor of ours, 65 years old, was troubled with indigestion for years; was a heavy meat eater, and now since he has been eating Grape-Nuts regularly, he says he is well and never has indigestion. I could name a lot of persons who have really been cured of indigestion by changing from a heavy meat diet to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MOTHERS MUST HAVE ABUNDANT STRENGTH

No Mother Can Rear a Healthy Child Unless She is Strong Herself.

A woman's anxieties multiply tenfold about the time the new baby is expected.

If her strength is exhausted and her blood weak, it goes hard in the hour of trial.

Ferrozone should be used because it makes the blood nutritious and rich. By instilling new strength into every part of the body, it uplifts your spirits at once.

Childbirth is certainly made easier by Ferrozone. The following statement expresses the earnest gratitude of Mrs. M. S. Duckworth, of Durham. It is a woman's story—of her own case—told that other women may profit by her experience;

"Before baby was born I was in a weak, miserable, nervous state. I had no reserve strength. I tried to build up, but nothing helped me. I looked upon the coming day with dread, knowing I was unequal to the occasion.

"Ferrozone braced me up at once. It gave me strength and spirits, brought back my nerve and cheerfulness. From my experience with Ferrozone I recommend it to all expectant mothers."

There is more concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone than you can get from anything else. It supplies what weak systems need. Simply take one tablet at meals and you'll feel benefited in a thousand ways.

Ferrozone makes healthy, virile, vigorous women: try it. 50c per box of fifty tablets, or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

BRITAIN'S ANCIENT ALLEY.

The present disturbances in Portugal will be followed with interest and a desire that they may be soon ended by those who are acquainted with the real circumstances of the situation and the causes which have brought it about. As the ancient ally of Great Britain, and one which suffered much by the attempt of Bonaparte to crush popular liberty and establish a despotism throughout Europe, Portugal has claims on the sympathy of the British people. Reading the disjointed and almost intelligible despatches which are being published at this time, the ordinary reader might suppose that it was a popular revolt against an autocratic ruler which is now going on in Lisbon and other towns in Portugal. While it is true that the Cortes has been dissolved and the Premier has refused to call another, carrying on the administration by Royal decrees rather than by legislative enactments, it is really a contest between the supporters of gross corruption and misrule and a minister who has set himself the herculean task of cleaning the Augean stable.

For years past Portugal has been governed by one or other of the two parties, one nominally Liberal and the other reactionary, but both steeped in the grossest corruption. Senior Franco, the present Premier, was a radical of the radicals, not untinged with republican sentiments, and opposed to the monarchy. But he is admitted to be honest and upright and, was called to the control of affairs by King Carlos, who was desirous of having reforms introduced and economy practised to relieve the popular burdens. Premier Franco adopted measures to that end but was met with a storm of indignation by members of both political parties, who saw their sinecures threatened and their corrupt methods likely to be made impossible. The Premier saw that he could neither carry his reform measures through the existing Cortes, nor elect another in which he could secure support for his reforms. He has, therefore, adopted the heroic course of carrying on the government by means of Royal decree, and the King, appreciating the sincerity and aims of the Minister, has given him his firm support, although with considerable danger to his dynasty. Already by extraordinary energy and political courage Senior Franco has abolished many of the worst abuses; swept away many sinecures, reformed the civil service and effected great economies in the administration. But he has aroused the anger of men of all parties who have fattened on the corruption which has existed, and in their rage they have been devising measures to overthrow the monarchy who dared to support the minister in his work of reform.

That is the real situation and it is impossible to foresee the outcome of it. The masses of the people are ignorant and become easily the dupes of agitators who pose as patriots and the advocates of popular liberty. But apart from the corruptionists, the enlightened public opinion of the country is in sympathy with Senor Franco and averse to the idea of a republic, since the people are not capable of honest self-government.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

Early Christmas Shopping.

The advice to "do your Christmas shopping early" has a hackneyed sound; and at first thought we may think of it as merely an application to the holiday trade of the methods of a "side show barker" who tries to stampede the people into his tent. But it is really an act of benevolence to the army of workers to whom the holiday trade is the severest task of the year. Literally, they are burdened to make a Christmas holiday.

They have down in New York a Consumers' League which has made an appeal this year to all shoppers to "Buy your presents early. Early in the day and early in December. That will be your biggest gift of the holidays to the workers behind the counters and on the delivery waggons." It is not only the weary clerks, with whom one comes into contact, who suffer with the rush at the last of the Christmas shopping season, but those who must wrap up and deliver your purchases as well. The tired and probably waspish errand boy who comes ringing your bell near to midnight, is a victim of your procrastination; and yet you often treat him as if he—of all persons—were to blame for the unseemly hour of his arrival. You may be very sure that he would be in bed, as you were, when he rang, if he had his way. But the rush of the Christmas trade, caused by the fact that everybody has left off his or her shopping until the last few days, compels him to do two days' work in one day and half the night. This is his preparation for Christmas.

It would be in keeping with the best Christmas spirit if we all made a special effort this year to do our shopping early, and so relieve the clerks, the packers, the delivery people, and all the huge staff of each large store from the "holiday strain."

The Unemployed To Be Given Work

Vancouver, B. C., December 12. — A delegation of 200 men, representing the unemployed of the city, waited on the council last evening. The spokesman declared that there were 3,000 men out of work, and that unless they got something to do they must either starve or steal. He said that 877 names of unemployed had been registered on a down town corner in the afternoon to obtain an estimate of the number of unemployed. Unless the council did something he could not be responsible for the actions of his followers.

One section of the council favored the appropriation of $25,000 for opening streets and sewers as relief work, but action was laid over for a day, when some appropriation undoubtedly will be made. Hundreds are arriving daily, many from Seattle, and the difficulty is to administer the work so as to give aid to those who deserve it and not to the tramp element, which is being run out by the police of American cities and is now taking refuge here.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

Tokio, Dec. 10.—A strong movement has developed in an unexpected quarter, looking to the prohibition of emigration of all laborers to America and Canada, and it is understood that a number of prominent persons intend to urge the adoption of such a measure. They will require the government to undertake the development upon a large scale of Hokkaido, Korea and Manchuria, in order to give employment to Japanese.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

letter from Uncle Nat containing the promised check, which Eugenia held up to view while she read the following brief lines:

"Many thanks to Eugenia for her kind and welcome letter, which I may answer at some future time, when I have anything interesting to say."

"Have you written to Uncle Nat, and did you tell him of me, or of mother's letter?" exclaimed Dora, who had been sitting unobserved behind the stove, and who now sprang eagerly forward, while her cheeks glowed with excitement.

Soon recovering her composure, Eugenia answered, "Yes, I wrote to him, and of course mentioned you with the rest of us. His answer you have heard."

"But the other paper," persisted Dora. "Doesn't that say anything?"

For a moment Eugenia hesitated, and then, deciding that no harm could come of Dora's knowing of the money, provided she was kept in ignorance of the object for which it was sent, she replied carelessly: "Oh, that's nothing but a check. The old gentleman was generous enough to send us a little money, which we need badly enough."

There was not one particle of selfishness in Dora's disposition, and without a thought or wish that any of the money should be expended for herself, she replied, "Oh, I am so glad, for now Aunt Sarah can have that shawl she has wanted so long and Alice the new merino."

Dear little Dora! she did not know why Eugenia's eyes so quickly sought the floor, nor understand why her aunt's hand was laid upon her head so caressingly. Neither did she know that Alice's sudden movement towards the window was to hide the expression of her face; but when, a few days afterwards, she was herself presented with a handsome merino, which both Eugenia and Alice volunteered to make, she thought there was not in Dunwood a happier child than herself. In the little orphan's pathway there were a few sunny spots, and that night when, by the old green trunk, she knelt her down to pray, she asked of God that he would reward her aunt and cousins accordingly to their kindnesses done to her!

Need we say that childish prayer was answered to the letter!

CHAPTER V.

A little way out of the village of Dunwood, and situated upon a slight eminence, was a large, handsome building which had formerly been occupied by a Frenchman, who, from the great profusion of roses growing on his grounds, had given to the place the name of "Rose Hill." Two years before our story opens the Frenchman died, and since that time Rose Hill had been unoccupied, but now it had another proprietor, and early in the summer Mr. Howard Hastings and lady would take possession of their new home.

Of Mr. Hastings nothing definite was known, except that he was a man of unbounded wealth and influence, "and a little peculiar withal," so said Mrs. Leah, the matron who had come up from New York to superintend the arrangement of the house, which was fitted up in a style of elegance far surpassing what most of Dunwood's inhabitants had seen before, and was for two or three weeks thrown open to the public. Mrs. Leah, who was a servant in Mr. Hastings' family and had known her young mistress' husband from childhood, was inclined to be rather communicative, and when asked to explain what she meant by Mr. Hastings' peculiarities, replied, "Oh, he's queer every way—and no wonder, with his kind of a mother. Why, she is rich as a Jew, and for all that she made her only daughter learn how to do all kinds of work! It would make her a better wife, she said, and so because Ella had rather lie on the sofa and read a nice novel than to be pokin' round in the kitchen and tending to things, as he calls it, Mr. Hastings looks blue and talks about woman's duties and all that nonsense. Recently he has taken it into his head that late hours are killing her—that it isn't healthy for her to go every night to parties, concerts, operas, and the like of that, so he's to bury her in the stupid country, where she'll be moped to death, for of course there's nobody here that she'll associate with."

"The wretch!" exclaimed Eugenia, who formed one of the group of listeners to this precious bit of gossip, but whether she intended this cognomen for the cruel husband, or Mrs. Leah, we do not know, as she continued to question the old lady of Mrs. Hastings herself, asking if her health were delicate and if she were pretty.

"Delicate! I guess she is," returned Mrs. Leah. "If she hasn't got the consumption now she will have it. Why, her face is as white as some of them lilies that used to grow on the ponds in old Connecticut; and then to think her husband won't let her take all the comfort she can, the little time she has to live! It's too bad," and the corner of Dame Leah's silk apron went up to her eyes, as she thought how her lady was aggrieved. Soon recovering her composure, she reverted to Eugenia's last question, and hastened to reply, "'Pretty' don't begin to express it. Just imagine the least little bit of a thing with the whitest face, the blackest eyes, and the yellowest curls, dressed in a light blue silk wrapper, all lined with white satin and tied with a tassel as big as my fist, wouldn't such a creature look well in the kitchen, telling Hannah it was time to get dinner, and seeing if Tom was cleaning the vegetables?"

And Mrs. Leah's nose went up at the very idea of a blue silk wrapper being found outside of the parlor, even if the husband of said wrapper did have to wait daily at least two hours for his badly cooked dinner!

"Oh, but you ought to see her dressed for a party," continued Mrs. Leah, "she looks like a queen, all sparkling with diamonds and pearls; but she'll never go so many more, poor critter!"

And as the good lady's services were just then needed in another part ing to her audience, who commented upon what they had heard, each according to his own pleasure, on warmly commending Mr. Hastings for removing his delicate young wife from the unwholesome atmosphere of the city, while others, and among them Eugenia, thought he ought to let her remain in New York, if she chose. Still, while commiserating Mr. Hastings for being obliged to live in "that stupid village," Eugenia experienced a pleasure that she was trying, and on her way home imparted to Alice her intention of being quite intimate with the New York lady, notwithstanding what "the prideful old Mrs. Leah" had said about those living in one of Dunwood to be too good to associate with humbler people.

Dora listened to the conversation and detailed descriptions of Rose Hill and some rooms and objects of interest, and, while her cheeks glowed with excitement, she exclaimed, "Oh, how I wish I could really live in such a house!"

"And I shouldn't wonder if you do. Your present prospect looks very much like it," was Eugenia's good natured reply, which Dora scarcely heard for her thoughts were busy elsewhere.

She had an eye for the beautiful, and, strange to say, would at this time have preferred remaining in her aunt's pleasant parlor to washing dishes from off the long kitchen table, but as the last seemed to be her destiny, she submitted without a murmur, contenting herself the while by building castles just as many a child had done before her, and will do again. Somehow, too, Dora's castles, particularly the one of which she was mistress, were always large and beautiful, just like Eugenia's description of Rose Hill, to which she had listened with wonder, it seemed so natural, so familiar, so like the realization of what she had many a time dreamed while her hands were busy with the dish towel or the broom.

Dora was a strange child—so her mother and her Aunt Sarah both had told her—so her teachers thought, and so her companions said, when she stole away by herself to think, preferring her own thoughts to the pastime of her schoolmates. This thinking was almost the only recreation which Dora had, and as it seldom interfered with the practical duties of her life, no one was harmed if she did sometimes imagine the most improbable things; and if for a few days succeeding her cousin's visit to Rose Hill she did seem a little inattentive, and somewhat abstracted, it was merely because she had for a time changed places with the fashionable Mrs. Hastings, whose blue silk morning gown, while discussed in the parlor, was worn in fancy in the kitchen.

A FLOATING SNAIL.

Peculiar Ways of This Wonderful Little Creature.

There is a small snail which is so fond of the sea that it never comes to land, and it builds such a capital boat for itself and its eggs that while large ships are sinking and steamers are unable to face the storm it passes about in perfect safety.

The little snail is of a violet color and is therefore called janthina. It has a small shell, and there projects from the upper part of the body a long, tongue-like piece of flesh. This is the raft, and it is built upon most scientific principles, for it has compartments in it for air. It is broad and the air compartments are underneath, so that it cannot capsize.

Moreover, the snail knows how to stow away its cargo, for the oldest eggs and those which hatch the soonest are placed in the center and the lightest and newest on the sides of the raft. The janthina fills its own air compartments by getting a globule of air underneath its head. The body is then curved downward beneath the raft, and, the head being tilted on one side, the air rushes up and fills the spaces. It feeds on a beautiful little jellyfish, which has a flat, rafflike form with a pretty little sail upon it, and they congregate in multitudes when the sea is calm.

Sometimes specimens are washed upon the northwestern coast of France, and when they are handled they give out a violet dye.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous soreness, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES

said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB

says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 581 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunnelling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has convincingly proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda, yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little or no other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by the largest stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and the stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable—reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be created as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of J. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the in cale.once, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length, no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made five gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently found in this ore. If the Antigua mine continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth many times par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of precooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage-earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and have a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Horse and Street Car Collide

One of Parker's Dye Works delivery horses had a narrow escape yesterday morning from being killed. The young man handling the reins was driving on Brock street, and attempted to cross George street in front of an approaching street car. Mr. Gordon, the motorman, deserves great credit for the quickness with which he brought his car to a standstill. The horse jumped on the fender and thus saved its life. No damage whatever was done.

Good Program at Conservative Club

Last night the Conservative Club rooms were well filled when the first of the season's series of club smokers—which were so successful last year—was given.

The late president, Mr. J. Hampden Burnham, kindly gave a reading from Dickens, "A Christmas Carol," and from Thompson-Seton's "Lives of the Hunted." There was a good program of songs and everything went off harmoniously and in a way to make all present enjoy their evening.

Six Teams in City League

Bridgenorth has at a meeting of the City Hockey League, been admitted, thus making six teams for the coming season. Those at the above noted meeting were:—President F. Clarke, Secretary Huston. Messrs. Burt and Quinn, representing Lakefield. Mr. Kelly, representing Bridgenorth; Mr. Doherty, Norwood, and Mr. Metheral, of the Strathconas.

Bridgenorth was unanimously admitted to the league, and Mr. Kelly gave assurance that a fast septette will be put on the ice.

Although the Strathconas are to play intermediate O.H.A., the club will have a team in the City League, having plenty of material to draw from for a second aggregation. To date the following teams have been entered:—

Strathconas.
High Lifes.
Lakefield.
Bridgenorth.
Norwood.
Keene.

Clubs desirous of entering the league must make application no later than Saturday of this week.

It was decided to have season tickets good for admission to all league games issued at once. They will be on sale in a few days and the price will be the same as last year, 75 cents.

The secretary was instructed to have the constitution of the league printed in book form, and it was decided to have a meeting on Dec. 20th, for the purpose of drawing up the schedule for the season. All the games will be played at Brock street rink, and, in all probability, on Wednesday night of each week. Last year the games were played on Thursday night, but it is felt that Wednesday night will be more feasible. The teams must deposit their guarantee money before December 20th.

The president and secretary were appointed a committee to interview the rink management regarding dates for the games.

Advertise in the M. & M. Number

Judging by the way local manufacturing firms, merchants and others are subscribing towards the Merchants and Manufacturers number of The Times, this issue will be unprecedented in Peterborough. A glance over the subscribers' list shows that many thousands of an issue is now assured. Those wanting broadcast advertising at a comparatively low figure, had better avail themselves of this chance. Remember the M. & M. number will go to final press in a few days. Here is your golden opportunity to get before the public of both Peterborough and Ontario. Take it while you can.

—Don't fail to attend the sale of goods at 5, 10 and 25 cents, now on at Times Bookstore. Toys, games, dolls, books, fancy glass and china ware, etc.

Coffee Hurt You?

No need to get mad now, tear up the paper, or shout "nonsense, good coffee never hurt anyone."

You know better than that for you can point out all around you folks who are the worse for coffee's slugging. Think over a few coffee-drinking friends and casually enquire if they are entirely and perfectly well and just how coffee treats them.

If it hurts others isn't it just possible?

Catch the drift, don't you?

In fact after you have studied the matter a bit it will come plain that if you are a coffee drinker the chances are you already have some form of incipient or perhaps fixed organic disease due entirely to the coffee — constipation, rheumatism, eye trouble, nervous headaches, nervous prostration or others of the well proven coffee ails. You can decline to look the thing squarely in the face and peg along with the coffee.

Some day Nature will haul you up SHORT!

IT'S A POOR BARGAIN

to swap health and a clear, business-like head, for a few cups of coffee each day.

Every coffee toper tries to wiggle around and charge his aches and ails to weather, overwork, too much or too little food this, that or the other thing, so it isn't his Master, coffee.

A Sure Personal Test

will locate the exact cause of your steady destruction of health, if that cause be COFFEE. It's worth knowing the plain, sober fact before fixed organic, heart or other disease sets in, which perhaps cannot be cured.

The test is pleasant, accurate and satisfying.

Quit coffee absolutely for 10 days and in its place use Postum.

BE SURE the Postum is properly boiled as per directions on pkg. (and that's easy) then you have the famous Food coffee, with the deep seal brown which turns to rich golden brown when rich cream is added and the flavor is crisp, snappy and soft like the high grades of Old Gov't Java.

If in two or three days you begin to sleep soundly at night, digest your food better, stomach and bowels show signs of recovery, or the old feeling of weakness at the heart leaves, or eyes get stronger and head works clearer, (the ails of coffee drugging are multitudinous) the facts will be before you and

WARKWORTH MAN'S

Repudiates "Soul Mate," By

MOCK MARRIAGE

Man Well Known in Peterborough and Throughout This District--Already Has a Legal Wife

Chicago, Dec. 13.—"The union of two accordant minds, the blending of two perfect, harmonious lives into one," that in less than a year resolved itself into a large sized domestic riot, figured in the criminal cases heard by Municipal Judge Newcomer in Harrison street court.

The defendant was Robert Gilray, an attorney, 519 Chicago, Opera House block, 58 years of age. The complainant was Mrs. Adelaide Lawton Gilray, who supposed she was the wife of the defendant. On Oct. 19 she had her supposed husband arrested, charged with threats to kill.

Gilray's assertion that the complainant was not his wife, brought in evidence what Judge Newcomer styled "the most remarkable and peculiar agreement" he ever read.

REPUDIATES WOMAN HE DECEIVED

Incidentally the day was the anniversary of the "wedding" that took place in Boise City, Idaho. When Gilray declared Mrs. Gilray was not his wife the woman threw up her hands and exclaimed loudly:—

"What, this man says he is not my husband! What does he mean?"

Whereat she drew from her dress front a carefully folded manuscript.

"Then this man has deceived me, Judge, please read that," and she presented the document to Judge Newcomer.

Previously in the trial it had been produced in evidence that Mr. Gilray had toured the west lecturing on "ethical culture" for some spiritualistic society. Mrs. Gilray prior to their "union of souls" had been a clairvoyant. Mr. Gilray had been a member of the Cook county bar twelve years.

Gilray admitted drawing up the nuptial agreement. It appeared that the psychological nature of common, every day marriage licenses at $1.50 apiece is not of sufficient "spiritual superiority" to suit Gilray.

TEXT OF NUPTIAL AGREEMENT.

This was the "agreement" that Judge Newcomer read:—

Know all men by these presents that we, Robert Gilray and Adelaide Lawton, both of Boise City, county of Ada, state of Idaho, being of the mature age of 21 years, and being students of higher thought, science, and natural law; and

Whereas, They recognize the fact that marriage is the sacrament of souls, the union of two accordant minds, the blending of two perfect and harmonious lives in one, by and through the great natural law in which no person or persons or association of persons has any part; and

Whereas, The said Robert Gilray and Adelaide Lawton, recognizing these facts and truths, do by these presents, each for himself or herself, declare they have united themselves to holy bonds of matrimony, and by these presents the said Robert Gilray declares that he takes the said Adelaide Lawton to be his wife, that he will succor, protect, and love her during the journey of life, in sickness as well as in health, and the said Adelaide Lawton declares that she takes the said Robert Gilray to be her husband and that she will love him in sickness as well as in health.

In witness whereof, the said parties have hereunto set their hands and seal this 22nd day of November, 1906.

The document was signed by both parties and the acknowledgment bore the seal of Thomas L. Martin, a notary public.

CO RT SHARPLY CENSURES GILRAY

When Judge Newcomer apprised the complainant that the marriage had been only a mock affair, she wept and almost fainted. The judge censured Attorney Gilray severely for his conduct.

Gilray admitted that he has a wife living in Warkworth, Canada.

"You, masquerading as a lecturer on ethical culture, and drawing up such a contract as that!" said Judge Newcomer. "You have been an attorney a good many years and you knew you were deceiving that woman. I shall place you under a bond of $500 to keep the peace and stay away from Miss Lawton. You are a lucky man if your trouble ceases there. You ought to be deprived of your privilege to practice law, or to represent any sort of a religious sect."

"I questioned the marriage, but he said it was legal," said Miss Lawton. "He spent half a day, with me at the Idaho state house, showing me that he said supported the form of marriage. I didn't know he had a wife."

Miss Lawton is 43 years old, and has been divorced once.

"Mr. Gilray threatened to kill me, because I made inquiries about the marriage," she continued. "On Sunday morning he drew a knife and threatened to stab me after kicking me out of bed."

POLICE

At yesterday's police court a man named Williamson, who made things lively in the opera house the other night, appeared on the charge of assaulting his wife. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week.

Williamson intimated that the woman came home drunk and smashed the windows and hurled things at him. A contest ensued, in which his wife fared very badly. He asked to be allowed to go, and offered to pay all costs in the case and sign a pledge to leave liquor alone.

"You are remanded for a week," said his worship.

James Williamson, a cousin of George's, and who made trouble and struck Mr. Cavanagh of the house of that name, was assessed $2 and costs, amounting to $5.75.

Millionaires to Entertain Canadian Athletes

Toronto, Dec. 13.—Mr Tom Eck, the veteran trainer and athletic authority, who is at present in the city negotiating the I.C.A.C. in completing arrangements for the local six-day indoor athletic meet to be held in the market early in January, and who is interested in the movement to take a Canadian athletic team of 30 men to New York, where an athletic tournament will be held, today wired Mr. Robert S. Sands, president of the Strollers' Club of New York, as follows: "Take all arrangements for Madison Square Garden for athletic meet for Canadian athletes, any date garden can be secured after January 14th."

It is all probability the Canadian team will compete under the auspices of the Strollers' Club, a millionaire organization. Mr. Eck will be in charge of the affair, and Tom Longboat will be sent after the world's 15 or 20-mile indoor record as the main attraction.

The track, which is a turf affair, will run nine laps to the mile. The cream of the local athletic world will comprise the team.

CHAINS AND CRUELTY

To a Young Englishman

IN A NORTHERN CAMP

John Kay Tells a Story of Suffering--Suing for $10,000, Alleging Unlawful Arrest

Montreal, Dec. 13.—John Kay, a young Englishman, has, through the law firm of Greenshields, Greenshields & Lonquedoc, instituted an action in the Superior Court, for $10,000, against McRae, Chandler & de Neil, railway contractors, alleging unlawful arrest and cruelty. Kay alleges that he was employed to work for the firm in Northern Ontario at $35 a month and board, but on getting to work was informed that he would get $1.75 a day, and must provide for himself. He was glad to be discharged and went to a neighboring camp. Eight days afterwards he was seized by agents of his former employers and thrown in a boarding house at Englehart for three days and four nights, during which he suffered greatly from brutal treatment. He was then removed to a log shanty, where he was further imprisoned for eight days, half-starved and nearly driven insane by flies.

He was then taken to North Bay, and without being given any opportunity for defence, was sent to jail for one month on a charge of desertion, but was only detained 12 days when he was told to get out and back to Montreal as best he could.

Says England Faces Black Peril Also

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—The grave ills of the white race are not confined to the United States; England faces it in her colonies. The whole world faces it. The problem of the status of that race is one of the greatest and gravest questions for consideration.

So says John Roger, governor of the English Gold Coast Colony, southwestern Africa, express these views in an address at the Lenten Sunday-afternoon church.

"In Africa," he said, "negroes outnumber the whites in the proportion of 5,000,000 to 1,000. How to educate them is a grave question there as in America. Our greatest trouble is to induce them to work with their hands—in the trades. The hope of the Negro race lies in manual labor.

A DISCOVERY OF GREAT VALUE

Because a Cure Was Found for Inflammatory Rheumatism

There are many types of rheumatism but none worse than inflammatory.

It was this kind that almost killed Mrs. Edw. Warman, of Kent Jct., N. S.

Every known remedy she tried, different doctors gave their advice, but the disease increased.

Weak and despairing, she was at her wits' end when the remarkable cure of Thos. Cullen was published. This gentleman was cured of rheumatism by "Ferrozone." Consequently Mrs. Warman used the same remedy. Here is her statement:

"For years I have been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success. The disease increased, settled in my joints and muscles, there swelled, caused excruciating pain and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were lame and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day, I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better, it eased the painful joints, gave all it so that out as ache has returned. me energy and a feeling of new life. Ferrozone cured my rheumatism, and even damp weather no longer affects me."

Ferrozone has power to destroy Uric acid, neutralize and enrich the blood, and therefore does cure the worst cases. Mrs. Warman's statement proves this.

By removing the cause of the disease and building up a reserve of energy Ferrozone is certain to cure. Sufferer, isn't it about time to stop experimenting? Ferrozone is a cure. We guarantee this. Sold by all dealers. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name—"Ferrozone."

BIG MEN SEE DAYLIGHT

The big men of New York's financial district declare that the crisis is past and that normal conditions are close at hand.

Evidence is not wanting that public fright led to the hoarding of countless millions. This fright is now rapidly subsiding and this in itself is the forerunner of public confidence. Authorities on trade and commerce in the American money market contend that basic conditions throughout the Republic are sound. The crops are good and they are bringing good prices. Farmers are in a stronger condition than ever before, mortgages in agricultural sections being very few compared with ten years ago. With this state of things existing, the leaders of finance begin to see daylight.

In addition immense imports of gold are being arranged for, nearly $30,000,000 being on the way across the Atlantic. There is, in fact, currency enough in circulation to warrant an optimistic outlook. All that is required is confidence, and with powerful hands at the helm, from the President to Morgan and the other steady ones of Wall street, that should soon be a feature of the market.

As goes New York, so goes Montreal, not to speak of Toronto and Winnipeg. Canadian financiers, it cannot be denied, take their cue from New York and improved conditions in the east reports must be followed here by cheering reports in our centres of trade. Even now the clouds are rapidly disappearing.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Sheep's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Sheep tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and cedar stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Sheep's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Sheep's. Take no other. All dealers.

PRIZED PAPER MONEY

Rare Issues That Even Trained Experts Seldom See.

OLD RED GOLD CERTIFICATES.

They Were the First Ones Issued and Seldom Get Into Circulation—National Bank Notes of 1865 That Puzzled Financial Institutions.

"It is a curious fact that not one man out of ten can tell you the design on any one of the current United States bank notes," said a collector of paper money. "Of course I don't refer to the notes of high denomination. I mean everyday, common bank notes of low denomination, and I do not bar in this statement many employees in banks.

"They handle money in a mechanical way, and I'll venture that many of them would be stumped if you were to ask them to give you a detailed description of a dollar bill. They would instantly recognize it when it came to hand, but each man trusts more to a general impression of what constitutes the outlines of a certain note than he realizes. There was a very clear illustration of the truth of my statement the other day in Indiana.

"In the vaults of a bank at Rochester, Ind., there had lain for a number of years a package of five dollar national bank notes just as it had come from the treasury department. These bills all bore the name of the bank and were of the first issue of national bank notes. It will be remembered that the issue of 1865 showed a fine engraving of a historical character on the reverse of each denomination, the five dollar bills bearing on the back a representation of the landing of Columbus, on the obverse being an Englishman presenting an Indian maiden to three women, emblematic of Europe, Asia and Africa.

"A good many of these new bills were paid out, and not long afterward telegrams, letters and even personal calls began to pour into the bank warning the officials to be on their guard—that a most clever and absolutely undetectable counterfeit of their notes was out, and the only way the fact had been discovered was owing to the difference between this and the present designs of national bank notes. The incident went to show how little the average business man is acquainted with paper money, for if there was one note that a counterfeiter could not duplicate with success it was the fresh, flat national bank note of the series mentioned.

"The cashier of the bank, however, curious to see for himself whether bank employees really were suspicious of the notes, took a trip to Chicago and made several attempts to pass the unfamiliar bills across the counters of some of the banks, but without success, the notes being refused in every case.

"The same thing happened in St. Louis when some one brought into a downtown bank a hundred dollar note with a red back. Now, the bank employees knew of the old fractional currency notes of small denominations with red backs, such as the five, ten, twenty-five and fifty cent pieces of paper, but this bill of large denomination with the glaring red reverse puzzled them.

"Yet it was a perfectly good issue, being a specimen of the first gold certificates, which made their appearance some time in 1865 or 1866. The law authorizing their issue, as a matter of fact, was passed March 3, 1863, at the same time the law was passed authorizing the fractional notes which appeared with red backs. The red backed gold certificates were of the denominations of $20, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 and had been used mostly for clearing house purposes and consequently seldom got into circulation.

"I lost no time in acquiring the bill and now regard it as one of the greatest rarities in my collection and do not believe it could be duplicated.

"I have one note that would puzzle the average business man or banker either, for that matter. It is a specimen of the three year interest bearing notes of July 17, 1861. While this one is for only $50, still other denominations were $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000. They were engraved only on one side, the other being mostly in white, allowing a space for indorsement.

"All these notes were made payable to order and bore interest at the rate of 7.3 per cent. They were known in former days as seven-thirty notes, bearing five coupons for each six months' interest, the last six months' interest being payable upon the presentation and redemption of the note.

"These notes were but a trifle larger than the ordinary bank note and were convertible into twenty year 6 per cent bonds. The fifty dollar note showed the American eagle on a rock as the principal device, the $100 bore the portrait of General Winfield Scott, the $500 that of Washington, the $1,000 Salmon P. Chase, while the $5,000 represented an Indian girl, with bow, leaning on a shield, an eagle near by and Justice at the left hand.

"In 1864 congress authorized a new issue of 7.3 per cent notes, but none was issued. In their stead came compound interest notes at 6 per cent, compounded semiannually, this really being less than the authorized interest. Many of these bills were used as general currency, and yet not one bank employee out of a hundred would know anything about them. On the back of the bill was a table showing the value of the bill every six months, the principal and interest being payable only at maturity, but the notes were always increasing in value. These also are regarded as rare by collectors.

"I have one ten dollar bill bearing 6 per cent interest from Feb. 26, 1870. I suppose I would have a lot of trouble in passing that bill if I should need to and maybe would not get more than $10 for it, and yet it is worth just exactly $21, not to say anything of its value to me as a collector.

"Of the bills made payable to order there were originally issued $83,000 worth, and the total amount converted was $58,630, leaving $20 outstanding and this ten dollar bill of mine represents one-seventh of this remainder. Of the notes made payable to bearer out of a total of $30,951,350 originally issued there is now left to be redeemed only $26,210, and the probability is that many of these notes have been destroyed.

"The bills were intended to interest poor persons in the purchase of government bonds, which accounts for the low denomination, but very few of them fell into such hands. They are now of extreme rarity and are held at a high premium."—St. Louis Republic.

Having Tried Many Remedies and Failed to Find a Cure, Tried Pe-ru-na and Was Promptly Relieved.

After Twenty Years Bondage to Catarrh

He Is Relieved By Pe-ru-na.

A public speaker cannot afford to have catarrh. Even a slight catarrhal hoarseness of the throat becomes intolerable.

This is especially true of the minister who is called upon to preside at religious functions of all sorts.

The Bishop's Strong Tribute to Pe-ru-na.

L. H. Holsey, Bishop C. M. E. Church, Atlanta, Ga., writes:

"I have found Peruna to be a great remedy for catarrh. I have suffered with this terrible disease for more than twenty years, until since I have been using Peruna, which has relieved me of the trouble.

"I have tried many remedies and spent a great deal of hard-earned money for them, but I found nothing so effectual in the cure of catarrh as the great remedy Peruna.

"I feel sure that Peruna is not only a triumph of medical science, but it is also a blessing to suffering humanity.

"Every individual who suffers with respiratory diseases will find Peruna a magnificent and sovereign remedy."—L. H. Holsey, Bp. C. M. E. Church.

50,000 BOXES FREE

Try Like I Did Under Like Conditions.
John A. Smith

For rheumatism, that horrible plague, I found a simple remedy and in order that every suffering reader may learn about it, I will gladly mail him a package free. This marvelous remedy I found by a lucky chance while an invalid from rheumatism, and has since cured hundreds of others, among them cases of over 30 and 40 years standing. In Fountain City, Wis., it cured an old gentleman who had suffered 30 years, and after seven doctors had tried in vain. In Marion, Ohio, it cured a lady who had been bedfast for thirteen weeks. In Palmer, Nebr., it cured a lady 64 years old. In Bennington, Vermont, it cured an old gentleman who had been lame for 40 years. In Rayner, Ont., it enabled a lady to abandon her crutches. In Englewood, Ohio, it cured a gentleman of 67, who had suffered 18 years.

No matter whether your rheumatism is chronic, muscular or sciatic, nor mind if other remedies have disappointed you, write me without fail, and by return mail you will receive the trial package absolutely free and also free a book on rheumatism which is illustrated with many stipled drawings from actual life, and which will tell you all about your case.

Never before has a remedy for rheumatism been so highly endorsed as this. Among the eminent people who have endorsed it is Eugen H. Plumacher, United States Consul, Maracaibo. Publisher of "Health", London, England. Doctor Quintero, of the University of Venezuela. Stevenson Mac Adams, F. J. C., F. C. SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader lives upon a farm owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

Dream on, Dora Deane, dream on—but guard this, your last imagining, most carefully from the proud Eugenia, who would scarce deem you worthy to take upon your lips the name of Mrs. Hastings, much less to be even in fancy the mistress of Rose Hill.

CHAPTER VI.

In blissful ignorance of the gossip which his movements were exciting in Dunwood, Mr. Hastings in the city went quietly on with the preparations for his removal, purchasing and storing away in divers baskets, boxes and bags many luxuries which he knew he could not readily procure in the country, and which would be sadly missed by his young girl-wife, who sat all day in her mother's parlor, bemoaning her fate in being thus doomed to a life in the "horribly vulgar country." She had forgotten that she could live "anywhere with him," for Ella Hastings of to-day is the little Ella Grey of little more than a year ago, the same who had listened to the sad story of Dora Deane without ever thinking that some day in the future she should meet the little girl who made such an impression upon her husband.

Howard Hastings was not the only man who, with a grand theory as to what a wife ought to be, had married from pure fancy; finding too late that one whom he took for a companion was a mere plaything—a doll to be dressed up and sent out into the fashionable world, where alone her happiness could be found. Still, the disappointment to such is not the less bitter because others too are suffering from the effect of a like hallucination, and Howard Hastings felt it most keenly. He loved, or fancied he loved, Ella Grey dewdedly, and when in her soft flowing robes of richly embroidered lace, with the orange blossoms resting upon her golden curls, and her long eyelashes veiling her eyes of blue, she had stood at the altar as his bride, there was not in all New York a prouder or a happier man. Alas, that in the intimate relations of married life there should ever be brought to light faults whose existence was never suspected! Yet so it is, and the honeymoon had scarcely waned ere Mr. Hastings began to feel a very little disappointed as, one after another, the peculiarities of his wife were unfolded to his view.

Up all his pictures of domestic bliss there had ever been a home of his own, a cheerful fireside to which he could repair when the day's toil was done, but Ella would not hear of housekeeping. To be sure, it would be very pleasant to keep up a grand establishment and give splendid dinner-parties, but she knew that Howard, with his peculiar notions, would expect her to do just as his "dear, fussy old mother did," and that she wouldn't for a moment think of, for she really "did not know the names of one-half the queer-looking things in the kitchen."

"She will improve as she grows older; she is very young yet—but little more than eighteen," thought Mr. Hastings; and his heart softened toward her as he remembered the kind of training she had received from her mother, who was a pure slave of fashion, and would have deemed her daughter degraded had they possessed any knowledge of work.

And still, when the aristocratic Howard Hastings had sued for Ella's hand, she felt honored, notwithstanding that both his mother and sister were known to be well-skilled in everything pertaining to what she called "drudgery." To remove his wife from her mother's influence, and at the same time prolong her life, for she was really very delicate, was Mr. Hastings' aim; and as he had always fancied a home in the country, he at last purchased Rose Hill farm, in spite of Ella's tears and the groans of her mother, who declared it impossible for her daughter to live without society, and pronounced all country people "rough, ignorant, and vulgar."

All this Ella believed, and though she was far too amiable and sweet-tempered to be really angry, she came very near sulking all the way from New York to Dunwood. But when at the depot she met the new carriage and horses which had been purchased expressly for herself, she was somewhat mollified, and telling her husband "he was the best man in the world," she took the reins in her own little soft, white hands, and laughed aloud as she saw how the spirited creatures obeyed her slightest wish. From the parlor windows of Locust Grove Eugenia and her sister looked out upon the strangers, pronouncing Mr. Hastings the most elegant-looking man they had ever seen, while his wife, the girlish Ella, was thought far too pale to be very beautiful.

Near the gate at the entrance to Rose Hill was a clear limpid stream where the school children often played, and where they were now assembled. A little apart from the rest, seated upon a mossy bank, with her bare feet in the running water, and her rich auburn hair shading her brown cheeks, was Dora Deane, not dreaming this time, but watching so intently a race between two of her companions that she did not see the carriage until it was directly opposite. Then, guessing who its occupants were, she started up, coloring crimson as she saw the lady's eyes fixed upon her, and felt sure she was the subject of remark.

"Look, Howard," said Ella, "I suppose that is what you call a rural sight—a barefoot girl, with a burnt face and huge sunbonnet!"

Ere Mr. Hastings could reply, Dora, wishing to redeem her character, which she was sure she had lost by having been caught with her feet in the brook, darted forward, and opening the gate held it for them to pass.

"Shall I give her some money?" softly whispered Ella, looking for her purse.

"Hush-sh!" answered Mr. Hastings, for he knew that money would be an insult to Dora, who felt more than repaid by the pleasant smile he gave her as he said, "Thank you, miss."

"I have seen a face like his before,—beautiful face, as she walked slowly down the road, while the carriage kept on its way and soon carried Ella to her new home.

Not to be pleased with Rose Hill was impossible, and as the young wife's eye fell upon the handsome building, with its cool, vine-wreathed piazza—upon the shaded walks, the sparkling fountains, and the thousands of roses, which were now in full bloom, she almost cried with delight, even forgetting, for a time, that she was in the "horrid country." But she was ere long reminded of the fact by Mrs. Leah who told of the "crowds of gaping people," who had been up to see the house. With a deprecating glance at the village where the "gaping people" were supposed to live, Ella drew nearer to her husband, expressing a wish that the good folks of Dunwood would confine their calls to the house and grounds and not be troubling her. But in this she was destined to be disappointed, for the inhabitants of Dunwood were friendly, sociable people who knew no good reason why they should not be on terms of equality with the little lady of Rose Hill; and one afternoon, about a week after her arrival at Dunwood she was told that some ladies were waiting for her in the parlor.

"Dear me, Sophy!" said she, while a frown for an instant clouded her pretty face, "tell them I'm not a home."

"But I just told them you were," answered Sophy, adding that "the ladies were well-dressed and fine-looking," and suggesting that her young mistress should wear down something more appropriate than the soiled white muslin wrapper in which she had lounged all day, because "it was not worth her while to dress, when there was no one but her husband to see her."

This, however, Ella refused to do. "It is good enough for country folks," she said, as she rather reluctantly descended to the parlor, where her first glance at her visitors made her half regret that she had not followed Sophy's advice. Mrs. Judge Howell and her daughter-in-law were refined, cultivated women, and ere Ella had conversed with them five minutes she felt that if there was between them any point of inferiority it rested with herself and not with them. They had traveled much, both in the Old and New World; and though their home was in Boston they spent almost every summer in Dunwood, which Mrs. Howell pronounced a most delightful village, assuring Ella that she could not well avoid being happy and contented. Very wonderingly the large childish blue eyes went up to the face of Mrs. Howell, who, interpreting aright their expression, casually remarked that when she was young she fell into the foolish error of thinking

LIQUOR IN NORWAY.

Laws by Which the Sale of Intoxicants is Controlled.

The Samlag system in Norway gives power to municipalities to grant all the retail spirit licenses which it deems necessary to a company which would bind itself to carry on the traffic in the interests of the community, with a fixed annual return of not more than 5 per cent on its paid up capital. In establishing the system the question of compensation does not appear to have presented much difficulty. When the Samlag was introduced two kinds of licenses were in existence—first, those granted annually or for a term not exceeding five years, and, second, privileged licenses, granted for the life of the licensee. In the case of the first no compensation whatever was paid to those dispossessed of their licenses. In regard to the latter compensation was granted in the form of an annuity equal to the average yearly profits for the three years preceding the suppression of the license.

With these provisions the aims and principles of the Samlag are summarized as follows: The elimination of private profit and securing the monopoly value for the public, insuring highest quality of liquors sold, the reduction of the number of licenses, the easy enforcement of the law, the destruction of the power of the spirit trade and the furtherance of all progressive measures of reform. — New York Herald.

Weak Women

The weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help, and with that way, two treatments, must be considered. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are necessary, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical remedy. The latter—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is a systemic remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a constitutional remedy, it is powerful in its influence upon the stomach, the heart, the kidneys, the liver, the nerves, all closely allied to the repair of all nerve, all disease.

The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It supplies sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and inflammations, gives prompt relief and positive results to so many diseases, whether they be of the stomach, throat, lungs, bowels, kidneys, bladder, womb, blood, nerves, or skin, that Dr. Shoop's Night Cure has come to be known as the great local remedy for the whole system. Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of [Ore Ready for the Mill, Now] Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault: of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 511 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $250,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $12.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua, we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 3 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

T. W. FOSTER, M. E.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California, for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 100 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money too.

Whole Systems Suffered From Stagnant Kidneys

Experience of a Man Who Almost Died Through Neglecting His Kidneys.

Severe and numerous are the aches and pains that warn us of kidney trouble.

RHEUMATISM.—Almost sure to come in damp or changeable weather.

HEADACHES.—Blurring of the eyes, dizzy and faint sensations very common.

BACKACHES.—Sharp, lasting pains when bending, throbbing drawing weakness over the spine, lameness in the morning.

ACUTE PAINS.—Urinary and bladder disorders causing inconvenience day and night.

Such were the conditions through which Mr. McKee, of 24 Hurd St., Halifax, had to live. "Every day I suffered sharp pains across my loins, my back seemed strained, and overworked. I was pale and looked haggard and sick. Such mental and physical discomfort was dreadful to endure. Nothing relieved till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills and they put life into my kidneys at once. I grew stronger and felt better while using Dr. Dr Hamilton's Pills and can recommend them as positive cure in advanced kidney trouble.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills always set the kidneys right, always remove the ache, stop the bladder complications and make you well.

For Kidney, Liver and Stomach troubles no prescription ever written gives the sure results of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold in 25c boxes by all dealers.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidney nerves get weak, then these organs fail. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is simply a makeshift. Get a prescription known to Druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The Restorative is prepared expressly for these weak inside nerves. Strengthen these nerves, build them up with Dr. Shoop's Restorative—tablets or liquid—and and see how quickly help will come. Free sample tea sent on request by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Your health is surely worth this simple test.

Handsome Christmas Window

Messrs. Gillespie & White, the George street grocers, have one of the handsomest Xmas displays ever shown in the city. Their southern window shows raisins, currants, dried fruit, etc., in full category. Their northern window displays a miniature cottage, electrically lighted, surrounded by candies and confectionery of all kinds, the "toute ensemble," as our friends from Quebec would put it, being well worth the contemplation and subsequent admiration of the general public. White & Gillespie have an artistic display that yesterday attracted general attention.

Volcanic Ashes Falls at Nome

Nome, Alaska, Dec. 13.—Nome, and probably the entire Seward Peninsula, are shrouded in a haze and the ground for miles is covered several inches deep with a fine, gritty powder, which is believed to be volcanic ash. The storm began several days ago, the dust blowing in from the ocean, but at first little attention was paid to the freak of nature, as it was expected that it would soon cease. Instead, however, the fall continued and after a day became so dense as to seriously interfere with outdoor pursuits. Further, the air is so full of ashes that breathing is difficult, and the fine powder has sifted into houses and business places to such an extent that it is thick on the floors and on everything in the way of goods and household furniture. It is believed that some of the numerous volcanic islands between this coast and Siberia have been in eruption and that the ashy downpour is the result.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Local Hotelman's Wife Has Trouble

A few days ago a local hotelman had three guests whose registration kept him guessing. It seems that during the afternoon of the day in question a well dressed gentleman, accompanied by a well dressed lady, both bearing every indication of wealth and respectability, called at the hotel and asked for a room for themselves and baby. The handily disposed host naturally gave them a room. The man and his wife went out, apparently to see the sights of the city. As the hours sped by the baby, left alone in a bed slept until that period of its existence when the pangs of hunger naturally awoke and got it busy. The poor little kid started to get busy with the proverbial "La-la-la, ma-ma-ma," of babyhood's heart rent though inarticulate cry for nourishment. The hotelman's wife, learning of the case cried, and was through inborn kindness of heart, fairly crazy to know what to do, had milk, milk and water, water and milk, and everything she could think of heated up for the apparently deserted kid. To spoil the tragic terminus of this true tale it might be stated that both father and mother arrived about three hours after they should have come and took the baby away. Still the hotelman's wife gave them her opinion as to their temporary neglect.

They were inexperienced in the management of babies, but will learn with the next, if not this, that one can't go shopping on the city and forget a forlorn little 24x3 baby.

Spurned by Evangelist Woman Kills Herself

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Despondency over the failure of an evangelist preacher to reciprocate an attachment which she had formed for him was given at the inquest yesterday as the cause of the suicide of Mrs. Annie Faverty, thirty-two years old, who shot herself through the head at her home in Clearing, Ill. Charles B. Faverty, special agent for the Union Transfer Company, the husband, testified that his wife had been suffering from a slight mental derangement brought on by illness, and fancied herself in love with the evangelist, whose name was not mentioned, and who left Clearing several months ago. After mailing several letters, which were sent back to her unopened, the woman shot herself. On a heap of clothing beside the body was found the woman's marriage certificate.

Thirty Years

A Slave to Coffee

Many persons do not realize that coffee drinking may become a powerful, enslaving habit.

They are not all aware that coffee contains a drug—caffein—which ought never to be taken into the system except for certain diseases and then only when prescribed by the doctor.

The coffee habit grows on most users and is more harmful to some than others. But a drug that acts upon the heart and nerves in the way caffeine does, is not without greater or less harm to all who drink coffee.

"For thirty years," writes a Washington housewife, "I have been a steady coffee drinker. I wanted it at every meal.

"But I would have sick headache most of the day, and throw up my food. I really suffered awfully from coffee for I thought I never could stop it.

"Then I heard how good Postum was for such cases, and began to use it. At first I did not care for Postum, I left it sleepy and had headache. I soon found that this was because of [illegible] coffee had on me, for in about three days after I quit coffee and began to use Postum the headache left me, had no more nervousness and palpitation. In about a week I felt like a new woman.

"I have used Postum three years and when it is made according to directions (boiled 15 minutes) — it is as pleasant as coffee and does't hurt anyone. I ought to know for I was as bad off as anyone is likely to get from coffee drinking. Now I am well.

"There's a Reason."

The Chairman then asked the secretary to read the REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS.

The Directors have pleasure in submitting to the Shareholders the Thirty-third Annual Report, showing the result of the Bank's business for the year ended 30th November, 1907, together with the Balance Sheet of the Bank on that date.

	351,965 56
Balance carried forward at credit of Profit and Loss Account	$327,832 48

Your Directors desire to express their deep regret at the loss sustained by the Bank since the last annual general meeting of the shareholders, through the death of Mr. John Mather, who had been a member of the Board since 1880. The vacancy thus created on the Directorate was filled by the unanimous election of Mr. E. C. Whitney to the position.

Branches of the Bank have been opened during the year at Cobalt, Ont., and on Bridge Street, in Hull, and sub-offices at Moose Creek, Ont., St. Andrews, Que., and in the southern part of the city of Peterborough.

The buildings alluded to in the last report as being in the course of erection have been almost entirely completed. Your Directors found it necessary during the year to acquire premises for the occupation of the branch opened at Cobalt, and it was also considered desirable to acquire a site on the corner of Gladstone Ave. and Bank Street in this City, where a building is now being erected.

The Directors have decided to submit for the approval of the Shareholders a By-Law authorizing an increase in the Capital by $2,000,000, to be availed of, as usual in such amounts and at such times as the Directors may determine, the intention being to allot the new shares from time to time, as required, but no allotment is contemplated for the near future.

The usual inspections of the offices of the Bank have been made during the year. The officers of the Bank continue to perform their respective duties to the satisfaction of the Directors.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE HAY,
President.

SEVEN-MASTED SCHOONER LOST

"THOMAS LAWSON" WRECKED OFF ENGLISH COAST

LIFE SAVERS HAVE VAIN BATTLE

Battered to Pieces by Heavy Seas in Dead of Night

Gunboat Sinks Eight Drown

Big Barge Edmund Phinney Runs Ashore Off New Jersey

Hughtown, Scilly Islands, Dec 14—The American seven-masted schooner, Thomas W. Lawson, was wrecked in Broad Sound, Scilly Islands, during a fierce gale last night, and so far as known all her crew excepting two men were lost.

The schooner turned turtle during the night and is now floating bottom up. Three dead bodies have been found off Annet Island, an uninhabited isle off the Scilly group. The sole survivor, who has been landed at St. Agnes by the St. Agnes lifeboat is only partly conscious at this writing.

Signals of distress were heard at the Bishop Rock lighthouse at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Two life-boats at once put out and found the Thomas W. Lawson anchored in a dangerous position just north of Gunner's Rock. Great seas were running and the vessel, although they stood by the Lawson for several hours, were unable to render assistance on this account.

At the request of the captain of the Lawson, the St. Mary's lifeboat, the masts of which had been broken off in attempting to rescue the crew of the schooner, put back with the purpose of telegraphing for a tug to come to the assistance of the Lawson. The St. Agnes lifeboat was left standing by. A little later, however, this life-boat had to leave, as one of its crew was believed to be dying of exposure, while the others were almost completely exhausted.

LIFEBOAT BOTTOM UP.

About 2.30 p.m. today the lookouts at the St. Agnes and Bishop Rock lighthouses and the coastguards missed the lights of the Lawson at the same time, and when a lifeboat returned to the scene oil floating on the waves indicated a disaster. A few minutes later the lifeboat crew found the Lawson out on up.

Searching in the vicinity the St. Agnes lifeboat picked up one of the survivors, a man named Green, and found three bodies off Annet Island.

The survivor and the dead were brough back to St. Agnes later.

The gale is still blowing fiercely and the seas are running mountain high. A doctor from St. Mary's has gone out in a lifeboat to render assistance to other possible survivors. Among the drowned is W. C. Hicks, a Scilly pilot, who managed to scramble on board the Lawson during one of the attempts of the St. Agnes lifeboat to help the ill-fated ship.

The search up to noon failed to discover any further survivors. The number of drowned is said to be 18. Allen was very seriously injured, and may not recover.

BAD STORMY VOYAGE.

From what has been learned from the semi-conscious man it seems that the Lawson encountered prolonged bad weather and lost all her boats on the trip out from Philadelphia. She sighted the Scilly Islands yesterday afternoon, and finding herself in a dangerous position, dropped both anchors in the hope that the weather would moderate.

The captain thought it wise to send back one of the lifeboats that came out to secure the assistance of a steam tug. The St. Agnes lifeboat continued to stand by the straining schooner until the exhausted condition of its crew made it absolutely necessary to seek the shelter of a harbor.

At midnight the wind rose to hurricane force, and the vessel, battered by the waves, finally turned over.

Allen says that he last saw the captain and mate of the Lawson and the pilot lashed to the rigging.

GUNBOAT SINKS; EIGHT DROWN.

London, Dec. 14.—The fierce gales which have raged on the coasts of the United Kingdom for the past few days show little signs of abating, and the heavy rains have flooded almost all the interior lowlands. Communications generally is much hampered. The harbors and bays are crowded with vessels that have run in for shelter. There have been many small wrecks, but, outside the loss of the American schooner Thomas W. Lawson, the fatalities has far reported are not numerous. The most serious wreck happened near Shoreness this morning. The cutter gunboat speedwell was struck by a heavy sea and went down. There were 13 men on board at the time and only five of them were rescued.

The entire Thames valley is a huge lake. The river is out of its banks and rising rapidly.

BIG BARGE OFF COAST.

New York, Dec. 14. — The barque Edmund Phinney was driven ashore on the east side of Sandy Hook in a heavy snowstorm at ten a.m., today. The Sandy Hook lifesaving crew went to the assistance of her crew. The Phinney was bound from Jacksonville for Perth Amboy.

The lifesavers made several unsuccessful attempts to shoot the lifeline to the barque, but owing to the gale the gun would not throw the line so far as the wrecked vessel. Two tugs tried to reach the barque, but failed, and the lifesavers then tried to reach the vessel in their power lifeboat.

A terrific sea is running and the snowstorm is blinding.

The crew of the Phinney, which appeared to be composed of about a dozen men took refuge in the rigging and watched anxiously the work of the lifesavers. The Phinney was 656 tons net and was built in Deering Me. She was loaded with lumber and railroad ties. Both vessel and cargo are insured.

The hopelessness of the attempt to save the men by shooting a line aboard compelled the lifesavers to resort to the new power lifeboat equipped with a 30-horsepower gasoline engine, by which it is possible to drive the boat against the heavy wind and sea.

Police

A serious charge was on the tapis at the police court, when Clinton Richtmeyer was charged with seducing a young girl living on Concession street. The alleged offence is said to have been committed last September. It seems that the prisoner had offered to marry the girl, but a clergyman he consulted, refused to tie the knot on age reasons. Now Richtmeyer is averse to the matrimonial end of the affair. He was remanded until Friday. Chief Stozel not being ready to proceed with the case.

No More Sunday Funerals in Peterboro

The Little Lake Cemetery Board at their last meeting, which was attended by President Webb and secretary Keith of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, discussed the matter of Sunday funerals. It was decided to enforce strictly bylaw No. 31 of the cemetery bylaws.

Bylaw No. 31 reads, "The grounds shall be closed against Sunday interment, except in cases of extreme necessity, such as where there is danger of contagion or because of the condition of the body, and then only upon a certificate from the attending physician or some other responsible party, that there is such danger or that it is absolutely necessary that the interment should take place and that the cause of such necessity shall be clearly stated in the certificate.

America's 27 Hour Pedestrian Challenges Dave Hartley

Dave Hartley, the local pedestrian, has received the following letter which speaks for itself;

Buffalo, Dec. 14, 1907.

Mr. David Hartley,

Dear Friend.—You must excuse me in taking the liberty in writing, but this is the only way that I could reach you. I challenged you through the Toronto papers when you had your recent in that city. Now I am no way looking for a little fame, as I am 40 years old myself, my style has gone so you please, but I should get as soon walk. I would like to come to your city and walk if you think it would pay us, and there is a good chance for a good race in Buffalo. I should like to hear from you if not to walk, as friends.

I remain, yours

JAMES A. GRAHAM,

Champion of America,

257 11th street, Buffalo, N.Y.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—Buffalo has another athletic who is bidding for fame. His name is James A. Graham and he doesn't seem to care particularly whether he engages in a running or walking match. And what more Graham will run Tom Longboat or walk against Edward Payson Weston.

What do you think of that;

This morning's Rochester Herald printed the following special despatch relative to Graham;

Lockport, Dec 13.—James A. Graham of Buffalo, a pedestrian, formerly of Lockport, issues a challenge in which he offers to meet Echo James Reynolds or David Hartley, from 25 miles to six days, for fun or money, at any place in Canada Buffalo or Lockport. Graham, who formerly lived in South Transit St. this city, styles himself the champion 27-hour heel and toe walker of America." He is managed by Fred Rooster of Buffalo, who writes as follows;

"For some time past most of the American pedestrians, and especially in Canada, have been making boasts of their walking and running powers and some of them have gone so far as to say that there was no other man to meet. This is not so and I have been giving them all a chance. I have James A. Graham, the former Lockport champion in charge, and now I find most of the pedestrians claim to be amateurs. I have matched Tom Longboat, the Indian, and others and I find that Graham is their master if given a chance.

"Graham ran three miles in one minute and thirty seconds faster than the Indian Longboat ever did and I stand ready to match him with any man in the world, if any have the nerve to race him. I have signed Graham in a number of roller rinks in two mile races against roller skaters and also have a number of long races by the first of January.

"Mr Graham wants to run in his own city of the locks, Lockport, before spring. I am trying to arrange a twelve-hour race in Toronto for the championship of Canada. Graham has backing up to $1,000 if any of the boys that wear the pretty red and blue sweaters will come out."

Good Coal Stock Is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines just north of Lethbridge with several surrounding sections making it one of the largest and most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 — 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 40 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 320 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Canadian Northwest extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 10,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 3,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $150.00 in 1,000 shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal. They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

We are offering these shares in blocks of 100 to 10,000 at 25c per share. For further information address

Great Female Land Holder

Kingsville, Tex., Dec. 14—Mrs. R. M. King, whose magnificent ranch home is situated two miles east of here, has added another tract of land, embracing 190,000 acres to her holdings. The purchase of this land a few days ago from Captain John Todd and associates makes Mrs. King the largest woman landowner in the United States, and probably the largest in the world. Her landed possessions now aggregate 1,470,000 acres. The next largest woman landowner is Mrs. C. Adair, whose ranch, situated in the Panhandle of Texas, aggregates 1,300,000 acres. Until Mrs. King made her purchase of an additional 190,000 acres a few days ago, Mrs. Adair held the record of owning more land than any other woman in this country.

Mrs. King's ranch embraced 1,080,000 acres until two years ago, when she purchased an additional tract of 250,000 acres. Reports have been current from time to time that now that this region is opened up for settlement by the building of a railroad through here to Brownsville, Mrs. King would divide her great ranch into farms and sell the land at the big advance in prices resulting from the building of the railroad. Instead of selling her land she is constantly adding to the enormous acreage. The price paid for the 190,000 acres which she purchased from Mr. Todd and associates was approximately $1,000,000. Most of Mrs. King's land is valued at $15 to $20 per acre, and her total wealth of cattle, land and other property is estimated at $30,000,000.

A PALACE OF BEAUTY.

The King ranch is one of the most beautiful spots in Southwest Texas. The great pastures are dotted with flowing artesian wells, which afford an ample supply of fresh water for the thousands of head of cattle and other live stock. Farming is also done on an extensive scale upon the ranch, the water for irrigation being obtained from artesian wells. Only the best breeds of cattle and horses are raised. The active management of this vast property is in the hands of R. J. Kleberg, a son-in-law of Mrs. King. In all matters of importance, however, Mrs. King is consulted, and she keeps in close touch with her business interests at all times. The ranch home is a large two-storey building, situated in a perfect oasis of semi-tropical verdure. The residence contains many guest chambers, which are always ready for the accommodation of visitors to the ranch.

Mrs. King also has a beautiful residence in the town of Corpus Christi, a pretty town on the gulf coast, 30 miles from here. She divides her time between these two delightful homes. Mrs. King has never had any desire to travel. A few trips to San Antonio, Brownsville and other towns of this part of the state constitute the world that she has seen, but she is a great lover of books, and her reading has taken a wide range. Captain Richard King, her husband, who laid the foundation for her present great fortune, died many years ago. He had accumulated land to the amount of several hundred thousand acres at the time he died. Through careful and judicious management Mrs. King has more than doubled the fortune that was left her by her husband. She experienced trying times and severe hardships during the early days, when this part of the frontier was the rendezvous of bands of Mexican thieves and cut-throats.

ONE OF DIFFERENT TYPE.

Mrs. Adair, the other Texas woman who is running Mrs. King a close second in the amount of landed holdings, is of an opposite type from Mrs. King in many things. Mrs. Adair is a great traveler. She has an elegant home in London, England, where she spends a part of each year. She is a royal entertainer, and usually when she returns each year from Europe she brings back with her one or more members of the nobility and entertains them most sumptuously upon her ranch. She indulges in wolf-chasing and other exciting outdoor sports, and her guests never suffer from ennui during their stay.

Most of the ranches in the territory where Mrs. Adair's big ranch is located have been cut up into farms during the last few years. The "march with the hoe" has made a successful conquest of that whole region with the exception of the ranch belonging to Mrs. Adair. She could dispose of the vast property at an enormous advance in price over what the land originally cost, but she still holds the big tract. Music. In this respect she and Mrs. King are alike.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson will be Made General Manager of the I.C.R.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—A special from St. John, N.B., says; The latest political rumor excites much interest in this city. It is to the effect that Hon. H. R. Emmerson will be made general manager of the Intercolonial, to succeed D. Pottinger; that Premier Robinson will run for the vacant seat in Westmoreland, and Hon. B. A. McKeown will be made premier of New Brunswick. Those on the inside decline to talk on the question.

The provincial government convention for St. John County has renominated Messrs. McKeown and Lowell. This does not please many members of the party in St. John City, as they wanted Mr. McKeown to run for the city and help them out in their difficult task of getting strong candidates, for George Robertson has accepted office and D. J. Purdy declined to run again.

Purses, Gauntlets and Cuff Links

Yesterday the Knights of Columbus gathered in their club rooms to do honor to Mr. Will Crowley, who is a member of that organization, and leaves today for Edmonton. "Bill" is beginning to think this life one of surprises, judging by the way his many friends are eager to do honor to him. Yesterday as he entered the rooms of the above society, they sprang another on him, and he was made the recipient of an address and pair of gauntlets. Mr. Crowley replied, thanking the members for their kindness shown him.

PURSE OF GOLD.

On Friday night some 40 of Mr. W. F. Crowley's friends met at Hooper's grill room, and tendered that gentleman a banquet, previous to his departure for Edmonton. He was given a purse of $100 in gold, and a fine pair of gold cuff links. Great regret was expressed at losing him, and he was accorded their heartiest wishes for a successful career in the west.

Among those who spoke were Messrs E. S Clarry, R. M. Glover, C. G. Graham, Jas. D. Clarke, Harry Moffatt, T. W. McDonough and H. R. H. Kenner. Mr. Crowley responded in suitable terms expressing regret at the severance of many friendly ties.

PURSE OF $80.

A pleasing function was in evidence at the Canadian General Electric Company's works, when "Bill" Crowley was presented with a complimentary address and purse of $80. A large crowd assembled at the gatehouse for the occasion. Mr. Crowley replied in suitable terms. He referred feelingly to his connection with the C.G.E.

Mr. W. A. Brundrette read the address, and Mr. Chas McIntyre made the presentation.

The address is as follows,

Mr. William F. Crowley.—

After sixteen years' comradeship, it is not easy to pick up and break away from the many friendships that "good fellows" make in long period. However, you have decided to join the Westward Ho! call, and establish yourself in that great and glorious west that has been given us to open up and build up for the glory of one united Canada.

We assure you that though you have made this decision, fully believing that you are bettering yourself, we regret that you are leaving us, as, though the old saying is, "there are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught," we or you cannot well afford to break lasting friendships. You have the proud distinction of departing from among us without leaving a single enemy behind you.

We have only one kick to make—you are perpetuating a grave error which you have always made—that is, you have become such a confirmed old bach, that you have joined the Girl-less Telephone Company, and are going to a practically girlless country. We draw your attention to this before you actually leave Peterborough because there are some mighty nice girls at home.

SATURDAY'S STORM

WINTER'S FIRST BLIZZARD

HAMPERS TRAFFIC

Driving Snow Storm from Early Morning Until Late in the Night--Came from the Mississippi

It was veritable Kris Kringle weather, Saturday with driving snow from early morning till darkness set in, with the flakes still whirling down on Sunday as though the supply were inexhaustible.

But, while it brought with it a not unwelcome touch of holiday season atmosphere, with accompaniments of jingling sleigh bells, it was distinctly uncomfortable to be out of doors. Thrown at times in intermittent and violent gusts, with the result that eyes were blinded while the skin tingled.

There were few, who sallied out into the streets more than was strictly necessary, and the man who was acquired the habit of saving his nickels was glad to board the first car that came along that would convey him to and from work.

The street railway was bothered by the storm, but it was claimed by officials that there was no actual blockade on any of the lines, although the running time suffered somewhat. Manager Larmonth started out on Saturday morning by placing the sweepers in commission, and as the blizzard showed no sign of abating, it had its work cut out for it, and was kept busy.

The officials kept their lines clear although trains were somewhat hampered and were running behind time.

It was explained at the Toronto Observatory that the storm, which was general throughout Ontario, was commonly known as the Mississippi Valley. There were heavy gales over the great lakes on Saturday.

The Sweatshops in England Present Some Sad Phases

Women and Children Work for Mere Pittance in Factories and in Their Own Homes

London, Dec. 13.—Mr. Franks, a special commissioner representing the department of labor in Washington, is at the present time in England interviewing labor leaders and members of the Anti-Sweaters' League with regard to the conditions of unskilled labor in this country, with a view, it is understood, of early legislation in respect of the sweating laws. He has stated that under the provisions of existing laws the government officers have been able to wipe out the worst places where clothing was manufactured and to cause a vast improvement in nearly every sweating shop in the City of New York. Notwithstanding this improvement, however, there are, he says, places in the United States where the sweating is worse than in England, largely owing to the influx of foreign and Irish labor.

Commissioner Franks has obtained a copy of Sir Charles Dilke's bill, which provides that any trade union or trades council may ask for the appointment of a wages board in its district for the trade it represents. The measure also proposes that an application can be made by any six persons who are either employers of labor or employed in the trade in the district. The labor board would have the power of determining the minimum rates of wages, calculated either by time or by piece work.

Some of the information which the commissioner has learned in from a private, yet official, source. It is to the effect that the worst instances of sweating in this country are in industries where work is done in private dwellings. Taking men first, the average wage for the unskilled laborer in this country is from 17s 6d to 21 (5) per week, so that even with regular work such a man cannot keep himself and family above the poverty line. Very few unskilled laborers get regular work, and the majority have far too large a share of what the working man with uncommon irony calls playing.

It has been truly said that this wage means an existence over which worry and terror ever brood. The work itself is often heavy and toilsome, and, carried on under unhealthy conditions, the worker is underfed and in time suffers from chronic lassitude and debility.

The lot of the wife is worse. The task of making the money go a long way is an extremely difficult one. She has to fill the stomachs of the little ones or send them half fed to school, and if illness comes along, the heavy burden falls upon her as a rule. The pathetic drudgery of her life destroys all gentle, womanly qualities. An unskilled woman's average wage is about $2.50 a week. Wherever women replace men the former always receive a much lower wage and one that is not proportionate to the skill or intelligence required by the work.

TERRORS OF THE SYSTEM.

The system of the sweated industries is so disgracefully bad that it is difficult to believe that there are worse instances in America. For instance, in Birmingham, the chief of unskilled home trades is carding hooks and eyes. The representative of the Washington labor department will have learned from George Shann, one of the leaders of the anti-sweating movement here, that a machine has been invented to do this work. Yet the cheapness of the machine has hindered the introduction of the mechanical rival. The work consists of stitching the eyes on a card, linking the hooks into them on the card. The rate of pay varies, a higher price being paid for the smaller and finer hooks, which are more trying to the eyes and fingers. A pack consists of a gross of completed cards with two dozen hooks and eyes on each, which means that 384 hooks and the same number of eyes are linked together and stitched on to the card for the munificent wage of one penny.

O.R.F.U. Has Deficit No Cup for Peterboro

Toronto, Dec. 14.—The 26th annual meeting of the Ontario Rugby Football Union was held this afternoon at the King Edward Hotel, with President James S. Merrick in the chair. Owing to the storm the meeting was slimly attended. W. J. Slee, Percy H. Scott, H. M. Robinson, K. W. Pyke, George Calvin and Secretary J. B. Hay were the delegates present.

No financial statement was presented, but a deficit was reported, few of the clubs having paid their fees and none of the senior clubs having paid the customary fee for matches. Secretary J. B. Hay read the following report for the executive committee;

Gentlemen.—The season, as you know, has not been a very prosperous one for the O.R.F.U.

The season has not been quite so prosperous as we might have wished, the introduction of the new rules and the formation of the new Inter-Provincial Union having drawn a number of teams away from your body, but, despite this, we have had a fairly successful year.

The amendment to reduce the drop kick from 4 to 3 points was adopted.

Where the semi-final or final games are played, the visiting club or clubs will henceforth be allowed 6c per mile for 16 players before the gate is divided.

The winners last season were; Peterborough seniors, Tammany Tigers intermediate, and Parkdale Canoe Club junior. The cup will be awarded the intermediate and junior champions, but on motion of Mr. Merrick the senior cup will remain in the possession of the union, owing to Peterborough having played against Montreal for the Canadian championship.

WAVE CARVING.

Queer Pranks Played by the Sea on the Yuha Plain.

In the southeastern portion of California is a great desert plain known as the Yuha plain, which lies below the level of the sea. It is a portion of the Colorado desert, in which is a depression below sea level having an area of 3,900 square miles. Some portions of this great sink are 265 feet below the level of the sea. The Yuha plain is less than fifty feet below.

One portion of this plain several miles in extent is covered with remarkable stones—remarkable in that they have been shaped into many curious forms, and that independent of the hand of man. The waves of an ancient sea which covered the region in the prehistoric ages fashioned the stones, producing many resemblances to objects manufactured in workshops today or found in nature. There are stone balls varying in size from a marble to a cannon ball, many of them as round and smooth as those cast for the great guns of a man-of-war.

There are stone dinner plates as thin as the porcelain or china found on the tables of our dining room and nearly as perfect in shape. Sometimes these are found in piles two or three feet high, as though arranged by the hand of man. There are stone flowers, stone cabbages, stone dumbbells, stone canes, stone quoits, stone boomerangs, and even resemblances to birds and animals are discovered.

The peculiar freak of the waves in taking up the art of carving in this part of the plain is accounted for by the conformation of the desert at this point. When the waters of the sea occupied this region they were a part of the gulf of California, the nearest point of which is now ninety miles distant. The tides came in to this ancient sea through the gulf from the south. They rolled up against what is now known as Superstition mountain. The waters swept back against a low range of hills on the opposite side of the Yuha plain and, recoiling, were again thrown back toward the Superstition mountain, finally passing out at about the point whence they entered this arm of the gulf. This kept the waters at that particular point always in a swirl. This circular motion wore the rocks round or nearly so, laminated some of them, carving the plates and thin pieces, kept small rocks and bowlders revolving, turning out the balls and dumbbells and in like manner shaping up other freaks by their peculiar actions.—St. Nicholas.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

HIS MAGIC BOTTLES.

Tricks of London's Professional Wine Doctor.

HE IS AN EXPERT JUGGLER.

This Master Mixer, With His Chemicals, Spirits and Water, Will Turn Out Cheaply and With Ease Any Desired Brand, New or Old.

Some people call him a wine forger and treat him accordingly. But I prefer to regard him as an entertaining juggler who does surprising feats with a magic bottle.

His apparatus, arranged on a narrow shelf, consists of a dozen or so of small glass stoppered bottles of various colored liquids, a big jar of caramel and another of allent spirit. There are other things, such as an aerated water plant, but it is openly displayed downstairs. For the aeration of table waters is the wine doctor's ostensible calling.

"Fact is there's too much wine made already," he says—"real wine, I mean. It's not wanted. It keeps down the price. Besides, it's wasting good land to plant it with grapes just to keep up the old myth that they're necessary for wine making."

He draws my attention to his row of bottles with a comprehensive wave of the hand.

"See those? Wine in embryo, tons of it! Give me good water"—he indicates an innocent looking tap in the corner—"and I'll turn you out a bottle of anything you like to name—while you wait."

That is what I have come for. I ought perhaps to explain that I originally met the doctor in a distant colony, where men talk more openly than they do here, and—well, he knows that what I may set down in print about him will convey no clew to his identity.

"Mind you," he goes on, "I don't object to real wine in moderation. My own best qualities have a base of sound sherry or burgundy. Take claret, for instance. Why send to Bordeaux when with a gill of Australian burgundy or Spanish rioja, water—watch while I do it—a few drops of French vinegar and 25 per cent of potato spirit that's colorless and odorless and only costs a few pence per gallon I can give you chemically the same thing with more alcoholic strength?"

Presto! It is done. He pours some of the result into a wineglass and hands it to me. It has the look, smell and taste of the wine for which I pay 1s. and 6d. a bottle.

"Total cost a fraction over threepence, bottle and label included," he exults; "hocks and sauternes the same. A little real sherry for the base, sufficient acidity—say citric—an astringent like tannic acid to dry them, spirit and water in proportion to dry them, and there you are! Leave out the tannic and use white sugar sirup instead and you have chablis."

A dispensing druggist in a hurry could not make up a prescription more quickly than he manufactures wine before my eyes. I taste a "nierstein-er."

"Light elegant dinner wine with good body, from the Hoggen-Hochheimer district," he remarks in the tone of one quoting from a wine circular. "Now try the graves. Dry and flavory, eh? The chablis soft and round, isn't it? You quite recognize the vintages you've had to pay respectable prices for?"

Is it so, or has he the power of suggestion, like a prestidigitator, who can make you believe that you hear your eighteen carat gold hunter ticking inside a boiled egg?

"These, of course, are new wines," he explains. "The addition of a teaspoonful of sterilised glycerin ages them at once. You might remember that when you've got a new whisky. It's worth knowing."

I know some whiskies that would need a pint of glycerin to the bottle at least to make them palatable, and I begin for the first time to suspect their source!

"A whisky or brandy properly made ought not to want glycerin, though," he observes, as if he had read my thoughts. "Here's a brandy that I made yesterday from silent spirit and oenanthic ether, colored and sweetened with caramel, that hardly differs from well matured cognac. That's because it's been heated to 140 degrees F."

My palate may be getting corrupted, I do not know, but in spite of natural suspicions the brandy seems above reproach. So does the champagne, which is his next dexterous concoction. As far as I can see it consists merely of a mixture of chablis and hock, with which a little aerated water is required. He calls it extra dry. I admit that is what I should have thought it under the disguise of tinfoil and a label.

The doctor shrugs his shoulders. "Anybody can print labels and brand corks," he declares contemptuously. "Labels! The average man will drink anything and enjoy it so long as it's labeled with one of the few names he's acquainted with—beaune or rudesheimer, for instance. He imagines these are vintages, but they're only districts and don't mean more than the collective expressions beer or whisky. The thing is to adapt the liquor to the label. If you want an illustration of what I mean, here's one."

From the bottles on the shelf he takes benzoic acid, benzoic ether, acetic acid and ether, oenanthic ether and glycerin, a drop or two of each, and fills up the glass with the ever indispensable alcohol. I raise the colorless mixture to my lips, and, behold, it is maraschino!

"No troublesome or expensive processes for me," he protests. "There you have about a pennyworth of different essences that you'd pay shillings for in a restaurant. I add cochineal to it and it's kirschwasser, vanilla and it's whatever you like to call or label it. You're astonished.

"If you were to tell a wine merchant what I've told and shown you he'd pretend entertainment, and if you printed it some of them—the ones the cap fits—would write to the papers for the sake of advertisement and call you names."

"What about yourself, though?" I ask, with polite anxiety.

"Oh, I'm all right," he declares. "In the first place, I'm of a retiring nature. I'm doing a respectable trade in 'minerals' and only deal with reliable people. Besides, I take precautions—protect myself. You've got to with a government like ours. I buy an occasional cask of real stuff from a good wine district, with labels for bottling. Yes, it lasts me a good while—a few thousand bottles to the cask, in fact!" He allows himself a wise little smile.

"But that's not what I wanted to talk to you about. I've been thinking. You can see for yourself what a lot of money there is in my business—about 200 per cent profit roughly. Now, can't we deal? If you were to stand in with me—put in a bit so as to enable me to increase my turnover—your name needn't appear, you know—we might do big things. You see, my wines"—

It sounds tempting. I almost yield to it.

"Do you drink them yourself?" I ask cautiously.

"Not me!" disclaims the wine doctor.

That settles it. I believe he's a fraud after all. Anyhow I've never yet sent "conscience money" to the chancellor of the exchequer, and I never will.—Armiger Barclay in London Mail.

An Ideal Sitter.

A Washington artist while sketching in North Carolina was one day in search of a suitable background of dark pines for a picture he had planned. At last he found the precise situation he was seeking, and, best of all, there chanced to be a pretty detail in the figure of an old colored woman in the foreground.

The artist asked the old woman to remain seated until he had sketched her. She assented with the greatest good nature, but in a few minutes asked how long the artist would be.

"Oh, only about a quarter of an hour," he answered.

Three minutes or so later the old darky again inquired—this time with manifest anxiety—how long the operation of sketching would take.

"Not long," was the reassuring reply. "But why do you ask so anxiously?"

"Oh, nuthin', sah," the old woman hastened to respond, "only I's sittin' on an ant hill, sah."—Harper's Weekly.

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

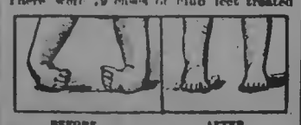
Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1093 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 251 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.31 each per day, or $62.22 for the 47½ days stay.

MASSAGE

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 79 cases of club feet treated last year. Out of the 79, about 50 were from the country.



BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

EYE CASES.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

there could be nobody outside the walls of a city. "But the experience of sixty years has changed my mind materially," said she, "for I have met quite a many refined and cultivated people in the country as in the city."

This was a new idea to Ella, and the next visitors, who came in after Mrs. Howell left, were obliged to wait while she made quite an elaborate toilet.

"Oh, Ella, how much better you are looking than you were an hour or two since!" exclaimed Mr. Hastings, who entered the chamber just as his wife was leaving it.

"There's company in the parlor," answered Ella, tripping lightly away, while her husband walked on into the dressing room, where he stepped first over a pair of slippers, then over a muslin wrapper, and next over a towel, which Ella in her haste had left upon the floor, her usual place for everything, when discarded.

This time the visitors proved to be Eugenia and Alice, with the first of whom the impulsive Ella was perfected delighted, she was so refined, so genteel, so richly dressed, and assumed withal such a patronizing air, that the short-sighted Ella felt rather over-awed, particularly when she spoke of "her uncle in India," with whom she was "such a favorite." During their stay servants were introduced as a topic of conversation, and on that subject Eugenia was quite as much at home as Mrs. Hastings, descanting at large upon the many annoyances one was compelled to endure, both from the "ignorance and impertinence of hired help." Once or twice, too, the words "my waiting-maid" escaped her lips, and when at last she took her leave she had the satisfaction of knowing that Mrs. Hastings was duly impressed with a sense of her importance.

"Such charming people I never expected to find in the country, and so beautifully dressed too," thought Ella, as from her window she watched them walking slowing down the long avenue. "That silk of Miss Eugenia's could not have cost less than two dollars a yard, and her hands, too, were as soft and white as mine. They must be wealthy—those Deanes; I wonder if they ever give any parties."

And then, as she remembered sundry gossamer fabrics which were dignified by the title of party dresses, and which with many tears she had folded away as something she should never need in the country, she exclaimed aloud, "Why can't I have a party here as well as at home? The house is a great deal larger than the long narrow thing in which mamma prides herself so much. And then it will be such fun to show off before the country people, who, of course, are not all as refined as the Deanes—that is not to be expected; but I'll speak to Howard about it immediately."

"Speak to me about what?" asked Mr. Hastings, who had entered the parlor in time to hear the last words of his wife.

Very briefly Ella stated to him her plan of giving a large party as soon as a sufficient number of the village people had called.

"You know you wish me to be sociable with them," she continued, as she saw the slightly comical expression of her husband's face; "and how can I do it better than by inviting them to my house?"

"I am perfectly willing for the party," answered Mr. Hastings, "but I do rather wonder what has so soon changed your mind."

"Oh, nothing much," returned Ella, "only the people don't seem half as vulgar as mamma said they would. I wish you could see Eugenia Deane. She's perfectly magnificent—wears a diamond ring, Valenciennes lace, and all that. Her mother is very wealthy, isn't she?"

"I have never supposed so—if you mean the widow Deane, who lives at the place called Locust Grove," answered Mr. Hastings; and Ella continued, "Yes, she is; I am sure from the way Eugenia talked. They keep servants, I know, for she spoke of a waiting-maid. Then, too, they have an old bachelor uncle in India, with a million or more, and these two young ladies will undoubtedly inherit it all at his death."

"Miss Deane must have been very communicative," said Mr. Hastings, who understood the world much better than his wife, and who readily guessed that Miss Eugenia had passed herself off for quite as much as she was.

"It was perfectly natural for her to tell me what she did," answered Ella, "and I like her so much! I mean to drive over there soon, and take her out riding."

Here the conversation was interrupted by the ringing of the door-bell, and it was not again resumed until the Monday morning following, when at the breakfast table Ella asked for the carriage to be sent round, as "she was going to call at Mrs. Deane's, and take the young ladies to ride."

"But it is washing day," suggested Mr. Hastings, wishing to tease his wife. "And nothing, I am told, mortifies a woman more than to be caught with her hair in papers and her arms in the suds. So, if you value your friend Eugenia's feelings you had better wait until to-morrow."

"Suds, Howard! What do you mean?" asked the indignant Ella. "Eugenia Deane's hands never saw a washtub! Why, they are almost as white as mine!" And the little lady glanced rather admiringly at the small snowy fingers, which handled so gracefully the heavy knife and fork of silver.

"You have my permission to go," said Mr. Hastings, "but I am inclined to think you'll have to wait a long time for your friends to make their appearance."

Mentally resolving not to tell him if she did, Ella ran up to her room, where, leaving her morning dress in the middle of the floor, and donning a handsome plaid silk, she descended again to the parlor and suggested to her husband the propriety of bringing the young ladies home with her to dinner, alleging as one reason that "there was no use of having a silver dining set and nice things unless there was somebody to see them."

"And am not I somebody?" asked Mr. Hastings, playfully winding his arm around the little creature, who answered, "Why, yes—but mamma never thought it worth her while always to have the best things and fix up when there was no one to dinner but us and father; and I don't think I need to be so particular as when I was Ella Grey and you were Mr. Hastings, for now I am your wife, and you are——"

Here she paused, while she stooped down to caress a huge Newfoundland dog, which came bounding in. Then, remembering she had not finished her sentence, she added, after a moment, "And you are only Howard!"

Silenced if not convinced, Mr. Hastings walked away, wondering if every husband, at the expiration of fifteen months, reached the enviable position of being "only Howard!" Half an hour later, and Ella Hastings, having left orders with Mrs. Leah for a "company dinner," was riding down the shaded avenue into the highway, where she bade the coachman drive in the direction of Locust Grove.

CHAPTER VII.

The plain though comfortable breakfast of dry toast, baked potatoes, and black tea was over. This morning it had been eaten from the kitchen table, for, as Mr. Hastings had surmised, it was washing day, and on such occasions, wishing to save work, Mrs. Deane would not suffer the dining room to be occupied. To this arrangement the proud Eugenia submitted the more readily, as she knew that at this hour they were not liable to calls; so she who had talked of her waiting-maid and wealthy uncle to Mrs. Hastings sat down to breakfast with her waiting-maid, eating her potatoes with a knife and cooling her tea in her saucer—two points which in the parlor she loudly denounced as positive marks of ill breeding, but which in the kitchen, where there was no one to see her, she found vastly convenient. Piles of soiled clothes were scattered over the floor, and from a tub standing near a volume of steam was rising, almost hiding from view the form of Dora Deane, whose round red arms were diving into the suds, while she to herself was softly repeating the lesson in history that day to be recited by her class, and which she had learned the Saturday night previous, well knowing that Monday's duties would keep her from school the entire day.

In the chamber above—her long, straight hair plaited up in braids, so as to give it the wavy appearance she had so much admired in Mrs. Hastings; her head enveloped in a black silk apron, and her hands incased in

AN EXTINCT ANIMAL.

The Saber Toothed Tiger Was a Formidable Creature.

The most remarkable of all the extinct feline animals are those known to naturalists as the saber toothed cats or tigers, a group comprising the greater part of all the fossil forms. They date back to the earliest times of which we know anything about the family in North America and reach down to the time of man himself. A large and powerful species described from the Indian Territory by Cope lived contemporaneously with the hairy mammoth, as evidenced by the commingling of their skeletons. There can be little or no question but that the hairy mammoth was contemporaneous with man in North America as well as in Europe. Its geological range is from the close of the eocene to the latter part of the pleistocene.

The chief peculiarity of the animal is the extraordinary elongated canine teeth. The tail is of unusual length and the legs are short. The animal measures about seven feet in length aside from the tail. The lower jaws have a downward projection in front, due to a flangelike widening of the jawbones, which doubtless served as a protection to the teeth, preventing their injury or loss. In some of the larger forms from South America this flange was not present while the canine teeth were even more elongated than is the case with this species, attaining a length of over six inches and protruding far below the jaws when closed.

Catarrh

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 643 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1.400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in PURE gold, and from 5 to 7½ per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months. DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Departure of "Bill" Crowley

In the departure of "Bill" Crowley, who leaves for Edmonton today, Peterborough suffers a great loss in sporting circles as well as losing a good citizen. Not in this city's athletic career has such a finished athlete been turned out. Bill chose to play the more strenuous games and played them with vigor, forging to the front in every sport he entered into. In hockey, football, lacrosse, and rugby he was an expert, putting forth every effort to play the game to win. He was a fearless, clean and gentlemanly player. He took no advantage of an opponent on home grounds that he would not take playing away from home and could always be relied upon to play his position and play it well.

Crowley is a big husky player, and uses his weight to advantage in a true sportsmanlike manner. He has often been dubbed "Dirty" Bill Crowley, by the opponents who, envious of his size and skill generally came to grief when they had the pleasure or displeasure to stack up against him. He is a "king" with the fellow members of the different sporting aggregations, and was ever ready to counsel the younger players in the fine points of the game. He is a "tricky" player but as long as he has taken part in any athletic contest, no one can point the finger of scorn at Crowley, and say that he ever indulged in any dirty play. He enters into the game too whole souled and could not take any undue advantage of an opponent if he so desired without being spotted.

Crowley has come through many notable battles, one perhaps that he will have reason to remember, was the lacrosse contest at Midland a few years ago, for the district championship, when a few back wood cannibals together with a few imported ringers attempted to annihilate the Peterborough team. Some members of the team had a mad scare and were undoubtedly looking for some means of escape from the field, but Crowley knew no fear, and sauntered up the field with the ball when he was attacked by a wild man and badly bitten—but Peterborough landed the championship, and the C.L.A. killed the wild man. Another notable occasion was the hockey match at Goderich, two years ago, when Peterborough landed the intermediate championship. Crowley has figured in more championships than perhaps any other individual in the history of Peterborough.

As a citizen he is worthy of emulation, when out with the "boys," he is one of the "boys" and always knows his place. "Bill Crowley" is every inch a "gentleman," and leaves Peterborough with the best wishes of every citizen for a prosperous future in the far West.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerving known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy of known COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. For a Public Library--So Decided the Committee of the Whole Council Last Night--S.O.E. Demonstration July First

The city fathers met in Committee of the Whole last night, when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams, Aldermen McIntyre, Duncan, Elliott, Morgan, Stevenson, Bradburn, Leary, Tovey, Wilson, Morrow and Phelan.

The question of making the best use of the Nicholls gift towards public library purposes was thoroughly gone into. By terms of the deed which gives to Peterborough the building on Simcoe street, formerly used by Richard Hall & Son for conversion into a public library, the city is at liberty either to use the building itself or sell it and apply the proceeds to purchase of a more suitable building, providing they name the new library, "The Nicholls Public Library." It has been suggested that a gift of say $30,000 might be secured from Mr. Carnegie, which in addition to the proceeds from the sale of the building given by the Nicholls estate would create an ample fund with which to erect a new building and afford a sufficient maintenance revenue.

The following members of the present Library Board were present, Messrs. W. H. Hall, Kaughan, Pringle, Corkery and Wm. English. These gentlemen, excepting Mr. English, offered that it would be advisable to build a new building entirely, to be converted into a free public library. They thought the city should apply to Mr. Carnegie for a donation of $30,000 toward a public library, to which could be added the proceeds from the sale of the old Richard Hall & Son's store on Simcoe street. The members of the board did not think it would be wise to use the present store.

Mr. Wm. English, however, was opposed to approaching Mr. Carnegie for a grant. He thought the institution should be purely a "Nicholls" one, and the city would not lose anything by disposing of the store on Simcoe street, and purchasing the old Bank of Montreal building, corner of Simcoe and Water streets, which he thought well adapted to library purposes. The library board have been notified to leave their present premises by March next, and the old Bank of Montreal structure is ready for immediate occupancy.

The mayor offered that without applying for a Carnegie grant it would be necessary to go to the people for a vote of $15,000 or $20,000 to be added to the proceeds from the sale of Richard Hall's old store for the erection of a new library building, to say nothing of perhaps $2000 a year for maintenance.

The Library Board did not think the people would vote so much money for this purpose.

It was generally conceded that should a grant be obtained from Mr. Andrew Carnegie, his name would have to appear on the building as well as that of Mrs. Nicholls. Of course the building could be named the "Nicholls-Carnegie Public Library," or the Peterborough Public Library, with a prominent tablet to each of the donors.

Ald. Tovey said he would like to see a public library but would not like the city to go to Mr. Carnegie for it.

Ald McIntyre did not approve of having the Bank of Montreal's old building, which would never give the appearance of anything but a one-horse library.

Ald. Wilson thought the old building on Simcoe street, could be converted into a very handsome public library.

Ald Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Morrow,—That this council ask Mr. Andrew Carnegie for a grant of $35,000 for public library purposes.—Carried.

FIXED ASSESSMENTS.

Mr. Jas. Kendry, president of the Auburn Woolen Mills Co., appeared before the committee in support of his company's request for a reasonable fixed assessment for a term of years.

They spend, Mr. Kendry urged, in wages $75,000 a year, and have never had even any other fire protection than that furnished by themselves at considerable expense. They have increased their plant and business very extensively of late years and are only seeking the same consideration as extended other industries Mr. Kendry added that he would be pleased to leave it to the council to fix a reasonable assessment.

The Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co.'s request for a fixed assessment was also taken up.

Ald. Leary moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That application be made to the legislature for fixed assessment for the Auburn Woolen Mills and the Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co.—Carried.

This means that merely notice will be given to the legislature that fixed assessment will be asked for these two industries early in the year.

Ald. Morgan moved that no action be taken regarding the several applications for fixed assessment till next year.

SNOW PLOWING.

Ald Phelan wanted action taken to enforce the turning out of snow plowing men promptly when needed. For instance on Saturday night the towns horses were standing in their stables when the business portion of the city was snowed under.

Ald. Bradburn offered that in the west end no snow plow had been at work at 8.30 Sunday morning.

Ald Duncan explained that Mr. Pakenham won't let the men go out; the more men we have at the fire hall, and the more wages they get, the less work they want to do. There seems to be some friction at the hall as to who should turn out for snow plowing.

Chard, the north end contractor, it appears has not signed his contract yet and will not be allowed to do so, not having a team of his own.

Harper, the west end contractor, did not know that he need turn out till after a snow storm is over; since put right on this matter he is attending to his duties faithfully.

As to the center portion of the city, Foreman Pakenham claims that his rules are to keep continually two men at the fire hall; on Saturday night he had not a third man to turn out for snow plowing.

Ald Wilson suggested that one of the "call" firemen turn out on such occasions for additional remuneration.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn.—That Ald. Duncan, as acting chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, be empowered to settle this matter.

Ald Leary moved in amendment,—That Street Commissioner Evans be authorized to order out Driver Matchett on all such stormy occasions.

Ald Stevenson thought the chairmen of the Board of Works and the Fire, Water and Light committee should be held responsible for snow plowing.

Ald. Phelan's motion carried.

FIRST JULY DEMONSTRATION.

A deputation from the Sons of England were present, and asked the council's influence in securing the presence of the governor-general and the lieut.-governor of the Province at a proposed First of July demonstration next year. Monetary support will be asked at a later date commensurate with the magnitude of the proposed event.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald Wilson.—That the request of this deputation be granted.—Carried.

ISOLATION TENT.

Ald Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That Ald. McIntyre is empowered to request permission from Mr. Richard Hall to erect the isolation tent in Jackson Park during the winter should occasion arise.—Carried

Directions for Home Made Blood Medicine

This Splendid Prescription Should be Known to All

A leading health journal, in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood," prints in a recent issue the following; Fluid Extract of Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well known local druggist who is familiar with this prescription states that it is harmless, being composed of simple ingredients which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

It cleans the blood of all impurities and nourishes the blood. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It gets vigor and energy into run-down, debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Kargon and Extract Dandelion works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

This prescription is better than the usual patent medicines, which are in the most part alcoholic concoctions. The ingredients cost but little and are easily mixed at home. Your man and woman here should make some up and try it if they feel their system requires a good blood medicine and tonic.

The Kargon to clean the kidneys and vitalize them so they can clear the blood. Sarsaparilla to make new rich blood and Dandelion to tone the stomach, clean the liver and make it active and relieve constipation is the way the prescription acts and be mildly and gently that one does not consider they are taking a medicine.

Assessment of the City Reduced by $300,000

The Court of Revision has reduced the assessment of the city by over $300,000. This is the largest reduction ever made by a court of revision in Peterborough, and will likely constitute a record that will stand for many years. The court completed its work on Saturday, after having been dealing with the assessment since Nov. 6th. Over forty meetings were held for the purpose of considering appeals, in addition to ten or twelve meetings held to give those knowing or thinking themselves over-assessed time to put in their claims, although really, ample opportunity was given and taken advantage of by others before.

In some cases the assessment has been reduced one-half, while there are a comparatively small number of appellants whose assessment has not been cut down.

There were 223 appeals against the assessment, the bulk of them from the southern part of the city and from the business section.

The Court of Revision consisted of Messrs. W. Langford, chairman; A. E. Dixon and B. Morrow.

In many cases the property under consideration was visited in order that a better grasp of the situation might be obtained.

Is This the Desperado who Robbed and Shot Porteous?

Bowmanville, Dec. 16.—A man giving his name as Jack Harris, about 25 years of age, came into town on Friday. He took a lady's chatelaine from John Hellyar's shoe store, and and visited several stores, and tried to get clothing, saying he was sent by Superintendent Mitchell, of the Dominion Organ and Piano Co. When arrested he had a revolver, with five chambers loaded. He may be the man who shot Farmer Porteous in Cavan township near Millbrook, a few days ago.

U.S. War Fleet Start for the Pacific---A History-Making Event

Old Point Comfort, Va., Dec. 16.—The backbone of the United States Navy, sixteen first-class battleships, under command of Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, sailed today for the Pacific Ocean, a 14,000-mile cruise, which has set all the world to talking. Parading in review before the President of the United States, and saluting as they went, the stately white vessels drew anchors from the rendezvous ground of Hampton Roads, steamed out of the famous old Virginia Capes, and were lost to view on the south-eastern horizon. At the ten knots speed they went headed for the eastern end of the West Indies. After threading their way among the reefs of those islands the fleet will bring up at Trinidad on Christmas Eve—the first stage of its journey at an end. The belted sides of each armor-clad were fairly strutted today with the guns of heavy stores and ammunition, while decks resounded with the footfalls of a thousand men in quarters. On a mission as pacific as the name of the waters, it will soon be plowing. The fleet was sent away prepared in every detail for any duty.

The vessels were 400 yards apart, and from the Connecticut to the Kentucky, which brought up in the rear, the line reached a distance of more than four miles.

Simple Life of a Princess

Paris, Dec. 16. — Princess Marie Bonaparte's wedding to Prince George of Greece is still the talk of Paris.

Princess Marie's simple manners make her popular, though some complain that, with great wealth, she is not charitable and never has been associated with any generous movement.

Marie has lived the life of one possessing moderate comparatively having no care for dress. She hardly ever went out. Her chief luxuries consisted of a well-furnished observatory mounted on the top of her house and a herbarium in the basement, where she frequently studied botany. She really was one of the most intellectual women in a country where women of genius are not rare.

Recently Prince Roland Bonaparte, her father, gave a dinner part, inviting several of the most eminent men of science, literature and art in Paris. Princess Marie got an invitation but beforehand, asked her father concerning each man, studied the matter and then, after the banquet, spoke to each guest, showing a knowledge of his work and ideas which astonished him.

The King of Greece, father of Princess Marie's chosen husband, was invited to this reception, but he excused himself from attending, as scrupulously must high personages be in avoiding even the appearance of favoring the cause of any of the pretenders to the throne of France. In this case the French Republic could hardly have taken umbrage.

It is whispered in society that Prince Roland himself may marry again, thus regularising a situation which has long been almost equivalent to a regular household. Great objection has been raised, however, to such an alliance with a royal house, for, while social irregularities are readily over-looked, a marriage which would regularise one would be regarded as a scandal.

Princess Marie's own position is peculiar. Although she has been duly married here to Prince George of Greece by civil rites, the people of Greece do not recognize civil marriage. In their eyes and under the laws the union will not be regular until there is a church ceremony at Athens.

Though highly educated, Princess Marie was brought up so strictly that no one was allowed to speak scandal or malicious gossip in her presence. When she was but eighteen and while at Nice she first heard the current gossip of drawing rooms. She went to a friend in consternation and said she had no idea there were such wicked people in the world. She never even went to the opera until recently.

Fashionable ladies in Paris say this education has resulted in Marie's being very good but having no taste in dress.

She learned singing from Valdelli and sings simple songs very nicely, but she never learned to dance and never wore a corset until quite recently, when she yielded to the insisting of her dressmakers. She never wore a collar about her neck or even a smart costume.

Good Coal Stock is Better Than a Bank

THE ROYAL COLLIERIES

10 Square Miles of Coal Lands

A Consolidation of the Barnes Mines with several surrounding sections most valuable coal lands holdings in Alberta.

Capital, $3,000,000.00 3,000,000 $1.00 Shares.

The amount of coal underlying this company's lands is variously estimated at from 60 to 70 millions of tons. They have the same coal measures and the same quality of high grade domestic and steam coal as the Galt and Diamond Mines. Taking the smaller amount as a basis for calculation, what you actually buy is 60 tons of coal for each share of stock you take. For an investment of one dollar you actually become the owner of 300 tons of coal or its equivalent in dividends.

Few people are aware of the golden harvest that is being reaped from the coal mines of Alberta and British Columbia and no one can even estimate the countless millions yet to be won. The Dunsmuir fortune is the most notable example, but there are others in the making.

From Wardner on the west and Medicine Hat on the east, south to the International boundary line, north to Banff and beyond the coal measures of the Crows Nest Pass extend. There is very little coal in the States of Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and at the present time three lines of railway are blocked trying to meet an ever increasing demand. 12,000 tons per day is being mined in this field at the present time, but the orders cannot be filled. In two years Royal Collieries will be mining 1,000 tons per day. 50c per ton is a modest profit to be anticipated, at which rate an investment of $300.00 in a thousand shares, of this stock, means a return to you and your heirs of $40,000.00. This may seem like a tale of the "Arabian Nights" but it is a fact. They have the coal They have the markets and the prime movers whose names are a synonym for honesty and square dealing give assurance of a conservative business management.

We are offering these shares in blocks of 100 to 10,000 at 35c per share. For further information address

He was removed to the hospital, and the operation was performed yesterday morning by Dr. McDonough, ear specialist from Toronto, assisted by Dr. Young. Dr. Carmichael administered the anaesthetic.

Dr Bradd is now getting along as well as could be expected.

Good Weather is Coming to Boost the Xmas Trade

The Weather Man promises that some frost is on the way, and will be here today to harden up the snow and make good sleighing. The snow falling now is liable to stop at any time, and come back again just as suddenly. The disturbance which was the initiative of the snowstorm of the past couple of days is now centered on the Nova Scotia coast. Rain has visited many places in Ontario, and it was raining in Halifax, N.S., yesterday morning in Peterborough and its neighborhood it is safe to expect a little more snow at intervals and a lower temperature. This is what the store keepers are looking for to boost the Christmas trade.

75 Miners Now Reported Entombed in Mine at Yolande

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 16.—Seventy-five men are reported entombed in a mine explosion at Yolande, north-eastern part of Tuskaloosa county.

The explosion took place at 10.25, and was below the second lead. Eight men crawled out of the mine. Crowds of women and men quickly gathered around the mine entrance, and were cheered by news that all the fans continued working. Rescue parties, it was announced, would go in at once. It was feared, however, that fifty to seventy-five men had lost their lives.

The Yolande mines are operated by the Yolande Coal and Coke Company, of which Dr. G. B. Crowe is president

Evil Comes to Men Who Cheat--Stanford White Leads the List

New York, Dec. 15.—Henry S. Wood, contractor and builder of No. 25 Broad street, says he is a good man to play fair with. In support of his assertion he submits a list of men who, he asserts, didn't play fair and later departed this life in anything but a peaceable manner. Some of them have committed suicide, others have been murdered and many have been burned to death, while in a few cases railroad trains have acted the part of Wood's avenger.

"I can't account for it," Mr. Wood said yesterday, "but it seems retribution overtakes anybody who displeases me or gives me the double-cross."

"Who are the most prominent men in your portable list?" he was asked.

"Charles T. Barney and Stanford White," was the reply. "I'm satisfied that if these men had dealt fairly with me their names would not be heading my list.

WHAT BARNEY DID.

"How did they displease you?" the reporter asked.

"Barney made it possible for me to lose $6,000 on a real estate deal. I sold a piece of property for him on West Thirty-second street between Fifth avenue and Broadway, and got stung for the mortgage tax. That was a year ago, and you remember Barney's finish. I'm suing the Knickerbocker Trust Company to recover the money.

"Stanford White owned a tumble-down house on Bleecker street. I built several store houses next to his property and he entered into a contract to build a party wall. He was to pay me $5,000. Part of the building fell while I was excavating and he sued me. To settle the matter I had to make him a present of $5,000. That was five or six years ago. You remember his finish."

"Is it true that you are in the pay of the coffin trust?" he was asked.

"Absolutely untrue. I know how that story got in circulation. Every time my birthday comes around the Social Order of Undertakers, Gravediggers and Bone Jugglers always sends me a birthday cake."

"How many candles were there in your last cake?"

"Seventy," said Henry. "It took me half an hour to blow them out. The undertakers show me many kindnesses.

Large Confirmation Class at St. John's

Sunday St. John's church was crowded to the doors at the morning service which began at 10.30, instead of at the usual hour, 11 o'clock. His Lordship Bishop Reeve, assistant bishop of Toronto, confirmed an unusually large number of candidates, including several boys from Lakefield, and some church members of maturer years. At the evening service in St. Luke's, his lordship again performed the rite with a large class of candidates.

Think the Desperado was in Peterboro

Mr Alex. Reid the mail carrier, and others employed about the C.P.R. depot, think that the would-be assassin and thief, who shot Mr. Chas. Porteous of Cavan, on Thursday night, got off a freight train that came in from the west, shortly before the midnight express. Mr. Reid saw a man answering the description of the thug. He wore the red sweater and the long black overcoat as stated in the detailed description. He was clean shaven and his whole appearance was that of a desperado. Mr Reid said that the suspicious looking character on arriving at the station made his way up the spur line. Mr. Reid endeavored to secure a police officer, but they were all out on duty, and the rubber made good his escape. It is thought that he deserted on some freight train going east.

Roads Blocked by Recent Snow Fall

Mr. Tuffield Delaire, the well-known lumber foreman returned to the city yesterday, after some months spent at Stony Creek in the interests of the Cavendish Lumber Co. His many friends in the city gave him a warm welcome. Mr. Delaire, in conversation with a Times representative, when asked how the recent snow storm affected the back country, with the proverbial shrug of the genuine Frenchman replied, "Mon Dieu, Mons ——— wat you tink! Don't you know that the snow storm of Saturday night and Sunday extended past the city limits. Why I and seven friends and employes of mine started Saturday night from where I fix the dam at Stony Creek near Katchooka Lake, just past Gull Lake to drive to the city. On the way to Buckhorn things went pretty rough. We stayed over night at Tom Fastweed's at Buckhorn, and left in the morning for the city. As we get near de city the snow gets thicker. We have to get out every now and then and pulling down fences, drive through the fields to escape the drift-covered roads. When we get to Lakefield we stop at Tom Davey's and then make for the city. Of course the road had been somewhat beaten down between Lakefield and the city but between Buckhorn to Lakefield the roads were not to be driven over. The plowed fields were level in comparison."

Mr. Delaire will spend a few days in the city and then return to the back country in the Cavendish Lumber Company's interest.

THE RUSSIAN DUMA

Although little more than three months have elapsed since the first Duma met, the eighteenth representative assembly known by that name is now in session. The experience of the proceedings of the first two Dumas may be regarded by many as making it probable that the present assembly will be as lacking in results as its two predecessors. Whether this anticipation will prove to be correct it will, of course, be impossible to say until we have its record before us. There are however, circumstances which seem to indicate that the present assembly may be able to accomplish something and lay the foundation for constitutional government, even though any measures it may pass should be of a very elementary character as regards what we understand by the working of representative institutions. It may be urged that the manner in which the previous representative gatherings were dissolved by the action of the Tsar indicates that he is not in earnest in the proffer of some share in the administration of the country to the people. We think, however, that the mere fact that a third Duma has been elected, after the experience with the two previous assemblies, is in itself a proof of the sincerity of the Czar. It seems to show that he realises that even in Russia the time has come when the people must have some voice in the government, and that he is anxious to do his part to bring about that result. Were it otherwise he would not have summoned this Duma to meet, but would have contented himself with the declaration that such a body having shown itself impracticable on two occasions and incapable of co-operating with the administration in the formulation of workable measures, nothing remained but to continue to rule the country on autocratic lines. The mere fact, therefore, that again there is an assembly in existence, elected by the popular vote, however restricted and imperfect may have been the franchise to which it owes its being, is a hopeful sign and an augury of the dawn of a new and brighter period in the history of the Russian people.

While the franchise on which the third Duma has been elected was much more restricted than that in force at the two previous elections, and may, therefore, be regarded as a retrograte movement on the part of the Tsar, and his advisers, the policy which dictated the change has much to recommend it, and if the Duma should succeed in doing some useful work it may be attributed in a great measure to the change and restriction in the constituencies. The peasants have now a much smaller representation in the Duma than they had previously and that, as the result of the election has shown, means a great reduction in the number of members who are uneducated and ignorant entirely of constitutional methods and principles. It was largely due to the wild and visionary demands of the peasant members in the two previous assemblies that moderate and reasonable measures could not be passed. The returns of the elections show that quite a large percentage of the present members have received a university education, and that the general standard of the membership shows a much better class of men with greater business capacity and a larger stake in the country. We think, therefore, that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the day of constitutional methods and popular government has at last dawned on Russia. Even the reactionaries may be led to abandon their attacks on the new regime by the knowledge that any movement in the direction of these liberal institutions is again checked, a natural anger and disappointment may bring about a situation that they will not survive.

SNUFFBOXES.

Once Held an Important Part in the Councils of Nations.

No longer applicable is an old diplomat's advice to "take snuff often and slowly," yet according to the Hon John W. Foster, author of "The Practice of Diplomacy," the time was when snuffboxes held an important part in the councils of nations. The present which the Spanish government tendered to General Pinckney in 1795 and which congress withheld from him was a gold snuffbox.

The British plenipotentiary who attended the conferences at the close of the Napoleonic wars received as presents twenty-four snuffboxes of the value of £1,000 each. Richly jewelled boxes were the diplomatic fashion a century and more ago, but the fashion has changed.

As a reminder of the olden time, Sir Charles Russell, afterward lord chief justice of England, the British senior counsel in the Bering sea arbitration at Paris in 1893, a great collector of historic snuffboxes, carried a precious one and was constantly offering its contents to his colleagues.

After the treaty of 1854 was concluded with Persia the American minister to Turkey, who signed it, wrote to the secretary of state:

"I would suggest the following present: A diamond snuffbox of the value of $1,000 for the shah; to Mirza Agbra Khan, the grand vizier, a diamond snuffbox to the value of $3,000; to Farrukh Khan, with whom the treaty was negotiated, another of the same value; to Mirza Ahmed Khan, the Persian charge at Constantinople, a diamond snuffbox to the value of $2,000."

YPSILANTI.

Nearly Four Hundred Ways of Spelling the Name.

Curious postal officers in Michigan and Washington have been keeping for years past a record of the different ways Ypsilanti has been spelled on mail matters, and by comparing the notes they have preserved a list of veritable orthographic wonders has been compiled. This list easily establishes the claim that more different ways for spelling Ypsilanti have been devised than for spelling any other geographical name in America.

In all no less than 372 distinct ways of spelling the name have been counted, and it is probable that the greater number, perhaps all, have been used in good faith by persons who actually believed that the orthographic combinations reproduced were the correct combinations for representing Ypsilanti on the written or printed page. Every letter in the alphabet except "R" has been used as the initial letter of the name, though why so obvious a combination as Rypsilanti should be neglected when others much less obvious have been employed is difficult to explain. As a matter of fact the variations in the spelling are chiefly confined to the first syllable, "Y" being a letter lacking or having only an indifferent standing in many foreign languages.

Tipsy Lanti and Zyp Silanti are met with, and among the spellings farthest away from the accepted and official standard are Whypsorianter and Hipsaslandder.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

They Went to Church.

Attendance at church service is obligatory upon the part of soldiers at certain English posts, and amusing stories are told of the excuses that are sometimes resorted to in order to escape this requirement. At one post where a number of recruits were temporarily stationed an old sergeant was ordered to ascertain to what religious sect each man belonged and to see that he joined the party told off for that particular form of worship. Some of the men had no liking for church and declared themselves to be atheists. But the sergeant was a Scotsman and a man of experience.

"Ah, weel," said he, "then ye hae no need to kape holy the Sabbath, and the stables hae na been cleaned oot lately." And he ordered them to clean out the stables. This occupied practically the whole day, and the men lost their usual Sunday afternoon's leave.

Next Sunday a broad smile crept over the face of the sergeant when he heard that the atheists had joined the Church of England.—London Tit-Bits

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1063 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 264 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.31 each per day, or $62.22 for the 47½ days stay.

MASSAGE

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 79 cases of club feet treated last year. Out of the 79, about 50 were from the country.

BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

STE CAMEE.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

buckskin gloves—was Eugenia, setting her room to rights, and complaining with every breath of her hard lot, in being thus obliged to exert herself on hot summer mornings.

"Don't you wish you were rich as Mrs. Hastings?" asked Alice, who chanced to come in.

"That I do," returned Eugenia. "I have been uncomfortable and discontented ever since I called upon her, for I can't see why there should be such a difference. She has all the money, servants, and dresses that she wants, besides the handsomest and most elegant man for a husband, while I, Eugenia Deane, who am ten times smarter than she, and could appreciate these things so much better, am obliged to make all sorts of shifts, just to keep up appearances. But didn't I impress her with a sense of my greatness?" she added, after a pause, and Alice rejoined, "Particularly when you talked of your waiting-maid! I don't see, Eugenia, how you dare do such things, for of course Mrs. Hastings will eventually know that you mean Dora."

"I'm not so sure of that," returned Eugenia; "and even if she does, I fancy I have tact enough to smooth it over with her, for she is not very deep."

For a moment Alice regarded her sister intently, and then said, "I wonder from whom you take your character for deception."

"I've dwelt upon that subject many a time myself," answered Eugenia, "and I have at last come to the conclusion that, as father was not famous for sense of any kind, I must be a second and revised edition of mother—but hark, don't you hear the roll of wheels?" And springing up, she reached the window just as Mrs. Hastings alighted from her carriage, which stood before the gate.

"Great goodness!" she exclaimed, "there's Mrs. Hastings coming here to call—and I in this predicament! What shall I do?"

"Let her wait, of course, until we change our dresses," answered Alice; and, rushing down the stairs, Eugenia bade Dora "show the lady into the parlor," adding, "and if she asks for me, say I am suffering from a severe headache, but you presume I will see her."

Perfectly delighted at the idea of standing face to face with a person of whom she had heard so much, Dora removed her high-necked apron, and throwing it across the tub so that the sleeves trailed upon the floor, was hurrying away, when her foot becoming accidentally entangled in the apron she fell headlong to the floor, bringing with her tub, suds, clothes, and all! To present herself in this drenched condition was impossible, and in a perfect tremor lest Mrs. Hastings should go away Eugenia vibrated, brush in hand, between her own chamber and the head of the kitchen stairs, scolding Dora unmercifully in the one place, and pulling at the long tangle of her hair in the other.

At last, just as Mrs. Hastings was about despairing of being heard, and was beginning to think that possibly her husband might be right and Eugenia in the suds after all, a chubby, brown-faced girl appeared, and, after giving her a searching, curious glance, showed her into the parlor.

"Are the young ladies at home?" asked Mrs. Hastings; and Dora, who had never told a falsehood in her life, and had no intention of doing so now, replied that they were and would soon be down; after which, with a low courtesy, she went back to the scene of the late disaster, while Mrs. Hastings busied herself a while by looking around the room, which, though small, was very handsomely furnished.

At last, beginning to grow sleepy, she took up a book and succeeded in interesting herself so far as to nod quite approvingly, when the rustle of female garments aroused her, and in a moment Eugenia and Alice swept into the room. Both were tastefully dressed, while about Eugenia there was an air of languor befitting the "severe headache" of which Mrs. Hastings was surprised to hear.

"Then that girl didn't tell you as I bade her to do," said Eugenia, adding that "Mrs. Hastings must have thought her very rude to keep her so long waiting."

But Mrs. Hastings was too good-natured to think anything, and, after a few commonplace remarks, she told the object of her call, saying that "the fresh air would undoubtedly do Eugenia good." In this opinion the young lady fully concurred, and half an hour after she was slowly riding through the principal streets of Dunwood, wondering if her acquaintances did not envy her for being on such terms of intimacy with the fashionable Mrs. Hastings. Very politely were the young ladies received by Mr. Hastings on their arrival at Rose Hill, and throughout the entire day their admiration, both for the place and its owner, increased, though Eugenia could not conceal from herself the fact that she stood very much in fear of the latter, whose keen black eyes seemed to read her very thoughts. How such a man came to marry Ella Grey was to her a puzzle; and if occasionally she harbored the thought that Eugenia Deane was far better suited to be the mistress of Howard Hastings' home than the childish creature he had chosen, she was only guilty of what had, in a similar manner, been done by more than one New York belle. Dinner being over, Ella led the way to an upper balcony which opened from her chamber, and which was a cool, shaded spot. Scarcely were they seated, when remembering something she had left in the parlor she went back for it, and in returning she ran up the stairs so swiftly that a sudden dizziness came over her, while Eugenia made many anxious inquiries as to what was the matter, and if she were often thus affected.

"Yes, often," answered Ella, who began to revive; then, as the perspiration gathered thickly about the white lips, she pressed her blue-veined hand upon her side, and cried, "The pain—the pain! It has come again. Country air won't do me any good. I shall die of consumption, just as mother said."

And as if she saw indeed the little grave on which the next summer's sun would shine, she hid her face in her husband's bosom and sobbed aloud. Instantly a dark thought flashed upon Eugenia, a thought which even she would not harbor, and casting it aside she drew nearer to the weeping Ella, striving by an increased tenderness of manner to atone for having dared to think of a time when the little willow chair on the balcony would be empty and Howard Hastings free. Soon rallying, Ella feigned to smile at her discomposure, saying that "consumption had been preached to her so much that she always felt frightened at the slightest pain in her side," thoughtlessly adding, as she glanced at her husband, "I wonder if Howard would miss me any more if I really to die."

A dark shadow settled upon Mr. Hastings' face, but he made no reply; and Eugenia, who was watching him, fancied she could read his thoughts, but when they at last started for home, and she saw how tenderly he wrapped a warm shawl around his delicate young wife, who insisted upon going with them, she felt that however frivolous and uncompanionable Ella might be she was Howard Hastings' wife, and as such he would love and cherish her to the last.

By her window in the attic sat Dora Deane, poring over to-morrow's lessons; but as the silvery voice of Ella fell upon her ear she arose, and, going to her cousin's chamber, looked out upon the party as they drew near the gate.

"How beautiful she is!" she whispered to herself, as, dropping her shawl and flinging back her golden curls, Ella sprang up to reach a branch of locust blossoms which grew above her head.

Then, as she saw how carefully Mr. Hastings replaced the shawl, drawing his wife's arm within his own, she stole back to her room, and, resuming her seat by the window, dreamed, as maidens of thirteen will, of a time away in the future when she too might perhaps be loved even as was the gentle Ella Hastings.

CHAPTER VIII.

One pleasant July morning the people of Dunwood were electrified by the news that on Thursday evening Mrs. Howard Hastings would be at home to between one and two hundred of her friends. Among the first invited was Eugenia, who had been Mrs. Hastings' chief adviser, kindly enlightening her as the somebodies and nobodies of the town, and rendering herself so generally useful that, in a fit of gratitude, Mrs. Hastings had promised her her brother Stephen, a fast young man, who was expected to be present at the party. To appear well in his eyes was, therefore, Eugenia's ambition; and the time which was not spent in giving directions at Rose Hill was occupied at home in scolding because her mother would [illegible]

Hawaii's Show Volcano.

Kilauea, the spur of the great Mauna Loa, is a well behaved volcano, as it can be visited with perfect safety, even if in eruption—as it is from time to time—when exhibitions of activity are given that are worth traveling thousands of miles to witness. This volcano is on the island of Hawaii, and the shortest possible trip that can be made to it from Honolulu covers four days. This allows only half a day at the volcano, which is much too short a time to study the workings of what is considered one of the world's wonders. A week at least should be given to the trip. The sea voyage is always more or less rough, but the boats, although small, are comfortable. From Hilo, where the water trip ends, there is a railroad ride of about eighteen miles through the big Olaa sugar plantation. This is followed by a stage run of eleven miles over a road leading through a perfect fairyland of tropical foliage, the highway being lined on either side with roses, magnolias and ferns, which last grow to the size of trees without losing any of their delicate beauty. Returning by the other route, there is a stage drive of thirty-five miles over lava roads and across the great flow which ran into the sea from Mauna Loa several years ago.—Leslie's Weekly.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—scares blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's a painful period with women, same cause. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 300 feet, is over 5 per cent. copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1.400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marked from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 4 to 25 per cent. copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we get our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Systematic Catarrh Has But One Cure

Lotions and Powders Will Never Help Unless the Blood is Given Attention

The way to radically and permanently cure catarrh is to cleanse the blood of the unhealthy secretions that keep the mucous membrane inflamed.

Catarrhal poison usually interferes with the stomach, kidneys and liver. These organs must be properly toned and strengthened, otherwise you feel sick all over.

To get direct to the seat of the trouble—to cleanse, nourish and purify the blood—where can you find anything so potent as Dr. Hamilton's Pills?

This grand medicine regulates the eliminating organs and completely drives the virus of catarrh out of the system. Thousands of cures prove this.

Of course to clear the nose and head of mucous discharges, Dr. Hamilton recommends the use of Catarrhozone Inhaler which, if used with his pills of Mandrake and Butternut, cures the most obstinate case of Catarrh ever known. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills in 25c. boxes.

Dave Hartley Accepts

Referring to the initial copy of a challenge issued by J. F. Graham, the self-styled 27-hour U. Made Young by Change of Food

Any food or combination of foods that will restore vigor to the digestive organs of a person 77 years old who had been troubled with indigestion for years, is worth looking into.

This Kans. woman says:

"I am 77 years old and for many years had suffered from indigestion which I supposed was caused by old age. Thought the weakened organs would never do good service any more.

"I became so weak I could hardly get about, my breath came with difficulty, I was really in a bad way. I lived as I always had, ate meat and other things that were clearly too heavy for my digestion, but I didn't know any better way.

"Five months ago I came to the conclusion that I would not live much longer without help of some kind. I was badly discouraged until one day I read about Grape-Nuts, what it had done for others, and finally I concluded to try it myself.

"Wonder of wonders, what a change it made. I eat three heaping teaspoonfuls with cream for breakfast and the same amount for supper. Of course I eat fruit and something light to make up a meal, but I can eat a hearty dinner—leaving out meat.

"How good I feel. I can do more work in a given time than for the past five years. I can walk two miles or more and can hardly believe by own senses as to the change. I did not have much faith at first, but the next thing I knew I would get up in the morning and rush around and do things so easily it surprised me. All this change is clearly due to Grape-Nuts and I am thankful." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little booklet, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a Reason."

AN EXTINCT ANIMAL.

The Saber Toothed Tiger Was a Formidable Creature.

The most remarkable of all the extinct feline animals are those known to naturalists as the saber toothed cats or tigers, a group comprising the greater part of all the fossil forms. They date back to the earliest times of which we know anything about the family in North America and reach down to the time of man himself. A large and powerful species described from the Indian Territory by Cope lived contemporaneously with the hairy mammoth, as evidenced by the commingling of their skeletons. There can be little or no question but that the hairy mammoth was contemporaneous with man in North America as well as in Europe. Its geological range is from the close of the eocene to the latter part of the pleistocene.

The chief peculiarity of the animal is the extraordinary elongated canine teeth. The tail is of unusual length and the legs are short. The animal measures about seven feet in length aside from the tail. The lower jaws have a downward projection in front, due to a flangelike widening of the jawbones, which doubtless served as a protection to the teeth, preventing their injury or loss. In some of the larger forms from South America this flange was not present, while the canine teeth were even more elongated than in the case with this species, attaining a length of over six inches and protruding far below the jaws when closed.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

This "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that has any such professional endorsement—with more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

BY-LAW NUMBER .....

A By-law to Fix and Provide for Levying a Special Frontage Rate Upon Lands in the City of Peterborough Fronting on Streets, Lanes and Alley Upon Which Water Mains are Laid

WHEREAS by Chapter 23 of the Statutes of the Province of Ontario passed in the Seventh Year of the Reign of His Majesty King Edward the Seventh it is enacted, that subject to the approval of the majority voting thereon of the electors entitled to vote at Municipal elections, the Peterborough Water Commissioners shall have power by By-law to levy and charge a special rate upon the several lands, lots or parts of lots, whether occupied or vacant, fronting or abutting upon all streets, lanes and alleys in the Municipality upon which water mains, from which the Commissioners are willing to supply water, are laid; such special rate to be an annual rate according to the frontage of the said lands, lots or parts of lots and not to exceed five cents per foot for such frontage and to be subject to the same discount for prompt payment as shall be allowed in respect of ordinary water rates for domestic use and to be payable at the time or times, during each year, fixed by the Water Commissioners for payment thereof.

AND WHEREAS the said Water Commissioners have decided to fix the said special rate at four and one-half cents per foot for each foot of frontage in said streets, lanes and alleys and to make the same payable on the same days and times as ordinary water rates are payable under the By-laws of the said Commissioners from time to time in force and effect.

THE PETERBOROUGH WATER COMMISSIONERS THEREFORE ENACT AS FOLLOWS:—

1.—This By-law shall come into force and effect on the final passing thereof.

2.—An annual special rate of four and one-half cents per foot for each foot of frontage of all lands, lots or parts of lots, whether occupied or vacant, fronting or abutting upon all streets, lanes and alleys in the City of Peterborough, upon which water mains, from which the Commissioners are willing to supply water are laid, is hereby fixed, levied and charged, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained.

PALMISTRY AND NECROMANCY TABOOED IN THIS CITY

Two Alleged Exponents of the Black Art Arrested by Chief Roszel and His Staff Yesterday Afternoon

It seems that the local hustling chief of police, Mr. Geo Roszel and his most efficient staff are averse to the telling of fortunes, whether by palmistry, necromancy, cards or other systems most of which are calculated to extract hard earned dollars from flat-faced pocket books generally in the possession of persons with most limited brain capacity. It seems again that two persons totally as far as can be ascertained to date unknown to one another, and whose respective business, although possibly carried on along the same lines, viz., the getting of money from the public without any tangible returns have been engaged in a so-called "palmistry business." The first of those arrested yesterday on this charge was "Prof. Shephard," whose sign read thusly; Prof. Shephard, palmist and phrenologist, foretells past, present and future, love, marriage and business.

The professor, who is a young man of pleasing appearance, and intelligent face, has carried on his business openly in the city in one or two different locations. While under arrest yesterday evening a Times representative saw him and naturally asked a few questions. During their conversation a young lady, the daughter of a lady with whom the professor has boarded with in the city, called and wanted to get her ring back from Prof. Shephard. The chief of police spoke to Prof. Shephard whilst the latter was in a cell, and the latter at once said, "Why certainly chief, give the girl her ring. I would have given it back had I had an opportunity. The girl only wished it on my finger for fun."

Later on The Times man saw the girl's mother, who said the ring was never "wished on;" it was simply given to the professor to see a stone that was or was not in it and that Mr. Shephard, as far as she knew never had any idea of stealing it. This both from the above mentioned lady's story and other circumstances connected with the story seems correct. The professor has retained the services of Mr. Kerr for his defence at the police court this morning.

The other case in question is that of a lady palmist, doing business on Water street, who was yesterday summoned along a similar charge under the criminal code which includes such obsolete wording as "Witchcraft."

MAYOR McWILLIAMS GETS MAN RELEASED

Prisoner in County Jail for Two Months Released Owing to the Death of His Mother

Yesterday a young man who was some two months ago arrested and sentenced to two months in the county jail on charges of assault and chicken stealing, whose sentence would not have expired until Friday next, was released through the efforts of Mayor McWilliams. It seems that the young man's mother died on Monday, and the relatives naturally wanted the son at the house under such circumstances.

Police Magistrate Dumble who was first applied to both before and after consulting the police forces clearly explained that the letting of the young man out of jail before his sentence was fully served was quite beyond his powers of jurisdiction. He told the relatives that the only way the young man could be released was for the jailor, Mr. Nesbitt to do so at his own risk. He noted that should the jailor let the young man go it would be entirely at the former's risk, should the inspector of prisons learn of such dereliction of his duty.

However, we understand that later during the day, Mayor McWilliams, noting the family trouble and recognizing that the young man's sentence had nearly expired, kept the telegraph wires between here and the office of the minister of justice at Ottawa busy, succeeded in getting the prisoner released.

The action of Mayor McWilliams will be greatly appreciated by the friends and relatives of those immediately affected.

POLICE

Yesterday afternoon a special session of the police court was held with Police Magistrate Dumble on the bench, when George Williamson, supposed by some to be a gipsy, was charged with assaulting his wife. These people live on Stewart street. At the trial yesterday afternoon Mrs Williamson did not appear but the prisoner, who has been for some days in Castle Nesbitt, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 with $1.50 costs, the same to be paid forthwith. Williamson lugged down to his jeans and brought forth the necessary dimeleon and paid his fine.

Presentation Made to Mr. Frank Mason

Handsome Morris Chair Presented to Popular Class Leader

One evening last week some 25 members of Mr. Frank Mason's class of the George street Methodist church gathered at his home when Mr. D. W Dumble read an appreciative address, signed by Mrs. Campbell, Mrs Speer and Mr. Dumble on behalf of the class. Accompanying the address was a handsome Morris chair, which was presented to Mr. Mason. The recipient made a grateful and appropriate reply thanking the members of his class for their too totally unexpected evidence of esteem and referring to the pleasant relations which had always existed between the different members.

An enjoyable evening was spent with music and readings. Refreshment were served at the close of the happy gathering.

Miss Helen Davies Highly Spoken of

At the National Chorus, in Massey Hall, Toronto, Monday night, Miss Helen Davies, Peterborough's talent ed soprano soloist, scored a distinct triumph by her brilliant work.

During the evening she was presented with a handsome bouquet of American beauty roses, from St. Paul's church choir, Peterborough.

Among those present from Peterborough were Misses Hazel and Lillian Dean, Mr. and Mrs. John Crane, Mrs. Alfred Davies, Mr. G. K. Martin and others.

The Mail and Empire says; It was a pleasure to many to hear once again Miss Helen Davies, of Peterborough, whose beautiful high soprano voice is too seldom heard on local platforms. Only one of the brief solos allotted gave her a fitting opportunity to display the superb quality of her voice, and the beauty and distinction of her utterance. This was the narrative of Hiawatha's grief, beginning with the line, "On the Bed of Minnehaha," in which she overcame difficulties of phrasing and the tenderness she imparted to the melody stamped her as an artiste who should go far indeed.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Impious and Vulgar Press Blamed by His Holiness for Disorders

Rome, Dec. 17.—Pius X. today held a secret consistory in the Vatican, in which he created four new cardinals and preconized several bishops. The new cardinals appointed are Monsignor Pietro Gasparri, Secretary of the Congregation of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs; Monsignor De Lai, Secretary of the Congregation of the Council; Monsignor Ludovic Henry Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, and Monsignor Paul Pierre Andrieu, Archbishop of Marseilles. The Pope made official announcement of the appointment of Monsignor Kennedy, Rector of the American College here, to the Titular Bishop of Adrianopolis, and the appointment of Monsignor Donn O'Connor, rector of the Catholic University at Washington, to be Titular Bishop of Sebaste.

The pope delivered an elocution in which he made reference to the tenacious persecution of the Roman church that this Church had been attacked from all sides in a warfare open or dissimulated. The rights and laws of the Church had been trampled on even by those who should safeguard them, and the impious and vulgar press had fought her even to the extent of disturbing the public quiet. The pontiff cited the recent disorders in Italy. To this must be added, he continued, the disastrous propaganda in the bosom of Catholicism itself, which is being carried on by modernists who disdain the pontifical authority, and desire themselves authoritatively to sanction a new faith, and a new conscience.

MODERNISM RESISTS.

If the modernists would enlist themselves frankly among the enemies of the Church this evil would be less; as it is, they proclaim themselves Catholics, partake of the sacrament, and celebrate mass. Fulfilling his apostolic duty, the pope said he had adopted against the modernists such measures as were necessary, striving particularly to save young clergymen from perversion.

In conclusion the elocution reads; "The episcopacy has accepted the papal directions with eagerness, and has applied them with zeal, but the modernists persevere in their rebellion, and give manifest proof of their attitude even in the press. May God enlighten these misled ones."

Magazine Apologizes, But the Suit Goes On

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—A copy of the last issue of the Nineteenth Century and After, received today by Sir Frederick Borden, contains the following;

—"In an article contributed by Mr. B. Hamilton Fyfe to the October issue of this review a quotation appeared, with many blanks left in it, from a Canadian paper called the Eye-opener, of which the editor had never heard. We passed that quotation on the strength of Mr. Fyfe's name, with no conception that it would be thought to refer to Sir F. Borden. But the editor has since been informed by Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia in the Dominion Government, that the blanks in the quotation from the Eye-opener were in the original newspaper occupied by his name. The editor is, therefore, anxious to express at once to Sir Frederick Borden his extreme regret that any such unfounded and scurrilous gossip should have been quoted in these pages, so unreservedly with draw the same and apologize sincerely to Sir Frederick for any injury which could possibly have occurred to him from such a scandalous story. —Editor the Nineteenth Century and After."

Sir Frederick naturally expressed satisfaction at the prompt and unreserved apology, but at the same time he has not withdrawn his suit for damages, and his lawyers in London are under instructions to press the libel action through the courts. The above retraction by the magazine will, however, probably have the effect of mitigating the offence in the eyes of the court and may reduce the amount of damages awarded.

MOTHERS MUST HAVE ABUNDANT STRENGTH

No Mother Can Bear a Healthy Child Unless She is Strong Herself.

A woman's anxieties multiply tenfold about the time the new baby is expected.

If her strength is exhausted and her blood weak, it goes hard in the hour of trial.

Ferrozone should be used because it makes the blood nutritious and rich. By instilling new strength into every part of the body, it uplifts your spirits at once.

Childbirth is certainly made easier by Ferrozone. The following statement expresses the earnest gratitude of Mrs. M. E. Duckworth, of Durham. It is a woman's story—of her own case—told that other women may profit by her experience:

"Before baby was born I was in a weak, miserable, nervous state. I had no reserve strength. I tried to build up, but nothing helped me. I looked upon the coming day with dread, knowing I was unequal to the occasion.

"Ferrozone braced me up at once. It gave me strength and spirits, brought back my nerve and cheerfulness. From my experience with Ferrozone I recommend it to all expectant mothers."

There is more concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone than you can get from anything else. It supplies what weak systems need. Simply take one tablet at meals and you'll feel benefited in a thousand ways.

Ferrozone makes healthy, virile, vigorous women; try it. 50c per box of fifty tablets, or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

IMITATION HARD WOODS.

How Furniture Manufacturers Meet a Contingency.

Perhaps no set of men appreciate the seriousness of the timber supply question more than those engaged in the manufacture of furniture. They have realized for some years that a pinch in the hardwood market is sure to come, and they have succeeded in coping with the situation by the economical use of material by the practice of veneering and the imitation of the highest priced hard woods.

During the last few years the great increase in the price of hard woods has created a strong demand for wood which can be used in imitation. The two woods that are most successfully imitated are mahogany and oak, particularly the quartered oak in the golden and darker finishes. Almost without exception the manufacturer markets these imitations either as imitations or under some registered trade name and does not pretend to deceive his customers.

For imitating mahogany cherry was formerly used almost entirely, but the diminished supply and the increased price of this wood have led manufacturers to seek a substitute which would lend itself more readily to the stain than cherry and at the same time show the grain and hold the gloss. For these reasons birch, especially curly birch, maple, beech and gum are extensively used for all parts of furniture. Even in the better grades of mahogany furniture birch and maple stained to a mahogany finish are often used for posts and frames, while genuine mahogany in the form of veneer is used for panels, tops and rails.

In making imitation quartered oak almost any wood can be used, since in this case the original grain of the wood is first covered with a filler, and then the quartering is printed on in dark ink by the impression of actual quartered oak rolls or by a transfer from quartered oak prepared by special processes. Birch, maple, poplar and plain sawed oak are commonly used for this work. After the wood has been finished and polished the imitation appears so real that only an expert can detect the difference.

Certain woods used in furniture construction are extremely expensive owing to the difficulty of obtaining pieces with a good grain of sufficient size for working. Such, for instance, is Circassian walnut. This, which comes from the Ural mountains, is largely used in the form of veneers for choice bedroom panels and tops in bedroom suites, table tops, etc., the balance of the pieces of furniture being composed either of American or black walnut (natural finish) or of satin walnut, commonly known as red gum. The latter, while it does not often show the beautiful grain of the panel, is so near the color of plain Circassian walnut that only close scrutiny can detect the difference.—New York Post.

Wonders of the Microscope.

The wonders revealed by the ordinary microscope are increased a hundredfold by a recent invention, which enables the use of a high power lens as large as six inches in diameter, thus bringing the whole of objects, instead of details only, under observation.—Scientific American.

this means a common house fly is magnified not in parts, but all at once, till it appears to be as large as an ostrich or a condor, and, being inclosed in an open space, where it is kept directly within the field of the glass and yet has ample room, considering its size, to move about and engage in its usual occupations, the opportunity for studying it is immensely in advance of anything previously enjoyed by scientists. Vast worlds of microscopic life hitherto only dreamed of are suddenly open to the gaze of mankind, and discoveries of immense value can doubtless be made.

Nurses' Fees.

A good deal of discussion has been aroused on the subject of the large fees received by certain nurses in New York. As a rule, patients are able to protect themselves from extortion by aid of a natural and healthy competition, and in England the custom of supplying nurses through co-operation tends to equalize the rate of payment. The difference between fees in London and New York is partly one of organization, the two or three guineas a week received by the Englishwoman being pure profit, while the five guineas of the American have to provide her with the expense of living out. Even taking this into account, the amount which the New York patient often has to pay seems high, reaching occasionally a total of $35, or £7, a week.—London Hospital.

Tool of Many Uses.

During the recent army maneuvers the French troops were using for the first time an instrument which for variety of adaptation probably approaches to a record. It is a kind of concave lance shaft, or gouge, about eight inches broad at the base and with a handle about twelve inches long. This implement is a shovel, a pointed bar, a trenching pick, a wire cutter, a wood chopper and can be used for bread and meat.—London Globe.

Strange Use For a Tunnel.

In Edinburgh there is a derelict railway tunnel nearly a mile long which has been put to the strange use of growing mushrooms. The portals are furnished with doors, and one line of rails has been removed to make room for the beds, but the other track remains to facilitate the dispatch of the mushrooms in trucks.—Wide Awake Magazine.

Hair Ribbons.

In 1680 the Duchesse de Fontanges had the misfortune to have her hat blown off at a hunting party and she tied her hair with one of her ribbon garters. Hairdressing with ribbons remained a fashion for seven years.

Greenland Ice.

Some of the ice fields of Greenland are believed to be a mile and a half in thickness.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and cedar stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

The Sawfish.

More energetic than any other sharks are the sawfish, whose snouts are prolonged into a broad blade of cartilage, which is horizontal when the fish is swimming in a normal position and has both its edges set with slightly curved teeth about an inch apart. The end of this formidable looking weapon is blunt and comparatively soft, so that it is quite incapable of the feats popularly attributed to it of piercing whales' bodies, ships' timbers, etc. It attacks other fish by a swift lateral thrust of the saw beneath them, the keen edge disemboweling them. Then it feeds upon the soft entrails, which are apparently the only food it can eat from the peculiar shape of its mouth. It has an enormous number of small teeth, sometimes as many as fifty rows in one individual, but they are evidently unfit for the rough duties required of their teeth by the garbage eating members of the family.

National Gardens.

There are two gardens of England—namely, Kent and Worcestershire. That of Ireland is usually said to be Carlow, in Leinster. Italy and Belgium are both called the gardens of Europe, while that of France is Amboise, in the department of Indre-et-Loire. The garden of Italy is Sicily and of Spain Andalusia. In the east Ceylon and Burma have both received the title, and the district of India so honored is Oude. Glamorganshire is often spoken of as the garden of south Wales. To the region west of our noble Mississippi the title "garden of the world" has been given.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. The tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—removes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is far-reaching, painlessly defibrinoid, though subtly, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's faulty construction—blood pressure. That disease is a necessity, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet cures it in 20 minutes, and the tablet simply eliminates the unnatural blood pressure.

Throw your finger, and doesn't it get red and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

Last year there were 1093 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 284 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.31 each per day, or $62.22 for the 47½ days stay.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles as the direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE [illegible] EAST INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

obtain a new pink dress, with lace overskirt, and flowers to match.

It was in vain that Mrs. Deane sought to convince her daughter how impossible it was to raise the necessary funds. Eugenia was determined; and at last, by dint of secretly selling a half-worn dress to one Irish girl, a last year's bonnet to another, and a brooche shawl to another, she succeeded in obtaining enough for the desired purchase, lacking five dollars, and this last it seemed impossible to procure. But Eugenia never despaired; and a paragraph read one evening in a city paper suggested to her a plan which she resolved to execute immediately.

It was nearly dark; her mother and sister were in the village; Dora was gone on an errand, and she was alone. Half reluctantly she opened the stair door which led to Dora's room, the low room in the attic. Up the steep staircase and through the narrow hall she went, treading softly, and holding her breath, as if she feared lest the dead from the far-off grave in the great city should hear her noiseless footfall and come forth to prevent the thing she meditated. But no, Fanny Deane slept calmly in her coffin, and Eugenia kept on her way unmolested until the chamber was reached. Then, indeed, she hesitated, for there was to her something terrifying in the darkness which had gathered in the corners of the room and settled like a pall upon the old green trunk. To reach that and secure the treasure it contained would have been the work of a moment; but, wholly powerless to advance, Eugenia stood still, while the cold perspiration started from every pore.

"I can do anything but that," she said at last, and as if the words had given her strength to move she turned back, gliding again through the narrow hall and down the steep stairway out into the open air; and when that night, as she often did, Dora looked for her mother's beautiful hair it lay in its accustomed place, unruffled and unharmed; and the orphan child, as she pressed it to her lips, dreamed not of the danger which had threatened it, or of the snare about to be laid for herself by Eugenia who could not yet give up the coveted dress.

Next morning as Dora stood before the mirror, arranging her long, luxuriant hair, which she usually wore in braids hanging down her back, Eugenia came up, and with an unusual degree of kindness in her manner offered to fix it for her, commenting the while on the exceeding beauty of the rich auburn tresses, and saying that if she were in Dora's place she would have it cut off, as by that means she would when grown up have much handsomer hair than if it were suffered to remain long. Dora remembered having heard her mother say the same; but she had a pride in her hair, which was longer and thicker than any of her companions'; so she said nothing until Eugenia, who, to serve her own purpose, would not hesitate to tell a falsehood, and who knew how much Dora admired Mrs. Hastings, spoke of that lady's beautiful curls, saying they were all the result of her having worn her hair quite short until she was sixteen years of age. Then, indeed, Dora wavered. She had recently suffered much from headache, too, and it might relieve that; so that when Eugenia offered her a coral bracelet in exchange for her hair, she consented, and Alice entered the room just as the last shining braid dropped upon the floor.

"What upon earth!" she exclaimed, stopping short, and then bursting into a loud laugh at the comical appearance which Dora presented; for Eugenia had cut close to the head, leaving the hair so uneven that shingling seemed the only alternative, and to this poor Dora finally submitted. When at last the performance was ended, and she glanced at herself in the mirror, she burst into a paroxysm of tears, while Alice tried to soothe her by saying that it really would eventually benefit her hair and that she would not always look so strange.

But Dora, who began to suspect that it was pure selfishness on Eugenia's part which had prompted the act, felt keenly the injustice done her, and refused to be comforted, keeping her room the entire day, and weeping until her eyelids were nearly blistered. Meantime, Eugenia had hurried off to the city with her ill-gotten treasure, on which the miserly old Jew to whom it was offered looked with eager, longing eyes, taking care however to depreciate its value, lest his customer should expect too much. But Eugenia was fully his equal in management, and when at night she returned home she was in possession of the satin, the lace, and the flowers, together with several other articles of finery.

The next day was the party, and as Dora, besides being exceedingly tasteful, was also neat, and handy with her needle, she was kept from school, stitching the livelong day upon the dainty fabric, a portion of which had been purchased with her hair! Occasionally, as Eugenia glanced at the swollen eyelids and shorn head, bending so uncomplainingly over the cloud of lace, her conscience smote her for what she had done; but one thought of Stephen Grey, and the impression she should make on him, dissipated all such regrets; and when at length the hour for making her toilet arrived her jaded cousin was literally made to perform all the offices of a waiting-maid. Three times was the tired little girl sent down to the village in quest of something which the capricious Eugenia must have, and which when brought was not "the thing at all," and must be exchanged. Up the stairs and down the stairs she went, bringing pins to Alice and powder to Eugenia, enacting, in short, the part of a second Cinderella, except that in her case no kind old godmother with her potent wand appeared to her relief!

They were dressed at last, and very beautiful Eugenia looked in the pink satin and flowing lace, which harmonized so well with her complexion, and which had been bought with the united proceeds of a velvet bonnet, a delaine dress, a brooche shawl, and Dora's hair!

"Why don't you compliment me?" she said to the weary child, who, sick with yesterday's weeping, and the close confinement of to-day, had laid her aching head upon the arm of the lounge.

Slowly unclosing her eyes, and fixing them upon her cousin, Dora answered:

"You do look beautiful. No one will excel you, I am sure, unless it be Mrs. Hastings. I wish I could see how she will dress."

"You might go up and look in at the window, or, if I'd thought of it, I could have secured you the office of door-waiter," said the thoughtless Eugenia, adding, as she held out her shawl for Dora to throw around her, "Don't you wish you could attend a party at Rose Hill?"

There was a sneer accompanying this question which Dora felt keenly. Her little swelling heart was already full, and, with quivering lips and gushing tears, she answered, somewhat bitterly:

"I never expect to be anybody, or go anywhere."

Then, her services being no longer needed, she ran away to her humble room, where from her window she watched the many brilliant lights which shone from Rose Hill, and caught occasional glimpses of the airy forms which flitted before the open doors and windows. Once she was sure she saw Eugenia upon the balcony, and then, as a sense of the difference between herself and her cousins came over her, she laid her down upon the old green trunk, and, covering her face with her hands, cried out, "Nobody cares for me, or loves me either. I wish I had died that winter night. Oh, mother! come to me, I am so lonely and so sad."

Softly, as if it were indeed the rustle of an angel's wings, came the evening air through the open casement, cooling the feverish brow and drying the tears of the orphan girl, who grew strangely calm, and when at last the moon looked in upon her she was sleeping quietly, with a placid smile upon her lips. Years after, and Dora Deane remembered that summer night, when, on the hard green trunk, she slept so soundly as not to hear the angry voice of Eugenia, who came home sadly out of humor with herself and the world at large.

At breakfast next morning she was hardly on speaking terms with her sister, while Stephen Grey was pronounced "a perfect bore—a baboon, with more hair than brains."

"And to that I should not suppose you would object," said Alice mischievously. "You might find it useful in case of an emergency."

To this there was no reply, save an

BRITISH BARONETS.

These of England and Ireland Wear the "Bloody Hand of Ulster."

The rank of baronet was given first by King James I. as a means of raising money. The recipients of the dignity were to be gentlemen of good birth possessing not less than £1,000 a year and in time of war—like the old knights bannaret—were to occupy posts of honor near the royal standard.

The money payment has wholly ceased, but when a baronet is created the ancient form of warrant is still retained, and a "tally" is struck at the exchequer and handed to the new baronet by way of receipt. Baronets have no coronet or robes, but in the English and Irish divisions they possess as a distinctive badge the "Bloody Hand of Ulster," which invariably appears on their coat of arms.

The baronets "of Nova Scotia," who date before the union of England and Scotland, show the arms of Nova Scotia upon their shields. The baronets of Scotland have a distinctive badge consisting of an enameled decoration, "worn from the neck by an orange tawny ribbon," showing St. Andrew's cross upon a small shield, surmounted by a crown and surrounded by the enameled motto, "Fax mentis honestae gloria" ("Glory, the beacon light of the noble mind").

With this King Charles conferred a crest—a branch of laurel held by a naked hand and a thistle held by an armed one—with the added motto, "Munit haec, altera vincit" ("One defends, the other conquers"). All later baronets are of the "United Kingdom" or of "Great Britain" and possess no such pretty toys.

In fact, many people who pride themselves on their familiarity with Debrett know scarcely anything of baronets' badges and beyond a misty notion of the meaning of the Ulster Hand are unaware of their history and significance.

There is one instance of the honor being granted to a woman. Dame Mary Bolles of Osberton, Nottinghamshire, was created a baronet in 1635 for "maintaining thirty foot soldiers at eightpence a day for three years in his majesty's service," no slight help in those troublous times.

"Dame," the old English word for lady, is the almost obsolete style to be used by a baronet's wife. Nowadays she is styled "lady" without the use of her Christian name. Should she prefer the old word "dame," that is always followed by the Christian name and sounds deliciously quaint and distinctive.—Modern Society.

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortes, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1.400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 20 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $4.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before shipping it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and have a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Dr. Hamilton Speaks on Curing Pimples

Gives Common Sense Advice That Every Person can Employ at Home.

"I believe all skin diseases such as pimples and eruptions originate through the failure of the eliminating organs to pass certain poisonous wastes from the body.

"There is at all times a large accumulation of fuel matter in the system, which, if not destroyed, gets into the blood, germs and disease producing matter are thus circulated through the body. Ultimately they force their way through the pores of the skin, producing pimples, swelling, red blotches and often eruptions horrible to look upon.

"I usually found the primary cause to be with the kidneys and bowels,—these organs are too slow. My Pills of Mandrake and Butternut contain very active vegetable extracts that act on these organs directly. They give strength, tone and vigor to the eliminating organs that positively ensures a clean healthy body."

A course of Dr. Hamilton's Pills puts the system in perfect order, they cleanse the system inside as soap and water does outside, they remove all taints and poisons that block the avenues of health and life, make the skin smooth, restore roses to the cheeks and that brightness to the eye that denotes sound health. Because Mild, Safe, Efficient, anyone can use Dr. Hamilton's Pills with perfect results.

Nugent's Unique Display

Yesterday evening many citizens were attracted by the unique and interesting attractive display in one of the windows of the Nugent Drug Co. on George street. Confined by a number of glass tubes corks were some six or eight small balloons propelled upwards to a Japanese parasol at the top by a horizontally placed electric fan. The balloons rise to a certain height impelled by the current of air, stand stationery for the fraction of a second and after a short fall once more rise again to repeat the act. The whole attraction is up-to-date and demonstrative of the methods carried on within.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "all gone" or poor "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and give the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

SHEPHERD COMMITTED FOR TRIAL--M'ME AYRE WAS FINED $50

Palmist Proposed Marriage to Young Ladies--Had a North End Lady Under His influence--Met Her Mother

At the police court yesterday morning, with Magistrate Dunbide on the bench, Prof. Shepherd was committed for trial and Madam Ayre was fined $50, to be paid forthwith.

PROF. SHEPHERD.

A young lady said the professor, whilst predicting her future, told her she would be happily married, in three months. This she knew to be untrue as she had to return to a good home. He had told nothing else definitely as to the future.

Here a passage of verbal arms took place between Mr. Kerr for the defendant, and Mr. Wood. Mr. Kerr made a vigorous protest against the magistrate putting down such parts of the evidence as he claimed were against the prisoner, but leaving out the evidence in prisoner's favor.

His worship remarked, Mr. Kerr if was you who objected to the evidence to put down part of the evidence to suit your client unless the whole testimony is given.

The first young lady called told how she had consulted the professor at his rooms on Monday, 2nd. told her things that would happen. He proposed marriage to me and seemed to have an influence over me and I could not get away. He arranged to meet my mother and carried out the arrangements. I said that he possessed the gift of palmistry.

Mr Fowler of the Review, was shown a copy of the palmist's advertisement, and gave evidence as to length of time it was to be put in the paper. He went to the prisoner's room to get the advertisement. Prisoner did not propose marriage to him. (Laughter.)

Another lady, from Fenelon Falls, but now employed in this city, said she saw the prisoner about two weeks ago at the place he was then boarding at. She did not know that there was a palmist there until she got to the place, where she herself had formerly boarded. She saw a printed card on the prisoner's door. The landlady introduced her to the prisoner, and then left her with the palmist. The latter took her hand and used a microscope. He asked her for 50 cents, but she could not remember what he told her.

Here, the magistrate pointing to the Bible on the desk, said, "Look here, you have kissed that book, and sworn to tell the truth."

Mr. Wood said, "Come, come, now tell the truth, what did he tell you for your 50 cents?"

To the magistrate, witness said the palmist told her things she was ashamed to speak of in court. The only thing prisoner said to her during the half hour's conversation that was not improper which she could remember was about her going to do a lot of travelling.

Mr Kerr asked, "If the prisoner's remarks were so improper why did you wait for a full half hour." Witness said she wanted to hear the whole thing. She did not pay him 50 cents until conclusion of the interview.

The court adjourned at 12 o'clock until 2 p.m. At the next meeting of the case P. C. Newball went into the box and said, he had found a number of letters and other communications, describing prisoner as a doctor and palmist; this was when he went to make the arrest. He told prisoner he had come to arrest him, and Shepherd said, "I don't understand this business." A former boarding place of the prisoner, witness said a theft of books had occurred and prisoner cunningly by divination, showed that the books were in the pocket of a certain thief and described the man as the thief. The landlady at the latter place said in prisoner's presence, "We have Mr. Shepherd here, a professor and palmist; he says the thief is a short stout man," the alleged thief placed one foot in each side pocket and walked out.

To Mr. Kerr, witness said Shepherd had the hand of a patron in his hand, but dropped it when witness went in.

Another lady then went into the box and said she had had her fortune told last Thursday by Mr. Shepherd. She had heard people talking about him so went to see him. Shepherd asked her and her sister who was with her, if they wanted their fortunes told. Prisoner looked at her hand through a magnifying glass, and said, "You can keep a secret." (Laughter.) She would live a long

"Abe" Hummel, in His Prison Home, Tells His Woes to a Newspaper Man

New York, Dec. 17.—A little, dried-up, faithful old man sat curled in a plain wooden chair in the hospital ward of the men's prison on Blackwell's Island, when a reporter called yesterday, entirely unannounced, at 11:30 a.m. The top of the little man's lonely developed head was bald as the surface of a looking glass. A rim of straight gray hair ran around the border at the base of his skull and was fairly thick and healthy. His legs were ludicrously short for one with such a surprisingly large head but to ease the discomfort that would inevitably result from dangling his feet several inches from the floor a small stool was provided on which he rested them.

The body was ever so short and ever so puny. The eyes of the man were large and they gazed at you, not with a direct glance at their owner talked, but in the furtive, fitful flash of the captive. They sought a spot on the floor while the little wisp of humanity who owned them shifted nervously in the chair that was all too big for him. He had a broad, high-bridged nose. A large mouth, expressive in its every movement was topped with a closely trimmed gray mustache.

OF WEARS THE STRIPES.

He wore a pair of breeches made of the ordinary striped bed-ticking dear to our country homes. The stripes ran up and down, instead of horizontally, which was a rude shock to my traditional idea of the fitness of things in penal places. They were turned up at the bottom, and a pair of 50-cent suspenders held them in place. A soft flannely-kind of summer outing shirt covered the body. A neatly folded white handkerchief peeked out of a pocket on the upper left side. A pair of calf-leather boots enclosed the smallest pair of feet ever seen on an adult man or woman.

This is the picture of Abe Hummel, lawyer employed with success for many years in cases that excited the attention of the country, first-nighter, bon-vivant all-around, Hell-to-Hell fellow, who is serving a term of one year in "the Pen," as it is aptly called, for subornation of perjury in the Dodge-Morse divorce case.

REPORTS OF HIGH JINKS

There have been reports that Hummel is not a sick man, that he is merely "foxing" in the hospital ward, that he is enjoying special privileges and that he comes and goes at will in the big institution up at Hell Gates. All of these tales have been industriously retailed with the inevitable trimmings that such stories usually acquire as they travel. One report had him out on a joyous carouse one night on West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street in the company of an official of the Penitentiary. Another had located him in the vicinity of Saratoga in the closing days of the summer. Still another had him wearing the dandiest kind of clothing, smoking fragrant cigars and taking the air around the Isle de Blackwell whenever the spirit moved him.

"Liest—infamously injuman liest!" bitterly exclaimed Hummel as I recounted briefly some of the rumors that had ventured their way toward Park Row. "Why do my enemies pursue me within these walls? Do they not realize that I am paying the legal penalty for my—— But not a word from me. I want to take my medicine and get over the whole terrible thing as soon as it is possible for me to do so."

ENTER THE BLACK CAT.

The pasty pallor of Hummel's face gave a suggestion of a slight tinge of color as he warmed up in his reply. A black and gray cat bounded across the floor and sprang into his lap, rubbed his nose against the outing shirt and lightly jumped onto the small ward desk at which Hummel sat. The prisoner glanced kindly at the cat and continued.

"I suppose these stories are part of the punishment that every man of former consequence serving a term of imprisonment must endure. Of course the fact that I never smoked in my life should effectually dispose of one of those stories. The tailor-made clothes are tailor-made sure enough, but the tailors are evidently short-termers who have not yet got on to the graceful curves of Jim Bell or Tom Maguire. Hence the fit which you observe to these dainty pants. As for my being out of this institution, it is not only absurd, but it is maliciously brutal to say such a thing."

Dr. McAuliffe, who is in charge of the prison hospital wards—male and female—approached at this juncture. "How are you today?" he said to Hummel, cheerily.

DOESN'T LIKE MEDICINE.

"Oh, I'm all right, Doc," was the instant response. "But I don't like your medicine and I wish you would fix it for me in capsules. It's the worst experience of my day — that medicine," and he glanced at some bottles on a shelf beside the bed.

"Well, I'll see what I can do for you in the capsule line," said the doctor kindly. "Any trouble since I saw you last," he continued.

"Yes," said Hummel. "I had another of those fainting spells, and when I come to they would only open one window. I was nearly suffocated."

"That's too bad," said the doctor, "but you must remember that there are fourteen other patients in this ward and the temperature has to be regulated in the interest of all."

Hummel was plainly on a "fad" subject. "I know the interests of one should not be greater than those of the majority, but some thing ought to be done," said he, pettishly.

Leaped from the Train Farmer Removed 'Cuffs Fugitive was Caught

North Bay, Dec. 19.—Geo. Raymond, ex-fire chief of Blind River, sentenced to seven years in Kingston penitentiary for arson and forgery, escaped last night from the Deputy Sheriff J. Stevenson, and Jailer Hearst of Sault Ste. Marie, whilst en route to Kingston.

Raymond was securely handcuffed, but after leaving North Bay, on the Grand Trunk train he asked his guards to remove the handcuffs, whilst he entered the lavatory. His request was granted, but he failed to return and investigation revealed the fact that Raymond had leaped from the window, taking desperate chances of death, or injury.

Deputy Sheriff Stephenson returned to North Bay this morning without finding any trace of his prisoner, and left for the south again to continue his search.

A report that Raymond has been captured lacks confirmation. When the train arrived at Blair River the town people made a demonstration against Raymond, and the officers feared trouble, but the citizens contented themselves with rejoicing in the fact that the erstwhile firebug was going to receive his deserts.

AGAIN IN CUSTODY.

Later.—Raymond leaped from the train about eight miles from North Bay, and the officers left the train at Callender to search for him. Jailor Hearst located his man at a farm house and brought him to North Bay, taking the next train south.

Raymond appeared at the farm house with the handcuff on one hand. This the farmer removed at Raymond's request, and the fugitive started for the bush. The farmer noticed that Raymond was wounded, and invited him to remain all night. Shortly after Hearst appeared at the farm house, and Raymond's dream of liberty was over.

Declares War Talk is For Partisan Ends-- Big Fleet's Cruise

New York, Dec. 17. — Condemning those who would interpret the movement of the country's battleship squadron to the waters of the Pacific as a warlike demonstration likely to rouse the animosity of the Japanese, Capt. A. T. Mahan, recognized the world over as an authority on naval matters, has furnished to the Scientific American a comprehensive article in which the true significance of the cruise, as naval men generally see it, is made plain.

"Let it be said at once, distinctly and authoritatively," says Capt. Mahan, "that there is no international law, or an international comity, absolutely no ground of offence to any state should another state, neighbor or remote, see fit to move its navy about its own coasts in such a manner as it pleases. Whatever Germany may think of the new destruction of the British navy, she says nothing, but will silently govern her own measures accordingly. The statesmen of Japan, who understand perfectly the proprieties of international relations, know this well, and doubtless retain their composure; but the result of the action of certain of the American press has been to stir up popular feeling in both countries by the implication to the United States government of motives and purposes which cannot be known, and which prima facie are less probable than the object officially avowed. Whether this endeavor to rouse ill blood has been intentional or not is, of course, known only to the editors, but grave ground for suspecting even so unworthy a motive as to injure the national administration is fairly to be inferred in some instances.

IMPORTANCE OF EXPERIENCE.

"Shortly after the purpose to send the fleet to some known, and counter agitation to be made, I had occasion to write to a British naval friend, and I said to him that while I had no clue to the motives of the administration, it seemed to me that a perfectly sufficient reason was the experience to be gained by the fleet in making a long voyage, which otherwise might have to be made for the first time under the pressure of war, and the disadvantage if not having experienced at least once the huge administrative difficulties connected with so distant an expedition by a large body of vessels dependent upon their own resources. Own resources must be understood, not that which each vessel carries in herself, but self-dependence as distinguished from dependence on near navy yards—the measure of peace times. The renewal of stores and coal on the voyage is a big problem, whether the supply vessels accompany the fleet or are directed to join from point to point. It is a problem of combination, and of subsistence, a distinctly military problem. To grapple with such a question is as really practical as is fleet tactics or target practice.

"The word practice covers legitimately many features of naval activity, which differ markedly and even radically from one another, though all conducive to the common end—proficiency. It is imperative that a fleet, for a large proportion of the year, seek retired waters and relatively equable weather, for the purposes of drill with the guns; from the slow gradual instruction of the gunners, the deliberate firing at a stationary target, and from a ship either at rest or slowly moving up through successive accretions of speed, of ship and of discharges, until the extreme test is reached of fast steaming and firing with the utmost quickness with which the guns can be handled.

MUST GAIN CONFIDENCE.

"In like manner the manoeuvring of a body of several ships in rapid movement, changing from one formation to another, for the ultimate purposes of battle, must progress gradually, in order that commanding officers and their understudies may gain, not only ability, but confidence, based upon habit; upon knowledge of what their own ships can do, and what they may expect from other vessels about them. Ships in battle order must keep at distances which, relatively to the speed maintained, are short; dangerously short, except where compensated by the sureness of handling based on long practice.

"The movement of the United States battle fleet from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast is in the highest sense practical, because it is precisely the kind of movement which the fleet of any nation may, and usually will, be required to make in war. It is further practical, because the United States has a Pacific as well as an Atlantic coast and has not a navy large enough to be divided safely between them. The question is at least debatable, whether for the near future the Pacific is not the greater center of world interest; as it certainly is, with regard to our own military necessities, one of greater exposure than the Atlantic. Like France with her Mediterranean and Atlantic shores, the United States is in the painful military dilemma of being liable to attack upon one side while the fleet is on the other; but our distance to be covered is so much greater than that of France that the problem is vastly more embarrassing.

New C.P.R. Line to Montreal Delayed--Will be Double-Tracked

Montreal, Dec. 19.—The Canadian Pacific Railway, while delaying the construction of a new short line between Montreal and Toronto, through the lakefront towns, have no intention of abandoning it. This new line, which would have been pushed forward more rapidly had not the financial stringency rendered necessary the cutting down of new construction work, is intended to be the C.P.R. main line through the Province of Ontario, and it is this line that will ultimately be double-tracked instead of the line now in use.

The present line, according to the officials, does not give anything like the facilities the company desires now that so many branch lines have been constructed in different parts of Ontario.

After the construction of the new line is intended that the present line should be used mainly as a local and freight line.

With the expected improvement in the money market, the work on the new line will likely form part of the new construction work to be taken up during the season of 1908.

A Ton of Real Plum Duff

Toronto, Dec. 18.—Over a ton of plum duff—otherwise plum pudding. It arrived in this city yesterday from England, tied up in all kinds of parcels. And what an atmosphere permeated the whole general post office when the mail bags were opened. It made the clerks think of their Christmas dinner.

It is a yearly custom for the folks "at home" to send out the real article in the line of plum pudding, but this year they outdid themselves. The English mail, which arrived yesterday, weighs close on to two tons, and of this most of it was "puddin'." It was put up in cloths, tied up in regular bags, in towels, packed in boxes. In fact, there was every shape and size in parcel. Most of them were small, but one pudding will supply a Toronto home with the Christmas fare, an extra the sauce. This parcel weighs 12 pounds.

Most of the consignment is destined for Toronto homes, though some will go to outside points.

Yesterday's British mail was considerably heavier than that of the corresponding week of last year. It contained 2,700 parcels, or nearly 100 bags. Besides the pudding, there were Christmas presents of every sort, handkerchiefs, braces, brasses, watches, rings, shoes, hosiery; in a word, it contained samples from every counter of a departmental store.

The Toronto mail for Great Britain was considerably heavier this year also. It has already left, but another is yet to go, though it will not arrive on the other side in time for Christmas.

The only department of the Post office which shows a falling off in the Christmas trade is between Canadian cities. Up to the present it is not up to last year's standard. The money stringency is responsible, but as everybody must buy presents and as only deferring parting with the coin as long as possible, a rush is expected next weeks.

However, all departments of the post office are ready for it, as over 60 additional hands have been employed.

Hatless Ladies Hear Sermon

Winnipeg, Man., December 18.—Rev. J. L. Gordon, of the First Congregational Church, and formerly of the Bond Street Congregational Church, of Toronto, on Sunday night, insisted on every lady in his congregation removing her hat before the service began. This was in accordance with an announcement made last week. The church was crowded, when the minister made his demand. The ladies began to murmur, but finally all removed their bonnets, except four ladies, wearing especially stunning creations of the Gainsborough type, who refused to comply with the order. This is said to be the first instance in the Dominion when ladies attending church have been required to remove their headgear.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

HON. J. ISRAEL TARTE PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Ex-Minister of Public Works Succumbs to Illness --Close of a Spectacular Career in Politics

Montreal, Dec. 18.—J. I. Tarte died at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. Francis De Martigny, here at 2.45 o'clock this afternoon. Nine days ago he fell suddenly unconscious at his residence at Boucherville. He continued very ill for several days, having frequent unconscious spells, and three days ago he was removed to his son-in-law's residence in an unconscious condition. He remained unconscious up to his death.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—The relatives and friends of Hon. J. I. Tarte are quite seriously concerned regarding the illness that has confined him to his bed for some weeks past, and his physicians state his condition is critical. One report says he is dying, and may not live out the day.

For some weeks past Mr. Tarte has been unable to make his regular daily contribution to the editorial pages of La Patrie, and this alone is more than sufficient indication that he is far from being a well man.

NOT 60 YEARS OLD.

Mr. Tarte was born in January, 1848, and is consequently approaching his sixtieth year. Up to about three or four weeks ago he was seen on the streets, but he looked far from well. About two weeks ago he retired to his country residence at Boucherville, thinking the rest and country air would do him good, but he has gradually weakened, until a message from Boucherville reached the city this morning to the effect that he would not likely survive the day.

The ex-minister of public works was certainly a born journalist, and there was not any other kind of work that had anything like the attraction for him as leader writing. Ever since his sensational retirement from the Laurier cabinet, Mr. Tarte has almost daily been at his office in La Patrie building, closely following the different political events and always making interesting comments regarding them. Outplayed in the game of politics, Mr. Tarte managed to retain the ownership of La Patrie, which had been regarded as an organ of the government, and by some as having been bought with funds from the government. When he left politics, Mr. Tarte insisted that he would devote the remainder of his years to journalistic work, but somehow his sons, who were the business managers of the paper, never allowed him as much freedom as he would have liked to have had in his editorial work.

LIBERTY AND SALARY.

In this connection his son, Joe Tarte, tells quite an interesting story of how, one day his father, the Hon. J. I. called him into his office and frankly told him that he would prefer to receive a smaller salary and have more freedom in his works, but the son in reply stated that they would very much sooner make a further increase in his salary and make a still further reduction in his liberty of speech. They considered it would be in the best interests of the paper.

MADE SOME ENEMIES.

Although Hon. Mr. Tarte was the Liberal leader in the Province of Quebec for Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he did not have the knack of keeping his friends and even made very bitter enemies in his own camp. In addition, there were strong Liberals to take his place in the Montreal district when he stepped down and out of the cabinet. He was one of the first Liberals to come out in favor of protection for Canadian manufacturers, and although out of the government he has had the pleasure of seeing much of his platform gradually adopted.

219th Anniversary of Closing of the Gates of Derry Celebrated

The 219th anniversary of the closing of the gates of Derry, was fittingly celebrated by the members of Royal Black Preceptory No. 261, last night, when the sixth annual banquet of the order was held in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street. The success of the affair was eminently satisfactory; the high standard established in the past being surpassed by the completeness of the arrangements and the happy manner in which they were carried out. A splendid dinner, well served, an attendance of seventy-five loyal knights and a host of bright interesting speeches all contributed to make the evening long to be remembered by those fortunate enough to be present, and the committee in charge are to be congratulated upon the splendid success which attended their efforts.

Sir W. H. G. Armstrong made a splendid chairman and about seventy five were present, including knights and visiting members of other lodges.

The dinner was in charge of Messrs. Coleman Bros., and they excelled themselves in the array of good things provided, and the splendid service given. Following was the menu:—

Tomato Soup.

Forced Turkey.	Stuffed Goose.
Potatoes.	Peas.

Plum Pudding, with Cream Brandy Sauce.

Cream Cake.	Wine Jellies.
Cheese.	Celery.
Fruit.	Nuts.
Black Coffee	Tea

After ample justice had been done to this repast an interesting toast list was honored. All the speakers acquitted themselves well and made patriotic bright speeches in which many reference were made to the occasion which was being celebrated, the heroic defence of Derry, 219 years ago.

The toast list was as follows:

THE KING.
The Chairman.

CHARTER.

Many Doc'ors Failed

Dr. Hamilton Again Figures in a Case that Puzzled Other Physicians.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 1.—When the treatment of Mrs. Stanley, of 143 Argyle st., was first given it caused no small comment, and again establishes that a physician who understands his profession none excel Dr. Hamilton.

"For years," says Mrs. Stanley, "I have suffered greatly from a peculiar dragging weakness that resulted from pleurisy and asthma. Doctors prescribed but failed to advise anything of real benefit. A friend urged me to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut and I bought five boxes. They gave me renewed strength and energy, toned my stomach, enriched my blood, and supplied just what my system needed. No medicine could have benefited more than Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I believe every woman would be helped enormously by using these pills regularly. They did me more lasting good than all the prescriptions I took in five years."

No man or woman in poor health ever used Dr. Hamilton's Pills without benefit; the depressed, ailing and weak they uplift and strengthen as a trial always proves.

A False Report

Last evening news spread about the city to the effect that there was a big wreck on the G.T.R. near Auburn, and that many passengers were injured and some killed. This rumor was false, however. It appears that as the 5.20 train was coming in from Lakefield, and when opposite the Auburn mills, a rail spread and the engine jumped the track as well as one of the coaches. Some of the cars were badly damaged, but fortunately there was no loss of life.

Was Arrested for Bigamy

Mr. Wallie Kennedy was arrested last night on a charge of bigamy. A warrant was issued from Trenton for his arrest.

Union Trust Co. After Mr. Fowler

Toronto, Dec. 16.—The British Columbia timber and mills deal, which figured so prominently before the Royal Commission on insurance, is about to come into the courts again. The Union Trust Company has notified Mr. Geo. W. Fowler, M.P., and others directly interested in the deal, that the company is about to institute proceedings to recover "$60,000 money had and received by the defendants to the use of the plaintiffs and interest thereon, and for an accounting, or in the alternative, for damages for the same amount for conspiracy to defraud."

In the inquiry before the royal commission it was stated that Mr. Peter Ryan sold to Mr. Fowler, M.P., for $170,000 the timber and other property included in the transaction. When the transfer of the property was being arranged for it was said that Mr. Fowler asked that the amount be made $225,000 as the bona fide price paid for the property, which was being secured for the Union Trust Company.

It appeared to the Union Trust Company from the evidence given before the Royal Commission that the Company had to pay $55,000 more for the property than it actually cost. Messrs. Buster and Hunter, who are acting for the Union Trust Company in the case, decline to discuss the matter.

ANOTHER TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY

The report that English and United States capitalists are at the back of another transcontinental project in Canada has aroused not a little interest in the west.

The project, which is not an entirely new one, having received considerable attention after the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway, involves the construction of a line three hundred miles farther north than any other in existence, or projected, running from Fort Churchill, on Hudson Bay, to Port Simpson, on the Pacific. The railway would be close on fifteen hundred miles in length, and would run south of Lake Athabasca, through the Fort William and Peace River country, where there is reason to believe is one of great fertility. Though so far north, it is claimed that the climate of this region is milder and more equable than in the settled portions of Alberta and Saskatchewan; that the level land is swept by the chinook winds, the Japan current giving to the coast a sub-tropical warmth, and that a far less serious barrier to construction is offered by the mountains of that region than was encountered by the builders of the great transcontinental lines farther south. The British Columbia portion of the line would be through the three great divisions of Cariboo, Omineca and Cassiar, believed to be rich in precious metals, coal and iron.

David M. May, a former special agent in Alaska of the United States Government is one of the projectors of the road. He has spent sixteen years in the country investigating its resources, and claims that, besides the minerals in the country, such a railway might be expected to develop half a million square miles of the best wheat land in the world, farms yielding as high as forty bushels to the acre. Another and most important advantage claimed is that the projected line offers the prospect of an imperial highway of great value, as it would shorten by over two thousand miles the distance between Liverpool and Yokahama.

Of course, as the Montreal Herald points out, the feasibility of such a railway depends upon whether Hudson's Bay is navigable six months of the year, as many believe. That being satisfactorily demonstrated, the project will have much to commend it. As yet no charter has been applied for, but it may be taken for granted that whether the present promoters are in earnest or not, when the need for such a railway is demonstrated beyond all doubt, the means for constructing it will be found.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE THIRD TERM

The majority of the people of the United States do not appear to be surprised to learn that President Roosevelt has not weakened in his determination not to accept a renomination. They regard him as an honest man and as a patriotic statesman. It would be hard, if not impossible, for a man holding his views, to repudiate his own solemn declaration and acquiesce in a renomination. He does not believe in third terms for presidents, and he is a man of his word.

Third term talk came not only from the president's most enthusiastic admirers, but from the business clique which is most bitterly opposed to him, and from a coterie of politicians whose political activity may have been inspired in many cases by one candidate for the nomination. In other instances it was due to the desire of office holders, especially those from the "rotten boroughs" in the south, to secure a lot of delegates nominally for Roosevelt, but deliverable to a candidate who would promise jobs for their votes. If the president's announcement had been delayed they might have been successful in their plan. If he were nothing else, Mr. Roosevelt would be reckoned a shrewd politician. At the proper juncture he has blocked the tactics of the gum shoe gentry who were masquerading as his supporters and given the lie to the eminent citizens who have said that he was "playing hide and seek" with the American people.

He has not acted in the interest of any single candidate. He has done the candid and decent thing, and his action will tend to clear the political situation. There will be no question of a third term, and the issues before the republican convention will be the candidate and the platform on which he will stand.

Britain's Sea Strength Is Now Enormous

London, Dec. 19.—At present the total effective warship tonnage of the principal nations, according to the secretary's report, is as follows:—Great Britain, 1,632,116; United States, 611,616; France, 608,079; Germany, 539,632; Japan, 374,701; Russia, 252,943; Italy, 207,623; Austria, 113,235.

The present program in the United States calls for seven new first-class battleships, which are being built, two armoured cruisers and three small cruisers, five torpedo boat destroyers, and seven submarines. The personnel of U.S. navy now consists of: Flag officers, 18; captains and commanders, 182; other line officers and engineers, 751; medical officers, 282; pay officers, 210; warrant officers, 633; enlisted men, 24,662; marine officers, 277; enlisted men, (marines), 8,147.

Although some of the vessels now attached to the battleship fleet were designed more than ten years ago, the majority are of later date, and are favorably comparable with the best types of battleships of the same period of design now in commission in foreign navies.

The secretary advises that the laws in punishment of deserters from the navy be made less severe. A good many of the boys run away in moments of temptation or because of homesickness, and owing to the hard punishment awaiting them are afraid to return when they have time to take the second thought. He says there are practically no desertions in time of war.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

Dr. S. E. Dawson, King's Printer, Ottawa, says:—'World Wide' is a relief to busy men. 'World Wide' is the only paper which I read without skipping.

The Rev. C. C. and Mrs. Dobbs, Manitoba, write:—To be a regular reader of 'World Wide' is to partake of the intellectual life of the present day.

Seven Paths Lure Girls to Evil Life

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Dr. Charels R. Henderson, chaplain of the University of Chicago, in an address prepared for the Chicago Political Equality League tonight catalogued seven paths by which a girl can be led into a life of evil. He declared that cases were not uncommon where girls from large families were sold for a price.

These are the seven means of temptation which he lists:

1. Disease verging on insanity, a rare condition, but frightful in consequence when it does occur.

2. Degredation of the family; by this is meant the sale of girls by members of the family.

3. To schools and at recess, for want of control and supervision of healthful exercises; the basements of Chicago school buildings are often contributory to such conditions.

4. Work-shops, factories and department stores; from these spring low wages, youthful indiscretions and love of amusements and pleasure.

5. Deliberate temptations by men in saloons, wine rooms, boarding-houses and hotels.

6. Importations from other communities, agents from resorts luring girls arriving at the railroad stations.

7. Importations from foreign countries.

"I know of four ways of prevention," said Dr. Henderson. "First, the Federal Government should work foreign governments on fighting the importation of evil with laws which are co-operative. Secondly, there should be co-operation between the city police and the courts in protecting girls of seventeen and under from danger of being lecured. Then there should be more voluntary associations for guarding immigrant girls and escorting them to proper places for room and board. Lastly, mothers should be educated to advise and watch over their daughters."

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1003 patients admitted. Of these 378 came from 284 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.31 each per day, or $62.22 for the 47½ days stay.

BANDAGE

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 79 cases of club feet treated last year. Out of the 79, about 60 were from the country.

BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

DORA DEANE

OR THE [illegible] INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

angry flash of the black eyes, which, it seems, had failed to interest Stephen Grey, who was far better pleased with the unassuming Alice, and who had paid the haughty Eugenia no attention whatever, except, indeed, to plant his patent-leather boot upon one of her lace flounces, tearing it half off and leaving a sad rent which could not well be mended. This, then, was the cause of her wrath, which continued for some time, when really wishing to talk over the events of the evening she became a little more gracious, and asked Alice how she liked Mrs. Elliott, who had unexpectedly arrived from New York.

"I was delighted with her," returned Alice; "she was such a perfect lady. And hadn't she magnificent hair! Just the color of Dora's," she added, glancing at the little cropped head, which had been so suddenly divested of its beauty.

"It wasn't all hers, though," answered Eugenia, who invariably saw and spoke of every defect. "I heard her telling Ella that she bought a braid in Rochester as she came up. But what ails you?" she continued, speaking now to Dora, whose eyes sparkled with some unusual excitement and who replied:

"You said Mrs. Elliott from New York. And that was the name of the lady who was so kind to me. Oh, if I only thought it were she, I'd——"

"Make yourself ridiculous, I dare say," interrupted Eugenia, adding, that "there was more than one Mrs. Elliott in the world, and she'd no idea that so elegant a lady as Mr. Hastings' sister ever troubled herself to look after folks in such a miserable old hovel as the one where Dora had lived."

This, however, did not satisfy the child, who, during the visit of Mrs. Elliott remained in the garret-school, cast many longing glances in the direction of Rose Hill, gazing out with tearful eyes upon a female figure which sometimes walked upon the balcony, and which perhaps was her benefactress. One night it was told at Locust Grove that Mrs. Elliott had gone, and then, with a feeling of desolation for which she could not account, Dora again laid her face on the old green trunk and wept.

Poor Dora Deane! The path she trod was dark indeed, but there was light ahead, and even now it was breaking upon her, though she knew it not.

CHAPTER IX.

[illegible] was over. The glorious [illegible] days were gone. The hazy [illegible] had passed away and the autumn winds had swept the withered leaves from the tall trees which grew around Rose Hill; when one cold, rainy November morning a messenger was sent to Mrs. Deane, saying that Mrs. Hastings was sick and wished to see her.

"Mrs. Hastings sent for mother! How funny! There must be some mistake," said Eugenia, putting her head in at the door. "Are you sure it was mother?"

"Yes, quite sure," answered the man. "Mrs. Hastings thought she would know what to do for the baby, which was born yesterday, and is a puny little thing."

This silenced Eugenia, who waited impatiently until nightfall, when her mother returned with a sad account of affairs at Rose Hill. Mrs. Hastings was sick and nervous, Mrs. Leah was lazy and cross, the servants ignorant and impertinent, the house was in disorder; while Mr. Hastings, with a cloud on his face ill befitting a newly-made father, stalked up and down the sickroom looking in vain for an empty chair, so filled were they with blankets, towels, baby's dresses, and the various kinds of work which Ella was always beginning and never finishing.

"Such an ignorant, helpless creature I never saw," said Mrs. Deane. "Why, she don't know anything—and such looking rooms! I don't wonder her servants give her so much trouble; but my heart ached for him, poor man, when I saw him putting away the things, and trying to make the room a little more comfortable."

It was even as Mrs. Deane had said. Ella, whose favorite theory was "a big house, a lot of things, and chairs enough to put them in," was wholly unprepared for sickness, which found her in a sad condition. To be sure, there were quantities of French embroidery, thread lace, and fine linen, while the bed on which she lay cost a hundred dollars, and the rosewood crib was perfect of its kind, but there was a great lack of neatness and order; and as day after day Mr. Hastings stood with folded arms, looking from from one window and then from the other, his thoughts were far from being agreeable, save when he bent over the cradle of his firstborn, and then there broke over his face a look of unutterable tenderness, which was succeeded by a shade of deep anxiety as his eye rested upon his frail young wife, whose face seemed whiter even than the pillow on which it lay.

After a few weeks, during which time Ella had gained a little strength and was able to see her friends, Eugenia came regularly to Rose Hill, sitting all day by the bedside of the invalid, to whom she sometimes brought a glass of water or some such trivial thing. Occasionally, too, she would look to see if the baby were asleep, pronouncing it "a perfect little cherub, just like its mother"; and there her services ended, for it never occurred to her that she could make the room much more cheerful by picking up and putting away the numerous articles which lay scattered around, and which were a great annoyance to the more orderly Mr. Hastings. Once when Ella, as usual, was expatiating upon her goodness, asking her husband if she were not the best girl in the world, and saying "they must make her some handsome present in return for all she had done," he replied, "I confess, I should think more of Miss Deane, if she did you any real good, or rendered you any actual service; but, as far as I can discover, she merely sits here talking to you until you are wearied out."

"Why, Howard!" exclaimed Ella, in mild surprise, her large blue eyes growing larger and bluer.

"I hardly know myself," answered Mr Hastings; "but it seems to me that a genuine woman could not sit day after day in such a disorderly room as this."

"Oh, Howard!" exclaimed Ella, "you surely cannot expect Eugenia Deane to do a servant's duty. Why, she has been as delicately brought up as I, and knows quite as little of work."

"More shame for her if this is true," answered Mr Hastings somewhat bitterly, and Ella continued, "You've got such queer ideas, Howard, of woman's duties. I should suppose you would have learned ere this that few ladies are like your mother, who, though a blessed sweet soul, has the oddest notions."

"But they make a man's home mighty comfortable, those odd notions of mother's," said Mr. Hastings then, knowing how useless it would be to argue the point, he was about changing the subject, when the new nurse, who had been there but a few days (the first one having quarreled with Mrs. Leah and gone home), came in and announced her intention of leaving also, saying, "she would not live in the same house with old mother Leah."

It was in vain that Mr. Hastings tried to soothe the angry girl—he was determined, and for a second time was Ella left alone.

"Oh, what will become of me?" she groaned as the door closed upon her late nurse. "Do, pray, Howard, go to the kitchen and get me some some—I don't know what, but get me something!"

With a very vague idea as to what he was to get or to do, Mr. Hastings left the room just as it was entered by Eugenia, to whom Ella detailed her grievances. "Her head" ached dreadfully. Howard was cross, and her nurse gone. Oh, Eugenia!" she cried, "what shall I do? I wish I could die. Don't ever get married. What shall I do?"

And hiding her face in the pillow, poor Ella sobbed bitterly. For a time Eugenia stood revolving the propriety of offering Dora as a substitute in the place of the girl who had just left. "Mother can work a little harder," she thought. "And Alice can help her occasionally. It will please Mr. Hastings, I know. Poor man, I pity him!"

So, more on account of the pity she felt for Mr. Hastings than for the love she bore his wife, she said

The scent of the camel for water is said to be very keen. He can smell it a great way off, and oftentimes the travelers who are suffering for water will let the camel take his own way and he will take them to a place where water may be found.

Miles Darden.

Darden, Tenn., takes its name after Miles Darden, who in his time was believed to be the biggest man in the world. He was six feet seven inches high, wore a No. 12 shoe and a No. 12 hat, and his top weight is said to have reached 900 pounds. His gigantic wearing apparel is still preserved by the family.

Born of a Fire.

In 1847 the city of Carlsruhe had a theater fire by which sixty-three lives were lost. This led to the formation in the neighboring town of Durlachs of the first volunteer fire company in Germany.

Dogs as Draft Animals.

The use of dogs for the purposes of draft was abolished, as regards London, by an act of parliament passed in August, 1839, and the prohibition was extended to all parts of the United Kingdom in July, 1864.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this long-tortured disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We will, and in confidence recommend

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 531 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunnelling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on so extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $21.00 to $1,600 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. M. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent. copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Italian Shanty Burnt Down

On Saturday morning when the seven Italians engaged in digging clay near Drummond's station for the Lakefield Cement Company, had left the shanty, provided for their accommodation, to go to work as usual, it caught fire and was burned. ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Committed for Trial

time and would make a good impression. Prisoner spoke to her about massage. Asked her if she did not want her hair treated. He said she would live from 65 to 68 years of age.

This ended the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Kerr for the defence, said that no case of fortune telling had been made by the evidence given. To make a case here would be to go back to the old days of witchcraft.

His worship, however, said that prisoner had evidently told and advertised that he told fortunes. All these men who tell fortunes and take money for such purposes are swindlers. He committed him for trial at the higher court.

Mr. Wood then remarked that there was another charge against the prisoner.

The prisoner was then charged with having seduced on or about Dec. 1st, a girl named Mary Twincliffe.

The first witness, Mary Twinciffe, said she lives in Hastings, but has been working about a month ago at the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Belleville. She went to get her fortune told, whilst there by prisoner. Prisoner was at a room in the Y.M.C.A. building, she had her fortune told by prisoner. Prisoner said there were six lines he could not read; he would however put powder on his hand to raise the lines up. Maggie Pearson another employe of the D. & D. Institute was with her. She went back alone next evening. He said nothing about the powder that day. Prisoner said he would like to marry her. Prisoner made love to her and kissed her. Later on prisoner called on her at the institute and kissed her whilst in the dining room. She met him the next Monday at his room in the Y.M.C.A. Her witness identified a letter written on Nov. 26th to her by prisoner and produced in court. (This inflammatory epistle fairly reeked with love and kisses.) Another similar epistle dated on the 27th, was produced and identified. Still six more letters, some posted twice on the same day were brought into court. At prisoner's room at the Y.M.C.A. the second Sunday after meeting him, he committed the crime, and took her to the institute about 5 a.m. She was eighteen years old last June. She had been a good girl before. Prisoner had accomplished his purpose previously. Prisoner had promised to marry her the first time.

Here Mr. Wood remarked, "I don't think there is any use in carrying this matter on any further; it is simply a case of mutual consent.

This case against Shepherd was then dismissed. The magistrate said the prisoner was evidently a blackguard who ought to be hounded out of the country.

MADAME AYRE.

Madame Ayre was then called upon to plead against a charge of fortune telling.

R. P. McWilliams appeared for the prisoner and elected to have summary trial. He claimed that no specific charge had been made in the information as to time or person. He quoted certain cases from the court of appeals in support of his contention.

The magistrate noted his objection.

The first witness called was a member of the Examiner staff, who testified to an advertisement in that paper, headed "palmistry." The adv. was put in by Madame Ayres, who brought the copy with her. It was put in for one week and then renewed.

Fred Newhall said he saw Madame Ayre's advertisement in the Examiner and as he has had troubles in the past, he went to see Madame Ayres. He did not go by request of his brother, P. C. Newhall; in fact his brother threatened to subpoena him if he did go to see Mrs. Ayres. He went to 330 Water street, and met the madame at the door, and had his fortune told by her. Madame Ayre told him to put out his hands and then examined them without touching them. She told his fortune. She said he must be careful in the future. From his hands she said he was thinking of going west and would do better if he went. She said he was a great fellow for horses.

After other witnesses had been heard P. C. Newhall said he went to this soothsayer's and detailed his experience. He did not have his fortune told. She told him her charge was 50 cents. She said his palms had fine lines. She noted that he had a scar (which he admitted) on one of his legs. He paid her 50 cents.

For the defence, Mayor McWilliams thought the crown should drop the case.

Mr. Wood said, "We don't propose to drop the case."

His worship remarked, "Well I think there is sufficient evidence in this case."

After Mr. McWilliams had made a strong appeal for his client, the magistrate remarked, "I think a case of humbug has been 'proven.'"

His worship referred to the last defendant who took money to defraud the community. The whole matter was the taking of money under false pretences.

Mr. Wood claimed that the taking of money for such matters was an indictable offence.

The magistrate in summing up said that the defendant, a quick-eyed woman, could easily size up her patrons and thus tell their fortunes. He imposed a fine of $50 or two months in jail.

Mr. McWilliams claimed that the woman could get the money in four or five days. His worship said the town would be better without this class of swindlers. So unless the lady "puts up," she will spend some 60 days in Castle Newbitt.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in restored comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mother, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

FORTUNE TELLER'S FINE PAID BY SYMPATHIZER

Madame Ayres Released--Young Man Goes About and Collects Sufficient Cash to Pay the Fine

In our issue of yesterday we had a long and original report of the trial of a Madame Ayres, who was charged with and convicted of selling fortunes and in consequence fined $50 with the alternative of two months in jail. This seeming soothsayer who could apparently count or foretell the future of scores of to use a slang word not applied individually but specifically and generally—"suckers," who bit as much, per fate, had among her patrons a relative of one of the local officers.

It seems that the officer himself had suspected the fortune brother of his was intending to call on the reader of mystery and advised him to cut such things out. However, the younger brother, stopping through a rear store, after consulting the more staid and experienced relative went to this diviner of the future and, after paying in his good coin got his fortune told. Alas and alack, the senior relative, thinking more of duty than relationship, had the seeker for intelligence from the realms of black art subpoenaed.

The younger relative seemingly despondingly or possibly-not-in-pique after madame Ayres was placed behind the cold and relentless gray coning stone walls of Castle Nesbitt, undertook and succeeded in getting a subscription list signed for the full amount of the $50 fine. At about noon yesterday the soothsayer or palmist, or, call you what you like the woman who took good hard earned money from poor girls and others was released. We have no spite or individual feeling against this particular fortune teller, but it is up to the better class of the press of Canada, although thousands of dollars in advertising are thus lost, that might be made whilst editors, managers, etc., are singing psalms in church, still this paper believes in protecting young men and women of older men or women who are keen to throw their money in the hungry maws of every or any kind who has something new, or a new presentation of a swindle that was old when Pharoah used parley with his brother over the flesh blocks or tops in Egypt.

The All Red Route Plan a Live Issue

Montreal, December 19.—That the question of the establishment of a mail route through Canada from Great Britain to Australia and the Far East, the All-Red Route, as it is known, is still a very live issue, is again shown by the presence in this city of Sir Thomas Troubridge, of London, Eng. He is the head of the All-Red Route Syndicate, and will spend several weeks in Canada in the interests of the corporation. He stated that the syndicate is ready and willing to finance the scheme and that the plans for the necessary vessels have already been completed.

Sir Thos. Troubridge called at the C. P. R. and Grand Trunk offices during the day and had interviews with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and Mr. Charles M. Hayes, beside talking all-red route matters in detail with Sir George Drummond and Mr. Robert Reford. As to the competition which the Black Sea project is claimed to offer to the existing lines, Sir Thomas said that such a contention would not hold water.

The passenger business between Great Britain and Canada, he said, had increased 25 per cent. the past year and the increase would be 100 per cent. by the time their boats would be ready. No one, he said, could over-estimate the amount of travel between the old land and the Dominion in a few years, as out of every fifty thousand new settlers who come into Western Canada at least ten thousand of these will go home once a year and a good many will even go more frequently. The question of business, he believed, need not be discussed, as all the public wanted is a good rapid service and the patronage will not be lacking.

Backache is Nature's Danger Signal

Prescription If Taken in Time Prevents Kidney Disease.

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slight at form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first-class physician. Have latest medicines alone.

There are many of the lesser symptoms of kidney trouble which can be treated at home as stated by a well-known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency, (especially at night) painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce. Compound Kargen one ounce. Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no better general remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism either, because it goes right to work the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

POLICE

At yesterday's session of the police court a local young man, responded to the serious charge of bigamy.

Mr. G. Gordon appeared for the prisoner, and stated to his worship that in case the statement of the defence was accepted, he would plead guilty. Mr. R. E. Wood, for the crown, explained that in such cases it was usual for to plead and then give the statement and if his worship did not then accept it, he could change the plea.

Mr. Gudrou then on behalf of his client pleaded guilty and elected summarily trial.

It appears that in the month of October last the defendant married a woman in Hastings county, having at the time a wife residing in Peterborough. The second wife procured the license, and when the young man was in a state of intoxication took him to a minister and had the ceremony performed.

The prisoner was remanded for a week and in the meantime, Chief Ingrezol will communicate with the chief of police where wife number two resides.

Presentation to Mr. R. M. Dennistoun

The Ketchum Hunt Club yesterday forwarded Mr. R. M. Dennistoun of Winnipeg, an attractive Christmas present in the shape of an artistic booklet of scenes of their annual camp during the hunting season. On the outside is a picture of Mr. Dennistoun and one of his favorite hunting dogs.

No Raise In P. O. Box Rentals

Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster, received the following message yesterday from Dr. R. M. Coulter, deputy postmaster general, Ottawa:

"Box rents to those living outside of city limits (who do not enjoy letter carrier delivery to be same as before; writing you today."

It will be remembered that the post office authorities here were notified that the rent would be doubled. This was felt to be an injustice to farmers who received no benefit from free street delivery. The city clerk communicated with the department at Ottawa. Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., also took the question up.

English Grain Men Predict Return to Wheat Prices of the Seventies--Big Advance

London, December 19.—That the wheat crop of 1907 will fall short of that of 1906 by some 50,000 quarters in Britain, is the opinion of many prominent grain men in London.

It is also figured that the wheat importing countries of Europe will require between August 1, 1907, to July 31, 1908, about 63,000,000 quarters, whereas the wheat exporting countries of the world will have only about 61,-600,000 quarters, thus leaving a shortage of some 1,400,000 quarters for that period.

It is predicted by many conservative dealers that England will in the near future return to the position she was in during the early seventies, when wheat brought 56 shillings the quarter.

Local Walking Expert Offers Explanation

The following letter was yesterday received by The Times, which sufficiently explains itself.

(Sporting Editor Times.)

Dear Sir,—As you know, some jam-my portrait and my past record. The ostensible reason of these cards being issued, was that they were sold for my ultimate benefit. Now, Sir, I never authorized the publication of those pamphlets, I had nothing to do with them. But, Sir, the main point involved is that I have never yet seen one cent of the money taken in for these cards sold at 25 cents each on the strength of my past small accomplishments on the road. Now Sir, I think that it is time the public is put wise to the fact that I neither authorized the publication of these cards, nor have I either had a cent from them nor, do I from present conditions expect to get a cent.

—Don't forget that the Times Book store puts name in gold free on every leather article at 50 cents or over.

Fly-Paper Started Trouble

New York, Dec. 19.—The marital difficulties of Louis Keller, a hotel keeper of Eastchester, were well aired yesterday morning in the course of an application made to Supreme Court Justice Keough, at New Rochelle, for alimony and counsel fee by Keller's wife, Carrie, who is suing him for separation.

According to an affidavit submitted by Keller, a piece of flypaper started the trouble. Also, according to the same affidavit, this is the fifth time he has committed matrimony. According to his wife, it is his fourth attempt.

Keller's affidavit set forth that his first wife died in 1885, his second in 1887, his third in 1890 and this fourth in April of this year. Immediately after her decease, according to his affidavit, Keller "got the notion that it would be a good thing to marry a respectable woman of advanced years who would be a helpmate in the hotel business."

Keller advertised and also commissioned his daughter to look around. Finally through an advertisement he got into correspondence with Mrs. Carrie Martens, of Highhill, and after the exchange of a letter or two directed her to call on his daughter, who lives in Hoboken. Keller's affidavit continues;

"On September 11, 1907, Mrs. Martens came to my place alone. We talked in a general way about matters, when to my surprise my daughter arrived with a boquet of flowers. I asked her what it was for and she said; "This is for the bride. I understand the wedding is today." I said I don't know about that; I will think it over."

"Then my daughter and Mrs. Martens had some conversation between them, and then my daughter told me to hurry up as Mrs. Marten's sons would arrive every minute and also a parson, and what was I to do. Then Mrs. Martens led me aside, and then the sons came and the parson, and we got married in the parlor."

"A few days later," continued the affidavit, "she removed old family pictures and replaced them with pictures of her dead husband. I objected, saying she should have put at least asked me."

The affidavit then comes to the fly-paper. Mrs. Keller, her husband swears, placed it all through the house a week after they were married so that every time he moved he got caught on a piece.

"I told her that at that season of the year there should be no fly-paper. She created a terrific scene and became very violent. She carried on in such a fashion that I was too frightened to even answer her as she is a powerful woman. She then swore she would fix me for good."

Mrs. Keller left Keller's bed and board shortly after the flypaper episode and sued him for a separation. In her complaint she hints darkly that she doesn't want to be the fourth wife of a man whose first five wives died close together.

Justice Keogh awarded her $75 counsel fee yesterday, but refused her application for alimony.

Public Houses Crowded with Women

WORKING GIRLS' DRINKING CLUB

Shocking Condition of Affairs in England

London, Dec. 19.—Startling revelations of the harm done by secret drinking clubs among factory girls were made at a meeting of Birmingham employers.

A committee which had been inquiring into the matter reported that such clubs exist to a large extent, generally without the knowledge of employers, but sometimes with the consent of the foremen or forewomen, and even with their encouragement. These clubs are formed for the purpose:

(a) Of surreptitiously getting drink into the factories, to be consumed in tea and in other ways.

(b) Of celebrating birthdays, marriages, and other social events connected with the factories.

(c) Of habitually drinking together in public houses and other places after leaving work, and on public holidays, especially Christmas.

These clubs are seriously affecting the moral character of many of our female workers, says the report.

"By weakening their sense of self-respect. By degrading their general habits of life, by unfitting them for the responsibilities of motherhood."

The committee suggest that if adequate rules were placed in prominent positions in the factories, and were rigidly enforced, the evil, which is more widespread than many imagine, would be arrested, and the interests of both employers and work people would be therefore protected.

SOME GET PERMISSION.

Canon Denton Thompson, rector of Birmingham, who presided at the meeting, said that girls and women were invited, encouraged, and even coerced into joining drinking clubs for which the weekly subscription was from 1d to 3d. Sometimes collections were made for the purpose generally by someone in authority at the factory. In some parts of the city the public houses were crowded by girls and women directly the works were closed. Drink was taken into some factories surreptitiously, in others permission was actually given for the girls to have it.

Sometimes the drink was put surreptitiously in the tea served in the factories, and in one case under his notice it was even introduced in a some toffee made at the factory and handed round to the girls. All the girls employed were expected to join these clubs, and were persecuted if they refused.

In some factories—he was glad to say that they were few—permission was even granted by the foremen or forewomen for what could only be termed carousals in the factory itself. "I know it is a very serious statement to make," he continued, "but I say that we have very good reason to believe that persons in authority have been commissioned by certain licensed houses to organize these drinking bouts with a view to encouraging these drinking clubs among girls."

The seventy or eighty thousand factory girls in Birmingham had arduous and irksome lives, and this physical and moral degradation could not be in the interests of the employer. By putting down such clubs they would be looking to the material interests of the city.

Local Fair's Date Not Yet Decided

The Peterborough Fair directors had fixed on the 3rd Wednesday in January for holding their annual meeting. Still President Leary seems to say that this meeting will be held earlier.

Much important business will be considered at this meeting. Among other matters to be decided upon is the advisability of having Saturday as one of the days upon which to hold the fair this year. It will be endeavored to have the days arranged so they will not in any way conflict with those of other fairs in surrounding places. The announcement of the date of the annual meeting will be made through the medium of the local press.

Japan in Manchuria

Pekin, December 19.—The policy of Japan in China is threatening to bring about a new crisis in Manchuria affairs, and as a result of the course pursued by the Tokio Government there is danger of Russia cancelling the Russo-Chinese telegraph convention signed last October. The failure of China to conclude a corresponding agreement with Japan will have the effect of annulling the agreement made by China with Russia, and it may result in a Russo-Japanese convention, under the terms of which China will be excluded from the Manchurian telegraph traffic in the same way that the Russo-Japanese postal agreement resulted in the possession of the Manchurian postal service by these two powers. Japan to-day has ten telegraph stations in Manchuria in violation of the treaty, and she has also committed other acts of aggression.

The Pekin Government is being urged by Japan to relieve the Manchurian financial situation by means of loans to the native banks.

Fell and Broke His Arm

On Saturday, Andrew Munn, a lumberman for the Cavendish Lumber Co., fell on Charlotte street, and broke his right arm two inches above the wrist. He was removed to St. Joseph's hospital, and Dr. Leach was called to set the fracture. The arm was swollen and very painful, and it was necessary to administer chloroform. He is still confined in the hospital, but is recovering.

Mr. Lemieux was last night tendered a farewell banquet by leading citizens and officials.

Pittsburg, Dec. 17.—Working under the guise of a gardener, the Rev. J. W. McKay, pastor of the fashionable Cumberland Presbyterian church has effected the conversion of 230 of the 400 inmates of the State Reform school at Morganza.

While he worked about the institution he talked to the inmates, whose ages range from ten to twenty years, and gradually got them interested in religion. If the children wanted to sing popular songs instead of hymns at the meetings they were allowed to do so. If they preferred a story to a sermon they got it.

Dr. McKay abandoned his pastorate for a time to take up the mission, after an appeal from the superintendent of the reform school, who held that religion could be coaxed, but not forced into the inmates' heads. All of the converts have joined churches.

Paris, Dec. 17.—Count Boni de Castellane seems to have regained his social prestige, at least in the noble royalist circles into which he was born and which he has ornamented so highly.

Count Boni was welcomed at the fetes given to Queen Amelie of Portugal at the castles of those who hope to see a king in France. He was a guest at the luncheon which the Duchess of Luynes gave in the Queen's honor, and the Queen invited him to dine with her and her suite.

New York will Never Go Dry

New York, Dec. 20.—New Yorkers are sane. Neither this city nor this State will ever go "dry."

Does any one imagine that it is possible to keep people from drinking if they want to drink? Are they stopping the proper use of liquor and beer in the big civilized cities like London, Paris, Berlin or Vienna? Is New York so foolish as to try to stop it? Certainly not.

Take our German population for example. Are they drunkards? Absolutely not!

I have been twice in Germany very recently. Neither time did I see a drunken man in either the streets or in a public place. And why not? Because the Germans have learned to control themselves from the start. The Americans can learn self-control, too, if they wish it.

What is obtained by prohibiting the sale of liquor? The temperance people can say, if they will, that it will put a stop to drunkenness, but this is not sustained by the facts in other countries.

Suppose we prohibit the liquor and beer traffic? What is to become of the great industries that have been built under sanction of the law? Are we going to put them out of business overnight? Are we going to throw thousands, hundreds of thousands, out of work, and render millions of dollars of property useless?

Is drinking in moderation any worse than absolute temperance? Does not our modern life demand some stimulant? Or shall we take it in the form of drugs and patent medicines, reeking with morphine or 68 per cent. alcohol?

Local prohibition by assembly districts in a great city would never commend itself to the public. It would give certain districts an ominous name. It would make the city half wet and half dry. It would create feeling. It would not be for the benefit of the community.

I believe in a rational law for Sunday. In Germany a man may get his glass of beer on Sunday as on any other day in the week. There it is family drinking.

Believe me, if there were more family drinking in this country there would be less drunkenness.

A man doesn't go into a public place with his family to make a hog of himself. People go to such places for amusement and they take their drinks incidentally. Let us have more family drinking, by all means, but we can't if by any chance New York should go dry, which, of course, it never will.

Should the unexpected happen, and New York go dry, everybody would take to drinking surreptitiously. Everybody who wanted to would find a way to get around the law. There would be more drunkenness than ever there was. As it is now, people feel that they must behave themselves in public places.

But there is absolutely nothing to worry about—New Yorkers are sane, we will never go dry!

Walter Knox, Canada's Greatest Athlete, will Ask to be Reinstated

Toronto, Dec 20.—To see Walter Knox a member of the Canadian Olympic team next year in England, is the hope of thousands of lovers of athletics in Canada and there is just a bare chance that their wishes may be realized. Knox arrived in the city yesterday and will stay here for a few days before going to his home in Orillia, where he will spend Christmas.

He then expects to take up his home in Toronto, and retire permanently from athletics unless the C.A.A.U. reinstates him, thus losing to Canada perhaps the greatest all round athlete ever produced in the Dominion.

Knox, since his disqualification by the C.A.A.U., has spent most of his time in Port Arthur and has also resided almost wholly from athletics for several months past. He has hopes of reinstatement by the governing union and will apply at once for a re-hearing in the hopes that he may be able to induce the governors to take a lenient view of his case.

SORRY FOR MISTAKES MADE.

Talking to a representative of the press last night Knox expressed the deepest regret for the step he took. "We all make mistakes sometimes and I certainly made a very grave one, but there were extenuating circumstances. There is more behind the case than the public know and I think if the actual conditions were known that I would not now be in athletic disgrace. However, I have tried to live down the mistake I made and I think I have done so to some extent.

"I ask another chance and one more only and I will prove to Canadians that I am amateur in spirit. I want to get back to hang up a few marks for Canada, and I will guarantee to establish some records that will not be equalled for a long time.

COULD CAPTURE CHAMPIONSHIP.

"When I disqualified myself there was really nothing in the athletic line to keep a young man in Canada. A course of meets a year was about the best we could do, and there did not appear to be a revival in sight. Anxious to be up and doing I transgressed the amateur rule, and I am sorry very sorry."

That the Orilla boy is sincere in his desire to secure a restoration of his amateur status and is willing to make every sacrifice if he is allowed to return to the ranks of the Simon Pures is known by the fact that he has just turned down an offer of $120 a month to coach the college team at Bozeman, Mont., the institution he was connected with when his disqualification was announced by the C.A.A.U.

There are many athletic authorities who believe that Knox, if allowed to return to Canada at the Games for games, would just about capture the all-round championship. He is a splendid type of athlete, a pleasing personality, quiet and unassuming, and wherever he goes he has friends who wish to see the C.A.A.U. reinstate him.

HIS MARKS.

Knox has been in splendid shape all season and his marks in practice for some of the events in which he specializes are as follows;

	Knox.	Record
Broad jump	23 ft.	24 11 3-4
Discus	126 ft.	134
Pole	12,1 ft.	12 5 1-2
16-lb. shot	43,6 ft.	49 1-4
12-lb. shot	58.4 ft.	55,6 1-2
8-lb. shot	67.5 ft.

This is said to be equal to Ralph Rose's record.

It will be remembered that Knox beat Bobbie Kerr at the C. A. A. U. championship in the 100 yards, and he claims he can repeat the trick every time they meet.

YOU FEEL TIRED ALL THE TIME

Night comes and it's hard to sleep. Morning dawns and the aimless tired feeling is still there. Unwilling to give up a strong desire to rest just a little longer.

Unwise to neglect this gradual decline. It can't cure itself,—but Ferrozone by forming rich pure blood at once supplies nutriment for building up the system. This extra nourishment is distributed throughout the entire body, gives force to the nerves, strength to the muscle, and power to the digestive organs.

At once you feel braced, toned and strengthened. You know a powerful force is building up depleted energies, you realize what it means to have the vim and spirit of robust health.

Search the world over and you won't find a tonic, to nourish, build up, and fortify a weak lady like Ferrozone. Physicians claim it is the best all round strengthening medicine ever discovered.

To take Ferrozone regularly is an insurance policy of health, a guarantee that you will be free from vexatious spells of headache and debilitating sickness of every kind. Surely it is worth while trying a medicine that Mrs. H. S. Gold, of Bowsman, Man., speaks of as follows:

"I want to state my case, because I think it may be the means of assisting other suffering women back to health. A year ago I was almost a wreck. I was pale and emaciated, suffered from nervousness and dizziness. Little things that went wrong in the house bothered me. The doctor advised different treatments, but they didn't help. He said that my low condition of health was due to weakness that might never be cured. Ferrozone had a peculiar grateful effect and built me up quickly. The ills I suffered from are cured. I am now strong and vigorous, and was made so by Ferrozone." (Signed) Mrs. H. S. Gold.

Before your ill-health assumes a chronic or malignant form build up with Ferrozone. Sold everywhere, 50c. per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

THE AMERICAN CRUISE

Those who are responsible for the details of the cruise of the American fleet to the Pacific seem to be losing no opportunity to make it look like a menace to Japan. They have now sent ashore, just before sailing, all the Japanese attached to the fleet. This would be perfectly proper if the fleet were sailing to fight Japan; and it might be fair measure of precaution if war with Japan were regarded as probable. But when we are asked to believe that there is no such idea in the heads of the authorities at Washington, it is only natural that the question should be asked why the Japanese were singled out for this "bad eminence". Were there no Germans, French or British in the fleet to send ashore?

As a precaution, it would seem to be more theatrical that practical. The opportunities that a subordinate on shipboard would have of learning that complications had arisen with Japan—if they should arise during the cruise—would be very small as compared with the certainty of such information in the captain's cabin; and it would thus be easy for the commander of the fleet to confine every Japanese to his quarters long before the rank and file had learned that anything had happened. Thus the measure has rather the appearance of a popularity-seeker trying to impress the American people with the idea that his vigilance never sleeps and that he misses no precautions, than a practical move to protect the fleet from danger.

It will be nothing short of a crime against civilization if the American people—pacific to the core and admirers of the Japanese—are stampeded into a conflict with that nation. Obviously the Japanese do not want war. To accuse them of such a desire under present conditions is to accuse them of national insanity. Their finances would never bear the strain, though their men and ships would effectually prevent the Americans from reaping and benefits from the struggle. No crop could grow from such a sowing except a mutual hatred and distrust which must bear bloody and costly fruit in the future. Yet there is not a predatory power in the world that would not rejoice to see such a conflict; for it would drive a fatal wedge into the British-American-Japanese union which now guarantees the peace and prevents the partition of China.

A Countess Sues The Italian King

Rome, Dec. 19.—A sensational trial which has been before the courts for several months past was ended yesterday, the court reserving decision. It was a suit brought by the Countess Heredani against the Royal Family of Italy for damages, she setting up the claim that she was the mother of a child by King Humbert, when she was fourteen years of age.

She asked that the child be supported by the Royal House, which produced evidence tending to show that the woman at the time of the alleged relation with the King already was of age, and that he supposed child was officially registered as her brother's.

It is expected that the Courts decision will be rendered within a month.

Friends of H. H. Rogers say that his fortune today could not be reckoned at less than $200,000,000 and that a very large share of it is in cash as a result of the sales of securities which he made before the recent collapse in prices began.

Sir Thomas Lipton believes in fresh air and to avoid sleeping in town will often drive ten miles at 1 o'clock in the morning to Osidge, his place at Old Southgate, in Middlesex. He is now a keen gardener and has of late been heard of as an orchid fancier.

He has served the government continuously for fifty-five years.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

For the first time the much discussed double canals on the planet Mars have been caught on a photographic plate. Professor David Todd of Amherst college did it 15,000 feet above sea level in the Chilean Andes.

In the new radium problem of W. Thorpe, the British physicist, a pellet of mercury in a capillary tube connecting two glass bulbs slowly creeps toward a bit of radium bromide in one of the bulbs. As any emanation would cause an opposite motion, this curious effect has proved very mystifying.

It is now possible for a balloon to throw out more ballast than it carried up from the surface of the earth. In a balloon ascent made from Berlin by Captain von Krogh, the pilot of the Parseval balloon, there was carried a quantity of chemicals which have the property of absorbing moisture and thus increasing their weight in a damp atmosphere. The experiment was successful.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

Roller skates were in use as far back as the year 1760.

Elephants.

Under Water.

Four minutes and twenty-nine and one-fourth seconds is man's record for staying under water.

Public Lands.

In bestowing the public lands the government exacts certain conditions, such as the erection upon the land of a house and the setting out of a certain number of trees, if the land happens to be in a treeless section. The money consideration is a trifling one, just about enough to pay the expenses of the transaction.

Men and Women of Ontario

This APPEAL ..... is for..... You

The Great Provincial Charity, The Hospital for Sick Children, Calls On You For Aid.

Remember that this Hospital is not a local institution, but Provincial.

"I LIKE PICTURES"

It cares for every sick child in the Province of Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay for treatment.

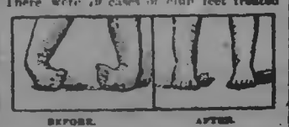
Busy dollars are better than idle tears. The sympathy that Weeps is good, but the Hospital has to have the sympathy that Works.

Last year there were 1093 patients admitted. Of these 37 came from 254 places outside of Toronto—all were children of poor people who could not afford to pay for treatment of their little ones.

Each child was in the Hospital 47½ days at a cost of $1.31 each per day, or $62.22 for the 47½ days stay.

MASSAGE

If your dollar could straighten the feet of a little boy or girl with club feet, you would gladly give it, and your dollar will do that. There were 79 cases of club feet treated last year. Out of the 79, about 50 were from the country.



BEFORE. AFTER.

If you know of any child in your county who is sick or has club feet, and whose parents can not afford to pay, send the name to the Hospital Secretary.

EYE CASES.

The stock books are open. Won't you let the Hospital write your name down for a few shares in Heaven's own work of healing little children?

A great mine of Mercy—the mining stock that always pays dividends—is bought with the money that helps The Hospital for Sick Children to extract the Gold of Life from the Quartz of Death.

Please send contributions to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Esq. Treas., of the Hospital for Sick Children, College House, Toronto.

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry may, however, be made at any Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a straight line measured due south, due east, due north or due west from the homestead, but shall include only such portion of the land within such limits as is available for settlement, and shall not include any land within the limits of any previously existing homestead, timber limit, mining claim, village, town or city.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE [illegible] INDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Tempest and Sunshine," "Lena Rivers," "English Orphans," "Maggie Miller," Etc.

at last. We have a little girl at our house who is very capable for one of her years. I think she would be quite handy in a sickroom. At all events, she can rock the baby. Shall I send her up until you get someone else?"

"Oh, if you only would!" answered Ella. "I should be so glad."

So it was arranged that Dora should come next morning, and then Eugenia, who was this time in a hurry, took her leave, having first said that Mrs. Hastings "needn't think strange if Dora called her cousin, and her mother aunt, for she was a poor relation whom they had taken in and given a home out of charity."

At first Mrs. Deane objected to letting her niece go, "for she was needed at home," he said; but Eugenia finally prevailed, as she generally did, and the next morning Dora, who was not displeased with the change, started, bundle in hand for Rose Hill. She had never been there before, and she walked leisurely along, admiring the beautiful house and grounds, and thinking Mrs. Hastings must be very happy to live in so fine a place. Ella was unusually nervous and low-spirited this morning, for her husband had gone to Rochester; and when Dora was shown into the room she was indulging in a fit of crying, and paid no attention whatever when Mrs. Leah said, "This is the new girl." "She'll be over it directly," muttered the housekeeper as she went from the room, leaving Dora inexpressibly shocked at witnessing such grief in one whom she had thought so happy.

"Can I do anything for you?" she said at last, drawing near, and involuntarily laying her hand on the golden curls she had so much admired.

There was genuine sympathy in the tones of that childish voice which touched an answering chord in Ella's heart, and lifting up her head she gazed curiously at the little brown-faced girl who stood there neatly attired in a dress of plain dark calico her auburn hair, which had grown rapidly, combed back from her open brow, and her dark blue eyes full of tears. No one could mistake Dora Deane for a menial, and few could look upon her without being at once interested; for early sorrow had left a shade of sadness upon her fair face unusual in one so young. Then, too, there was an expression of goodness and truth shining out all over her countenance, and Ella's heart yearned towards her at once as towards a long-tried friend. Stretching out her white, wasted hand, she said, "And you are Dora. I am glad you have come. The sight of you makes me feel better already," and the small rough hand she held was pressed with a fervor which showed that she was in earnest in what she said. It was strange how fast they grew to liking each other—those two children—for in everything save years Ella was younger far than Dora Deane; and it was strange, too, what a change the little girl's presence wrought in the sick-chamber. Naturally neat and orderly, she could not sit quietly down in the midst of disorder, and as far as she was able she put things in their proper places; then, as her quick-seeing eye detected piles of dust which for days had been unmolested, she said, "Will it disturb you if I sweep?"

"Not at all. Do what you like," answered Ella, her own spirits rising in proportion as the appearance of her surroundings was improved.

Everything was in order at last. The carpet was swept, the furniture dusted, the chairs emptied, the curtains looped back, and the hearth nicely washed. Fresh, clean linen was put upon the pillows, while Ella's tangled curls were carefully brushed and tucked under her tasteful cap, and then for the first time Dora took the baby upon her lap. It was a little thing, but very beautiful to the young mother, and beautiful, too, to Dora, when she learned that its name was "Fannie."

"Fannie!" How it carried her back to the long ago, when her father had spoken, and her precious mother had answered to, that blessed name! And how it thrilled her as she repeated it again and again, while her tears fell like rain on the face of the unconscious infant.

"Why do you cry?" asked Ella, and Dora answered, "I am thinking of mother. Her name was Fannie, and I shall love the baby for her sake."

"Has your mother long been dead? Tell me of her," said Ella; and, drawing her chair close to the bedside, Dora told the sad story of her life, while Ella Hastings' tears fell fast and her eyes opened wide with wonder as she heard of the dreary room, the dead mother, the bitter cold night, and of the good lady who brought them aid.

Starting up in bed and looking earnestly at Dora, Ella said, "And you are the little girl whom Howard and Mrs. Elliott found sleeping on her mother's neck that New Year's morning. But God didn't let you freeze. He saved you to live with me, which you will do always. And I will be to you a sister, for I know you must be good."

And the impulsive creature threw her arms around the neck of the astonished Dora, who for some time could not speak, so surprised and delighted was she to learn that her benefactress was indeed the sister of Mr. Hastings. After a moment Ella continued, "And you came to live with some distant relatives—with Mrs. Deane?"

"Yes, with Aunt Sarah," answered Dora, stating briefly the comparatively double relationship that existed between herself and her cousins, and casually mentioning her Uncle Nathaniel whom she had never seen.

"Then he is your uncle, too—the old East India man, whose heir Eugenia is to be? I should think he would send you money."

"He never does," said Dora, in a choking voice. "He sent some to Eugenia once, but none to me," and a fear at her uncle's supposed coldness fell on the baby's head.

Ella was puzzled, but she could not doubt the truth of what Dora had said, though she wisely refrained from betraying Eugenia, in whom her confidence was slightly shaken, but was [illegible] to appearance. [illegible] who overwhelmed her with caresses and went into ecstasies over the little Fannie, thus surely wending her way to the mother's heart. Owing to a severe cold from which Eugenia was suffering, she left for home about dark and soon after her departure Ella began to expect her husband.

"If you will tell me where to find his dressing gown and slippers, I'll bring them out for him," said Dora, wheeling up before the glowing grate the large easy chair which she felt almost sure was occupied by Mr. Hastings.

"His gown and slippers!" repeated Ella. "It's an age since I saw them, but I guess they are in the dressing room, either behind the door, or in the black trunk, or on the shelf—or, stay, I shouldn't wonder if they were on the closet floor."

And there, under a promiscuous pile of other garments, Dora found them, sadly soiled, and looking as if they had not seen the light for many a day. Shaking out the gown, and brushing the dust from off the slippers she laid them in the chair, and Ella, who was watching her, said, "Pray, what put that into your mind?"

"I don't know," returned Dora; "only I thought perhaps you did so when you were well. Ever so long ago, before pa died, mother made him a calico dressing gown, and he used to look so pleased when he found it in his chair."

"Strange I never thought of such things," softly whispered Ella, unconsciously learning a lesson from the little domestic girl, who brushed the hearth, dropped the curtains, lighted the lamp, and then went out to the kitchen in quest of milk for the infant Fannie.

"He will be so happy and pleased!" said Ella, as, lifting up her head, she surveyed the room.

And happy indeed he was. It was the first time he had left his wife since her illness, and with a tolerable degree of satisfaction he took his seat in the evening cars. We say tolerable, for though he was really anxious to see Ella and the baby, he was in no particular haste to see the room in which he had left them; and rather reluctantly he entered his

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, for turn boys growths back to fresh youth. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pain and purge of this deplorable disease.

Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I positively cure all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those mind-like granular waste, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 511 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortes, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,600 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 50-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 6 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 30 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Hunningtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $4.00 a ton in FREE gold, and from 5 to 25 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"* * * With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government experts report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 100 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Noted Evangelist's Experience

Jenne, Ills., Oct. 7—"I always praise the bridge that carries me over safely" are the words of J. Dimick Taylor, the great American Evangelist, whose home is in Irene. While in Nova Scotia last winter I needed medicine and used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They helped me wonderfully and I recommended them to others. I send this testimonial because your remedy will work directly on the kidneys, and cures the urinal disorders that often give pain to the man and woman affected with kidney trouble. I have not found anything equal to Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills. I gave them to a man on Tan Cook Island that was suffering in a most horrible way and in a few hours he was relieved.

When a druggist like Mr. Taylor comes forth in praise of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, it is evident their power is beyond the ordinary. For diseases of the kidneys, bladder, liver and stomach they have no equal. Easy to take, very mild, sure to cure, 25 cents per box at all dealers.

Hartley's Benefit Tickets Selling

Dave Hartley, Peterborough's long distance walking champion was out yesterday disposing of tickets for the complimentary concert to be given him in the Market Hall during next January. The exact date has not yet been fixed but will probably be about the middle of the month. Those buying the undated tickets may rest assured that such tickets will be good when the exact date is announced. Mr. Hartley, it might be noted, yesterday started out with a great bundle of these tickets that by six o'clock had dwindled down so that only a few of the original rubber bands confining them were left in his hands. There is no doubt, especially judging by yesterday's sales of the tickets sold by Hartley and his friends, that the public of Peterborough, both sporting and otherwise, appreciate what this pedestrian has done for the glory of local athletics and the advertisement of our city.

Mrs. Dunlop's Funeral Held Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon the last mortal remains of the late Mrs. Dunlop, who passed away at her late residence on Water street, were laid to rest in the Little Lake cemetery.

Deceased was a daughter of the late Hon. T. A. Stewart, and was born in Ireland in 1819. She came to Canada in June 1822. After some months residence in Toronto and Cobourg, Mr. Stewart moved to the township of Douro. The Stewart homestead was erected on the present site of the residence of Mrs. Robert Hamilton, and was given the name of "Auburn," from which that suburb of Peterborough derived its name.

Mrs. Dunlop was married in 1845 and lived for some years in Otonabee and latterly in Ashburnham and Peterborough, and survived her husband, the late A. C. Dunlop, by two years.

The "Forest Home," compiled and published by Mrs. Dunlop in 1901, consisted of a limited but most interesting account of Canada's former life, intended for the use and instruction of Mrs. Stewart's immediate family and friends.

Mrs. Dunlop is survived by one daughter, one sister, and three brothers.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Robt. Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's church. The pall bearers were nephews of the deceased.

Chinese Way of Celebrating Xmas

Next Sunday is the Chinese Christmas day, coming three days ahead of the day observed throughout the Christian world. The day will not be observed to any extent by the local Celestials, as Christmas is not in the Chinese calendar. The Chinese New Year, which comes towards the end of January, is however the cause of great celebrating among the Orientals population and in Chase.

In Chicago, on the Chinamen's New Year's day, South Clarke street, where Chinese grocery stores display all kinds of far eastern delicacies including eggs that have disappeared for years into innocous desuetude and incidentally rhyming, are offered.

Ducks' feet, sharks' fins, and birds' nests, etc., prepared specially for Chinese palates are bought by Chinks having the price, and vegetables unknown to dwellers in these parts are eagerly sought for; on this street from, say 10,30 p.m. until perhaps 3,30 or 4 a.m. scores of thousands of bundles of firecrackers are thrown from the second, third, fourth or fifth stories of buildings where fan tan gambling houses, laundries run as such but really used as joints where the nerve soothing boy (opium prepared for smoking), is cooked from specially prepared "pills" over sputtering peanut oil lamps, flourish, and where the poorest Chink to the Sam Moy, who is worth millions, and who goes, for a consideration on the bonds of Chinamen under arrest, flourish. Fortunately this city has not yet reached a sufficient Chinese population to be impelled to suffer such things. The Chinamen of Peterborough are so far, and it is to be hoped, will be, good law-abiding citizens.

They Went to Church.

Attendance at church service is obligatory upon the part of soldiers at certain English posts, and amusing stories are told of the excuses that are sometimes resorted to in order to escape this requirement. At one post where a number of recruits were temporarily stationed an old sergeant was ordered to ascertain to what religious sect each man belonged and to see that he joined the party told off for that particular form of worship. Some of the men had no liking for church and declared themselves to be atheists. But the sergeant was a Scotsman and a man of experience.

"Ah, weel," said he, "then ye hae no need to kapenholy the Sabbath, and the stables hae na been cleaned oot lately." And he ordered them to clean out the stables. This occupied practically the whole day, and the men lost their usual Sunday afternoon's leave.

Next Sunday a broad smile crept over the face of the sergeant when he heard that the atheists had joined the Church of England.—London Tit-Bits.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root): Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding) due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa, suppressed or absent monthly periods, arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and A[illegible]mia (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no health woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general debilitation, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

WHEN TO FEED COWS.

The Regular Routine of Feeding and Milking.

Feeding cows before, after or at time of milking has but very little influence upon the amount of milk given or the cows' comfort, provided that whichever method is adopted, it is continued regularly. Cows, like men, are creatures of habit. They know almost to a minute when it is time for the grain ration or other feed and when the milker is due to take the milk, and nothing should occur to cause a break in the regular routine of feeding, milking, etc.

At Milking Time.

Our own practice has been to feed after milking. It has also seemed best to have the cows all attention at milking time. If eating a grain feed while being milked, a cow is eager for the feed and possibly brings the right hind leg forward suddenly against the milker, causing the pail to move about and rattle. The unexpected noise may cause the cow to kick or the one next to her to do so. The milker must be constantly on his guard. In moving from one cow to another he must speak to her and attract her attention from the feed or she may kick. Possibly she is the gentlest cow in the herd; but, being busy with her feed, she kicks out at a noise in the rear or upon being touched with the stool or hand. She is nervous and seeks to protect herself.

First Work in the Stable.

Our first work in the cow stable in the morning is milking. The cows begin to get up and stretch. They are perfectly quiet, are not expecting feed, but are ready to be milked, and as each cow's turn comes she puts herself in proper position and does not move a muscle. She likes to feel the brush on her flank, udder and belly, brushing off loose straw, hair, etc. The moment that the last cow is finished, however, that quiet, sleepy condition is changed to one of activity.

A Matter of Habit.

They are eager for breakfast and ask for it with wide open eyes and gentle lowing. They smell the ensilage as it comes down from the silo. Their actions plainly indicate that they would like to have the feeder hurry. In an hour they are lying down, eyes closed, and busy with the grind of contentment. It certainly must be plain to every one that this is habit and that a continuance of such regular work is best for the cow.—M. Stenson in Farmers' Review.

Yule Dough.

The first authentic record of Christmas pie or pudding is that of the Yule dough. This was a paste made in the form of a baby and presented by the bakers to their customers as a Christmas gift. In ancient Rome on the vigil of the Nativity sweetmeats in the form of images were presented to the holy fathers, and it is probable that Yule dough had its origin in this custom. A belief was prevalent at one time that mince pie, which is composed of fruits and spices grown in the east, was a survival in memory of the offerings brought by the wise men to Bethlehem when they came to worship the infant Saviour. The pie in later years came to be a wonderful compound of fruits, spices and meats, eggs and sugar and inspired the poet Herrick to write:

Come, guard this night the Christmas pie
That the thiefe, though he'er so sly,
With his flesh hooks don't come nie
To catch it.

Plum pudding, now the universal piece de resistance in England, was originally "plumb porridge" and was served from a tureen at all the Christmas festivals.—St. James' Gazette.

MR. H. RUSH WILL ACCEPT THE MAYORALTY NOMINATION

Former Member of City Council will Oppose Mayor McWilliams in the Coming Contest for the Mayor's Chair

In response to a requisition signed by five or six hundred representative citizens, Mr. Henry Rush, ex-alderman, has consented to become a candidate for the mayoralty for 1908. A strong deputation waited upon Mr. Rush last Wednesday, and asked his acceptance of the nomination for the velvet chair. Mr. Rush asked time for consideration of so important a step, and yesterday morning signified his intention to defer to the wishes of his requisitionists, and in the following letter to the electors, definitely enters the lists with the present mayor, R. F. McWilliams:—

To the Electors of Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen. — On Wednesday evening last a deputation waited upon me to present a requisition signed by hundreds of ratepayers of Peterborough, asking me to become a candidate for Mayor. I cannot but regard so numerously signed a requisition and by so representative a number of citizens as a call of duty. Consequently, as I have, during my 45 years' residence in Peterborough, tried to do my duty faithfully to the place in which all my material interests are centered, I have decided to place myself in the hands of the electors.

If I am chosen as Mayor I shall use all my ability to practically apply the motto of my life—"The interests of Peterborough, first, last and always." I am known to you all by virtue of a residence of 45 years in the city and through a corresponding experience in business, which through the kind co-operation of the public, I have been favored in making a success.

Though I have not sought public office any more than I am seeking the present offered position, I may say that for four terms in succession I was returned as alderman without soliciting or attending a nomination or soliciting a vote. I felt that as both an honor and a flattering mark of confidence, which I endeavored to justify to the fullest of my ability. And if elected as Mayor I shall discharge the duties of the office to the full extent of my powers and with a single eye to the promotion of the best interests of the city.

That is the platform upon which can and do appeal to your support; that is the platform upon which I shall justify your choice if you do me the honor to elect me. It is not practicable for me, even if it were in line with my inclinations, to personally call upon the electors, I hold that the office should seek the man rather than the man the office. I have no personal interests to serve; my only object in accepting the kind offer of the citizens, for which honor I give my hearty thanks is to serve the best interests of the city of Peterborough. With cordial wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all, I remain,

Your obedient servant,

H. RUSH.

Flash of Gems Sets Women Almost Mad --Poor Children Happy

London, Dec. 20.—Most of the jewels which burglars stole from Mrs. David Beatty, Wednesday night at Brooksby Hall, Melton Mowbray, were bridal gifts to her from her father, the late Marshall Field, of Chicago.

The burglars' loot included a splendid gold snuff box once owned by Louis Philippe and many pieces of jewelry set with stones from a collection of gems which Marshall Field purchased. The gems had been reset as late as last year, so as to bring them up to the very latest fashion.

Despite Mrs. Beatty's brave attempt to capture the thieves they escaped with $25,000 worth of plunder, including a ring set with two rare pearls which she values very highly. Her mother wore both pearls in earrings. Marshall Field had one set in a scarf pin which he wore at his second wedding. He bought the pearls, intrinsically worth $2,500 each, to his daughter. Of course gold snuff boxes he gave Mrs. Beatty the burglars carried off three. Also frames and cases set with the finest diamonds.

That Mrs. Beatty should have taken so many valuables to lovely Brooksby Hall is not surprising in these days. She is a victim of the craze to display splendid finery which now afflicts the fashionable women who, with their husbands, are renouncing hunting boots in the shires. Until a few years ago the women and men of the hunting set led the simple life during their favorite season and shunned all show, form and ceremony. Indeed, its simplicity was one of the greatest charms of the life.

But nowadays the rivalry in display of jewels and of dress and in gorgeous entertainments has become as heated in the shires as it is in London or Paris. This rivalry adds so much to the expense of the already costly sport that only the wealthy can indulge in it. It may be a coincidence that this year there are more Americans at Melton Mowbray than ever before. The burglars will learn with deep regret that they did not get one-tenth part of the jewelry Mrs. Beatty has at Brooksby Hall.

MADE CHILDREN HAPPY.

The Duchess of Marlborough, who returned to England from New York, will have her two young sons with her for Christmas at Sunderland House. There she will have a children's party on Boxing Day. There will be a great Christmas tree, to which the duchess brought over many new American toys, and after the toys are distributed the youthful guests will dance a cotillion.

On another day a Christmas ship will arrive at Sunderland House for the express benefit and to the extreme delight of 100 very poor children from the east end, where the duchess has studied ecological conditions and dispensed charity during the year. The children will be driven in omnibuses to Curzon street. Lord Blandford and his brother, Lord Ivor Churchill, their royal cousin, and little Jean Paynter, whose mother is the duchess' best friend, stand as a sea maiden to distribute the gifts from the richly laden ship to the far less fortunate little ones.

The duchess will need much cloth-ing as Christmas gifts to the tenants at Blenheim.

TO PASS WINTER IN ENGLAND.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet has decided to remain in England over the winter. She will start next week Lord and Lady Alastair Innes-Ker. Mrs. Goelet will spend Christmas with her daughter, the Duchess of Roxburghe, at Floors Castle, and may take a small place near the castle where she will pass part of the summer.

She has already bought many Christmas gifts, including a handsome electric clock for Mrs. Whitelaw Reid. The stand on which the clock rests, about a foot high, is of chrome decorated with roses and violets. In the center of each rose is a tiny electric light, so when the clock is illuminated the effect is very pretty.

Mrs. Goelet has bought bolts of Scotch home-made tweed to distribute among her daughter's guests and servants.

Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, and his children, whose mother was Miss Leiter of Chicago, will pass Christmas with his father, Lord Scarsdale. The children will visit their aunt, Lady Miller, in a few days.

NEW SECRETARY.

Sheldon Whitehouse will be Ambassador Reid's new private secretary, succeeding Sydney Hoyt. Mrs. Whitehouse knows England as well as he does American. His father lived here most of the time. His sister Lily married Hon. Charles Coventry, second son of the Earl of Coventry. Another sister is the wife of Baron Devamsey, a foreign nobleman. Mr. Whitehouse is expected to come with the ambassador when Mr. Reid returns from New York.

Mrs. Clarence Hyde will pass the winter at the Winter Palace Hotel, Cimiez. Mrs. Herold Van Buren is expected at Nice early in the new year. She will come to London for the season.

Mrs. Potter Palmer's son, who will marry Miss Kohlsaat of Chicago, soon, will bring his bride to London for the honeymoon. They will occupy Hampden House, Green street. Mrs. Palmer is again seeking to buy a town house and may bid for Hampden House. The Duke of Abercorn puts a high price on it.

Dave Hartley Issues an Open Challenge

To show clearly that Dave Hartley, the local pedestrian not only means real business but is there with the goods and has a substantial backer, it might be noted that last night the following challenge was thrown out to the world, Editor of The Times:

I hereby challenge any man between the ages of 40 and 60 to walk in a rink here or other place agreed upon later in this city for a 12 hours' walk. Mr. Isaac Eastwood of this city will back me for any amount from $500 to $2,000. People who mean business must write within the next two weeks to Mr. Eastwood, my backer.

DAVID HARTLEY.

It might be added that Mr. Eastwood read and approved the above letter and assured the Times that should Hartley's challenge be accepted that he, Mr. Eastwood, will guarantee the money.—Ed. Times.

The Toboggan Slide at Jackson Park is now open for the winter.

$30,000,000 for Navy

London, Dec. 21.—Germany, whose naval program has been laid out up to 917, will spend $30,000,000 on her navy this year, and although the characteristics of the new battleships are not announced, it is believed they are to consist of more than 18,000 tons displacement, and are to carry a large number of heavy calibre guns. Her small cruisers are to serve as scouts and possess high speed. The armored cruiser being built will be as big as a battleship and with guns as heavy, and it is expected to have turbine engines, which may make it the fastest thing of its size afloat.

The details of the Japanese program have not been announced. It is known that the vessels taken as prizes from Russia are being repaired and that two submarines are now building for Japan in England. The appropriation for the year amounts to about $18,000,000, and, although Secretary Metcalf does not suggest such a thing, it is not at all improbable, that the Japs can do a good deal of boat building with this amount of money. News dispatches the other day announced that Japan had offered to build a battleship for Spain at a sum much lower than the contract could be handled in Europe.

Contrasts Japan and U. S. Fleets

St. Petersburg, Dec. 21.—Contrasting the American and Japanese fleets Admiral Rojestvensky said: "The Japanese personnel, man for man, is now undoubtedly more efficient than the American; this is due to practice in battle, but the American ships so exceed the Japanese in strength and numbers that there is no question of American superiority. I consider that the question of war between Japan and the United States is quite excluded."

Admiral Rojestvensky said he was opposed to the rebuilding of the Russian fleet. He believes that Russia's will be on land, and that the money a fleet would cost would be better spent in building up a commercial marine.

Local Option in Peterboro County-- Voting in Every Municipality in Riding --Large Portion of County May go "Dry"

Lakefield, Dec. 20.—With a broadside sweep the local option war is striking the county of Peterborough, and, after the voting has taken place next month, there is every probability that a large proportion of the county will be registered as "dry" on the local option chart of the Province. The sentiment throughout the county is strongly in favor of the movement. Several municipalities have already abolished the licenses, and it is practically certain that the townships of Harvey, Burleigh and Brock will give a three-fifths' majority for local option, which there is every probability of other townships and villages doing the same. Votes will be taken in all the municipalities not now having local option except Peterborough city and the township of Norwood.

Douro township, to the east of this place, has had no license for some years. The people as a rule are Catholics, and the priests took an active interest in temperance work, and through their influence the license fee was raised to a prohibitive figure.

This village, ten miles north of Peterborough, and with a population of 1,000, went on the dry list two years ago, and the township of Smith followed a year ago.

Lakefield, lying between the two townships is a strategic point, and that no doubt accounts for the activity of the opponents of local option and their desire to reclaim it.

OPINION NOT UNANIMOUS.

A great difference of opinion was found to exist among the prominent citizens as to the success of local option here so far. Some considered it a failure because of the amount of liquor brought over from Peterborough. Many local optionists, however, consider that this is exaggerated, and that the system works well.

"Local option is proving all right," declared Mr. Wm. Graham, one of the leading merchants. "It is only a few of the less reputable people who bring the liquor here from Peterborough to hand out among their friends, and we have reason to believe that the liquor interests do all they can to encourage the consumption of the stuff here, and to discredit local option generally. But it has been a good thing for our village, which is more orderly and has fewer drunken men than formerly. So far as my experience goes the business of the town has not suffered for we have done better this year than last year.

"Local option," he added, "would fare better here if the inspector did his duty properly. It is strange that everybody knows he is coming three hours before he arrives, and those who are to be inspected have time to get ready for him."

"I think we're getting along all right," replied Mr. F. E. Klein, another leading merchant. "There is not so much drinking, at any rate, and the town has certainly benefited from local option. My business has not suffered at all."

"Is there any likelihood of the by-law being repealed?" he was asked.

"I couldn't say."

Mr. J. G. Brown, who runs a canoe factory, believes that local option has been a success.

"We haven't the drunken men now," he said. "The hotel accommodation is all right, and there are comfortables here who are doing better provided for than they used to be. I heard of one man who never had saved anything before local option, who laid by $300 in the first year after the by-law came into force."

Councillor Campbell thinks that local option is not being defeated by the alleged free importation from Peterborough. "Liquor is brought here occasionally," he said, "and there are twenty-five Italians at the cement works who have their order of beer delivered to them about once a week. But on the whole, there is not nearly so much drinking done, and I believe that local option has been a good thing."

When local option was carried the majority was not large. The vote was taken before the three-fifths regulation came into force, and out of 350 votes there were only 46 more for the by-law than against. The local optionists further allowed their case to be weakened by the neglect of hotel accommodation for some six months. One of the two hotels closed up after the passing of the by-laws, and the remaining one could not provide sufficient accommodation, and there was considerable inconvenience to travellers for a while. Then a syndicate was formed and opened another house, after which the closed hotel was re-opened, so that now there are three, and the village is well supplied with accommodation.

Regarding this, however, one prominent citizen states that he knows that the two original hotels are kept open only in the hope of getting back the licenses at the end of the three years. "In case the by-law is not repealed," he said, "we may have more trouble about hotel accommodation."

Several men of the village further expressed themselves as opposed to the present system because they believed that a great deal of drinking is still going on, or they declined to state their opinion on what was said to be a "hot subject."

BETTER FOR WORKINGMEN.

"The workingmen can be heard on better now," admitted a large employer, "and the village is certainly more orderly, but I can't say that I believe in the present system, because liquor is being constantly brought in, and there is a great deal of drinking going on, not only by men, but also by boys. I never saw so many boys from 15 to 18 years of age who were drinking liquor as there are now. If we had the license system and had the law strictly observed, I think that would be better."

"I wouldn't express any opinion," said Dr. Burgess, reeve of the village, "for I have not given the subject any special attention. It must have been a good thing for the workingmen. It will be in force another year anyway."

One of the merchants "had nothing to say about local option," and another did not believe in it on account of the amount of drinking he believed was done here.

A World Wide Athletic Peace and a Universal Amateur Definition

Toronto, Dec. 21.—To bring about a world wide athletic alliance and a universal amateur definition is one of the fond dreams of the city Chief Stark, president of the C.A.A.U., and he believes that the first steps in the formation of such a body will be taken at the Olympiad next year.

The deputy is tired of the constant strife over the amateur laws and is convinced that the whole vexed question could be settled at an international conference next year in England, when the most representative athletic interests all over the world will attend the greatest series of sports ever held.

SHOULD TAKE INITIATIVE.

Mr. Stark, too, thinks Canada should take the initiative in promoting the organization of an international athletic congress and the probabilities are that when the Olympic Committee gets down to a working basis the president of the C.A.A.U. will ask Col. Hanbury-Williams and the other members to take the question up, and suggest the advisability to the Olympic Association in England of calling a congress before or during the games, at which he expects to see the preliminary steps taken towards a settlement of all controversial points.

The perpetually recurring war over the question of the professional in the amateur would, of course, be the main point at issue, and with this settled once and for all an era of world-wide peace in athletics would follow as a matter of course.

Practically every country on earth has an amateur definition of its own, but after all they do not differ in any essential detail, except as regard the inter-association of the two classes of athletes, and here should, on the whole, be no insuperable obstacle in the way of a universal agreement on all the points in dispute.

"The question is a big one, and a most important one. It cannot be settled except after the most careful thought and consideration.

"We have had enough of this perennial strife and controversy and I would like to see the Canadian committee take the first step in the formation of an international conference, which could meet every four years, wherever the Olympic games are being held."

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous colitis), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in effecting cures.

"Favorite Prescription" is advised for the relief of long-standing cases of female weaknesses, debilitating ills and irregularities incident to womanhood. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the breakdown, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulas of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines. The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials. Because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glycerine extracts of the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicines. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for either of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

BABY BORN ON TRAIN

Toronto, Dec. 20.—When the train from Cobalt drew into the Union Station at 10 o'clock this morning, it was learned that the stork had brought an unexpected passenger on the train down.

About one o'clock this morning Mrs. P. H. Fullerton, of New Liskeard, who was coming to the city, gave birth to a child in the washroom of one of the Pullmans. Fortunately for the mother, Dr. Warren, of Latchford, was on the train also, and attended her patient.

A message was sent on, and the mother and child were met at the depot by an ambulance, and taken to the General Hospital.

Made Night Hideous by Drunken Revelings After Accident

Jacob's Creek, Pa., Dec. 20.—Up to 11 o'clock today but six bodies had been removed from the Darr Mine, the scene of yesterday's terrible explosion. Many more had been located, and as the work of the rescuers is progressing well, with the fans working and no fire in the mine, it is thought the recovery of all the bodies is merely a matter of hours.

The exact number of men entombed when the explosion occurred is still uncertain, but there is reason to change the earlier estimate of at least 200. Six members of Troop A of the State Constabulary, who arrived during the morning, were at once placed on duty at the mines to keep back the crowds, which began to gather at daylight. No other explanation than that the explosion was due to gas has been advanced.

DISTORTED BY AGONY.

Jacob's Creek, Pa., Dec. 20.—Of the 200 or more miners who were made prisoners in the Darr mine of the Pittsburg Coal Co. yesterday, by a terrific explosion the bodies of thirty this morning lie in the main entry, where they were laid during the night by the rescuers, until they can be brought to the surface. Some of the bodies are dismembered and mangled, and all are distorted by the agonies of violent death, and disfigured and begrimed by the concussion and the smoke and dust of the explosion.

Faint hope is cherished by rescuers and friends and relatives that some of the men have survived the explosion, and are awaiting release far back in the mine. For this reason the rescuers did not take time to bring out the bodies as they found them, but pressed forward to open a passage to and explore every section of the mine.

The bodies located during the night will be brought out today as rapidly as possible, while the search continues.

MADE NIGHT HIDEOUS.

The foreign miners who escaped the disaster made night hideous in their little village. They had suspended work because of the holiday, and most of them followed their usual holiday custom of drinking to excess. Many were intoxicated before the catastrophe and afterwards they put themselves in worse condition, some drinking in celebration of their escape, and others drinking to drown grief over the death of relative or friend. All night there was carousing and disorder, at times bordering on rioting. The calling to the mine of a troop of the State Constabulary, as well as steps to stop the further sale of intoxicants, are being seriously considered.

Col. Sam Hughes was Nominated in Victoria

A largely attended convention of the Liberal Conservative party of Victoria County was held in Lindsay. Delegates appointed Col. Hughes over Dr. Vrooman, by a large majority, receiving over 300 votes of the 375 delegates.

The meeting was most enthusiastic, and all present were confident of same returning Col. Hughes as their representative at the next election.

Division Court Cases Yesterday

Yesterday a case was tried in the division court against Mrs. McAllister, on a large account contracted for hacks hired from Mr. R. Gibbs. Mr. Hutton for the prosecution, and Mr. R. F. McWilliams for the defence. It seems that some of the hacks were hired during Mr. McAllister's absence. Mr. McWilliams claimed that the most of the accounts should be charged against Mr. McAllister. His honor ruled that Mrs. McAllister must pay the account.

Taylor vs. Reid, was next called. As there were a large number of cases to be tried, and this would be a long case his honor said he would try it in his chambers at any date agreed upon by both parties. Both sides agreed to this.

The next case was that of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Son vs. Howard & Hubert, a Bracebridge firm, for goods sold the latter.

Mr. Turner went into the box and identified an order given by said firm to Messrs. Turner for an awning worth $17.35. Witness said Howard & Hubert sent the order for the awning for which his firm's traveller had taken the order. The goods were sent in C.O.D.

Mr. Gordon for defence, said this is a case of local jurisdiction. His honor transferred the case to Bracebridge.

Then followed Kennedy vs. Kennedy. John Kennedy made a note for twenty-five and handed same to Arthur Kennedy. This had been paid except some eleven dollars or so. Judgment for plaintiff.

This case involved a history concerning and anti-dating the actual date of the note, and covering various business transactions involving interest charges, payment on principal, but what brought down unrestrainable laughter from all present, about sundry bags of apples, alleged to have been delivered by defendant to plaintiff. Plaintiff admitted getting some bags but denied the whole lot as alleged.

The next case tried was that of a man who formerly sold metal, rags, and junk of all kinds to Mr. George Stevens, who was sued by the latter for some $40 balance of a note signed by defendant and endorsed by Stevens, originally for $75.

Defendant said he had made an agreement with Stevens, whereby the latter was to pay $1 per cwt. for rags, eight cents for rubber and 14 cents for copper. Witness then said Stevens had agreed to give highest current market prices. He claimed Stevens did not give him highest market prices.

Mr. Stevens, in the box, when asked as to prices remarked, "To tell you the truth, although I should not do so, we have lost on every pound of rags we have bought this year." Judgment for Mr. Stevens.

Kindergarten Pupils Give Entertainment

The closing exercises of the King Edward school kindergarten were held yesterday morning from ten to twelve o'clock. A large number of the parents and friends of the little ones were present. The children gave demonstrations of the work they do in school and showed surprising cleverness. The choruses and recitations were also well given and elicited hearty applause. One of the features was the Christmas tree, which was well laden with presents from the children for their parents, thus practically teaching the little ones that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Inspector Mowat was present and was greatly pleased with the work of the children.

Is Prof. Shepherd Fully Responsible?

Yesterday evening a self-claimed acquaintance of Prof. (?) Shepherd, the latter recently committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble, for collecting [illegible] of the Times office, and, whilst not fully [illegible] facts as shown in evidence at his trial at the police court, expressed the firm belief that Shepherd, whilst possibly an adept in palmistry, seriously questioned whether Shepherd is fully accountable, or in other words, our caller thought that Shepherd before being tried on such a charge should be examined as to his responsibility. To substantiate in part, his information, our caller declared that he knew absolutely of one letter, presumably from a lady admirer, unknown to him, sent to the professor by certain local men who had formed the same opinion of the prisoner, &c.

Now it seems that although a joke of this kind might have been perpetrated, deeper significance is underlying in his trial. Before trying him on a case of fortune telling, where more serious misdeeds of evidence, might be introduced, his responsibility should be tested.

Sports.

Brantford, Dec. 20.—The Brantford professionals held their first practice last night in the big rink. Six of the team were out, and although the affair was not advertised there were a hundred or so of spectators, who displayed unusual interest in the proceedings, all of which portend that the Telephone City is at last to have a hockey team in spite of the fact that new skates were in use by several of the local pros. last evening, and the fact that it was their first appearance on ice this year, they all looked to the goods, and a bunch that every hockeyist in the city will enthuse over. The players who were out were Miekus, Brewo, Taylor, McDonald, Miller and Cochrane. Jack Marks is yet to arrive.

Miller is the Peterborough youngster and plays left wing. He looks like a star.

ONTARIO WHEAT

There is a gratifying demand for Ontario wheat that is constantly increasing with every year. The millers of this Province have been eminently successful in combining Ontario and Manitoba wheat. And the resulting flours—blending flours they are called—have given, and are giving, complete satisfaction wherever used.

Blended flours have largely taken the place of "western hard wheat flours" throughout the Maritime Provinces. In Toronto bakers are using blended flours in preference to any others. All this means a rising market for Ontario wheat, because blended flours are milled of Ontario wheat with a small quantity of Manitoba wheat to add the necessary "strength."

Blended flours make a bigger, whiter loaf of bread than either Manitoba or Ontario wheat flour alone. And blended flours make lighter, tastier pastry than even Ontario pastry flour.

With the millers using every effort to create a profitable market for Ontario wheat, it does seem as if the farmers themselves should help in this work to the extent of buying blended flours for their own use. If every farmer in Ontario would use only blended flour, it would not only drive Manitoba wheat flours out of the Province, but it would start up such a demand for Ontario wheat that it would pay every farmer well to raise it.

LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS

The Postmaster General of the United States has multiplied the delights of childhood, and set an example that might be followed by Canada. An official order from him permits the delivery of letters addressed to Santa Claus. Last year these precious appeals went to the dead letter office. Clerks and carriers knew where they should go, but they had to obey orders. Santa Claus has no permanent abiding place, no street number, no place on the registration list. But he is everywhere.

Postoffice people would have delivered the hundreds of letters inspired by the fancies of Christian childhood that for many years have found their way to the mail boxes to some of the philanthropic people of the country had they been permitted. Now that the missives, indited in secrecy, when parents are not observing, every word inspired by an emotion that blesses all humanity, are to go to some kind hand, we know that Christmas will be enjoyed by many to whom otherwise there would be gloom.

Santa Claus long ago should have had his name in the postoffice directory. He is more important at this season than any other personage. His blessings fall upon the rich and poor. To be denied visits from the ever cheerful letter carrier would be a crime.

Letters written to Santa Claus from now on will be turned over to men and women whose tenderness of feeling ever goes out to the boys and girls, who, as the Christmas days approach, look forward to that happiest of nights when unseen hands shower gifts upon them. The Postmaster General of the neighboring Republic has recognized the cruelty of the department last year in not delivering the simplest and the sweetest letters ever written.

To be sure, the postmaster general does not guarantee to fill little ones' that all appeals will be answered. But many children will get more presents than if their letters were thrown away.

Postmaster General Meyer is a good man, and the children of America will wish him a merry Christmas. Then all our own postmaster general follow suit.

New Grandchild to John D. Rockefeller

New York, Dec. 20—A new addition to a goodly share in the untold millions of John D. Rockefeller, has arrived in town. The newcomer is a twelve-pound, plump and dimpled baby daughter of Mrs. K. Parmelee Prentice, of No. 5 West Fifty-third street.

Mrs. Prentice is John D.'s favorite child and the new baby will not have to worry about her financial future. Along with the five sons and daughters of Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, John D.'s other daughter, and the two children of John D., jr., little Miss Prentice will eventually acquire a generous slice of the Standard Oil magnate's millions.

Although the new baby arrived at the West Fifty-third street residence on Friday of last week no hint of the happening reached the public until yesterday. The first hint of what was to come was given last Thursday, when John D. was heard to ask where he could get "a nice little Christmas tree cheap."

The dignified butler who guarded the front door in Fifty-third street yesterday, while reticent, seemed honestly eager to unload the mystery. "I'd like to tell you all about it," said he in whispered tones, "but if I did I'd get the hook."

The new baby is the Prentices' second child. The first was a son, who died soon after birth. Mrs. Prentice and her daughter are both doing well.

BRITISH BARONETS.

Those of England and Ireland Wear the "Bloody Hand of Ulster."

The rank of baronet was given first by King James I. as a means of raising money. The recipients of the dignity were to be gentlemen of good birth possessing not less than £1,000 a year and in time of war—like the old knights banneret—were to occupy posts of honor near the royal standard.

The money payment has wholly ceased, but when a baronet is created the ancient form of warrant is still retained, and a "tally" is struck at the exchequer and handed to the new baronet by way of receipt. Baronets have no coronet or robes, but in the English and Irish divisions they possess as a distinctive badge the "Bloody Hand of Ulster," which invariably appears on their coat of arms.

The baronets "of Nova Scotia," who date before the union of England and Scotland, show the arms of Nova Scotia upon their shields. The baronets of Scotland have a distinctive badge consisting of an enameled decoration, "worn from the neck by an orange tawny ribbon," showing St. Andrew's cross upon a small shield, surmounted by a crown and surrounded by the enameled motto, "Fax mentis honestae gloria" ("Glory, the beacon light of the noble mind").

With this King Charles conferred a crest—a branch of laurel held by a naked hand and a thistle held by an armed one—with the added motto, "Munit haec, altera vincit" ("One defends, the other conquers"). All later baronets are of the "United Kingdom" or of "Great Britain" and possess no such pretty toys.

In fact, many people who pride themselves on their familiarity with Debrett know scarcely anything of baronets' badges and beyond a misty notion of the meaning of the Ulster Hand are unaware of their history and significance.

There is one instance of the honor being granted to a woman. Dame Mary Bolles of Osberton, Nottinghamshire, was created a baronet in 1635 for "maintaining thirty foot soldiers at eightpence a day for three years in his majesty's service," no slight help in those troublous times.

"Dame," the old English word for lady, is the almost obsolete style to be used by a baronet's wife. Nowadays she is styled "Lady" without the use of her Christian name. Should she prefer the old word "dame," that is always followed by the Christian name and sounds deliciously quaint and distinctive.—Modern Society.

The Northern Advance

At the small price of 40 cents a year the "Northern Messenger" carries to nearly 70,000 Canadian homes, scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from 12 to 16 pages of the most interesting matter that can be crowded into them. Children subscribe to it in their own names to-day whose grandparents delighted in it forty years ago, and who still feel that in their declining years there is nothing like it. The influence of the "Northern Messenger" in a home week by week is beyond estimation and can be always counted on as making for righteousness. It is strictly undenominational, strongly evangelical and temperance, and loyal to British and Canadian ideals; its bright stories, anecdotes verses and pictures combine to make the "Messenger" interesting and helpful to every member of a family.

For the Sunday School there is no better paper than the "Northern Messenger." Half rates are given to Sunday Schools and a three weeks' trial free is invited. Special terms to newly organized schools. Published by John Dougall & Son, "Witness" Block, Montreal.

And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even a very young babe. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lung healing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. All dealers.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made at an Agency on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead duties under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of his homestead. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of a homesteader has permanent residence on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty (80) acres in extent, in the vicinity of a homestead, or upon a Homestead entered for by him in the vicinity, such homesteader may perform his own residence duties by living with the father (or mother).

(4) The term "vicinity" in the two preceding paragraphs is defined as meaning not more than nine miles in a direct line exclusive of the width of road allowances crossed in the measurement.

(5) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

Six months' notice in writing must be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of intention to apply for patent.

DORA DEANE

OR THE E... NDIA UNCLE.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

found one dwelling, starting back when he opened the door of the sick-chamber, and half thinking he had mistaken another's man house for his own. But Ella's voice reassured him, and in a few moment he had heard from her the story of Dora Deane, who ere long came in, and was duly presented. Taking her hand in his, and looking down upon her with his large black eyes, he said, "I have seen you before, I believe, but I did not then think that when we met again I should be so much indebted to you. I am glad you are here, Dora."

Once before he'd held that hand in his, and now, as then, the touch sent the warm blood bounding through her veins. She had passed through much since that wintry morning, had grown partially indifferent to coldness and neglect, but the extreme kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Hastings touched her heart; and stammering out an almost inaudible reply, she turned to hide her tears, while Mr. Hastings advancing towards the fire, exclaimed, "My double gown! And it's so long since I saw it! To whose thoughtfulness am I indebted for this?"

"Twas Dora," answered Ella. "She thinks of everything. She is my good angel, and I mean to keep her always, if she will only stay. Will you, dear?"

"Oh, ... I only could!" answered Dora; "but I can't. They need me at home."

"Why need you? They have servants enough," said Ella, who had not yet identified Eugenia's waiting-maid with the bright, intelligent child before her.

"We have no servants but me," answered the truthful Dora. "We are poor, and I help Aunt Sarah to pay for my board; so you see, I can't stay. And then, too, I must go to school."

Perfectly astonished at this disclosure, Ella glanced towards her husband, whose quizzical expression kept her silent, for it seemed to say, "I told you all the time that Miss Eugenia was not exactly what you supposed her to be."

"How could she deceive me so?" thought Ella, while Mr. Hastings was mentally resolving to befriend the child in whom he felt such a strong interest.

Wishing to know something of her education, he questioned her during the evening concerning her studies, and the books she had read, feeling surprised and pleased to find how good a scholar she was, considering her advantages.

"There's the germ of a true, noble woman there. I wish my sister could have the training of her," he thought, as he saw how animated she became when he mentioned her favorite books, and then watched her as she hovered round the bedside of his wife.

Very swiftly and pleasantly passed the three following days, and during all that time Eugenia did not once appear; but at the close of the fourth day a note was brought to Ella, saying that both Eugenia and her mother were sick and Dora must come home.

"Oh, how can I let you go!" cried Ella, while Dora crept away into a corner and wept.

But there was no alternative, and just at dark she came to say good-bye. Winding her feeble arms around her neck, Ella sobbed out her adieu, and then, burying her face in her pillow, refused to be comforted. One kiss for the little Fannie, one farewell glance at the weeping Ella, and then with a heavy heart Dora went out from a place where she had been so happy—went back to the home where no one greeted her kindly, save the old house cat, who purred a joyous welcome, and rubbed against her side as she kindled a fire in the dark, dreary kitchen, where, on the table, were piles of dishes left for her to wash. That night, when at a late hour she stole up to bed the contrast between her humble room and the cosy chamber when she had recently slept affected her painfully, and, mingled with her nightly prayer, was the petition that "some time she might go back and live with Mr. Hastings!"

Meantime at Rose Hill there was sorrowing for her. Ella refusing to be comforted unless she should return. Mr. Hastings, who had spent the day in the city, and did not come home until evening, felt that something was wrong the moment he entered the door of his chamber. The fire was nearly out, the lamp was burning dimly, and Ella was in tears.

"What is it, darling?" he asked, advancing towards her; and, laying her aching head upon his bosom, she told him of her loss, and how much she missed the little brown-faced girl who had been so kind to her.

And Howard Hastings missed her too—missed the tones of her gentle voice, the soft tread of her busy feet, and, more than all, missed the sunlight of comfort she had shed over his home. The baby missed her too; for over her Dora had acquired an almost mesmeric influence, and until midnight her wailing cry smote painfully upon the ear of the father, who, before the morning dawned, had concluded that Rose Hill was nothing without Dora Deane. "She shall come back, too," he said, and the sooner to effect this, he started immediately after breakfast for the home of Mrs. Deane. Very joyfully the deep-blue eyes of Dora, who met him at the door, looked up into his, and her bright face flushed with delight when he told her why he had come. Both Eugenia and her mother were convalescent, and sitting by the parlor fire, the one in a shilling calico and the other in a plaid silk morning gown. At first Mrs. Deane objected when she heard Mr. Hastings' errand, saying, with a sudden flash of pride, that "it was not necessary for her niece to work out."

"And I assure you, it is not our intention to make a servant of her," answered Mr. Hastings. "We could not do otherwise than treat so near a relative of yours as an equal."

The last was well timed, and quite complacently Mrs. Deane listened while he told her that if Dora were allowed to stay with them until she was older she should be well ... would supervise ... Miss Eugenia," he continued, "please intercede for me, and, I assure you, both Ella and myself will be eternally grateful."

He had touched the right chord at last. Rumor said that Ella Hastings would never see another summer, and if before her death the husband was eternally grateful, what would he not be after her death? Then, too, but the day before they had received a remittance from Uncle Nat, and with that they could afford to hire a servant; so, when Eugenia spoke, it was in favor of letting "Mr. Hastings have Dora just when he wanted her, if it would be any satisfaction to poor dear Ella!"

A while longer Mr. Hastings remained, and when at last he arose to go he was as sure that Dora Deane would again gladden his home as he was next morning, when from his library window he saw her come tripping up the walk, her cheeks flushed with exercise and her eyes sparkling with joy, as, glancing upward, she saw him looking down upon her. In after years, when Howard Hastings' cup was full of blessing, he often referred to that morning, saying "he had seldom experienced a moment of deeper thankfulness than the one when he welcomed back again to his fireside and his home the orphan Dora Deane."

CHAPTER X.

Very pleasantly to Dora did the remainder of the winter pass away. She was appreciated at last, and nothing could exceed the kindness of both Mr. and Mrs. Hastings, the latter of whom treated her more like a sister than a servant, while even Eugenia, who came often to Rose Hill, and whose fawning manner had partially restored her to the good opinion of the fickle Ella, tried to treat her with a show of affection when she saw how much she was respected. Regularly each day Dora went to the handsome library, where she recited her lessons to Mr. Hastings, who became deeply interested in watching the development of her fine intellectual mind.

One thing, however, troubled her. Ella did not improve, and never since

AN EXTINCT ANIMAL.

The Saber Toothed Tiger Was a Formidable Creature.

The most remarkable of all the extinct feline animals are those known to naturalists as the saber toothed cats or tigers, a group comprising the greater part of all the fossil forms. They date back to the earliest times of which we know anything about the family in North America and reach down to the time of man himself. A large and powerful species described from the Indian Territory by Cope lived contemporaneously with the hairy mammoth, as evidenced by the commingling of their skeletons. There can be little or no question but that the hairy mammoth was contemporaneous with man in North America as well as in Europe. His geological range is from the close of the eocene to the latter part of the pleistocene.

The chief peculiarity of the animal is the extraordinary development canine teeth. The tail is of unusual length and the legs are short. The animal measures about seven feet in length aside from the tail. The lower jaws have a downward projection in front, due to a flangelike widening of the jawbones, which doubtless served as a protection to the teeth, preventing their injury or loss. In some of the larger forms from South America this flange was not present, while the canine teeth were even more elongated than is the case with this species, attaining a length of over six inches and protruding far below the jaws when closed.

Hair Ribbons.

In 1680 the Duchesse de Fontanges had the misfortune to have her hat blown off at a hunting party, and she tied her hair with one of her ribbon garters. Hairdressing with ribbons remained a fashion for seven years.

Greenland Ice.

Some of the ice fields of Greenland are believed to be a mile and a half in thickness.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with cream, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature unmistakably has a remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, but physicians can but deal Nature's way to some and this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in the forests—Cascara Sagrada—offers a more positive aid to this end. But, combined with other vegetable laxatives, Pepsin, Egg Bark, Solid Extract, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation in Lax-ets, the Cascara Cubby Tablet, called Lax-ets, to be made at the Dr. Sheep Laboratories, from the purest and most effective prescription. Its action on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is quick, prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put in beautiful Cobwebgraphed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

ANTIGUA GOLD-COPPER Co.

Offers the Biggest and Most Attractive Mining Investment Now Before the Public.

ITS HOLDINGS ARE MINES--NOT PROSPECTS

With Vast Bodies of Ore Ready for the Mill, Now Nearing Completion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON
"Copper stocks offer the biggest opportunity for money making in the world to-day. A good copper mine is really a safe-deposit vault of stored up dividends which cannot be stolen or destroyed by fire, flood or famine."

CECIL RHODES
said: "Mining offers greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth."

CHARLES M. SCHWAB
says: "The big fortunes of the next twenty-five years will come from Mother Earth." Among all mining investments none stand ahead of copper for safety, permanency and profit.

Lay the Foundation for Your Fortune Today

THE ANTIGUA PROPERTIES

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company holdings consist of 631 acres, situated in Honduras, Central America, 100 miles southeast from Puerto Cortez, and midway between New Orleans and Panama. Development work is being pushed with all possible speed, and more than 1,500 feet of tunneling and shaft work has been completed. A 40 to 60-ton capacity gold-silver mill is in course of construction, and will be in operation before the close of the year.

Development work has conclusively proven that every acre of our holdings are rich in gold, copper and silver, and that every ton of this great ore body will yield a handsome profit on milling expense. The ore exposed on the surface does not require mining in the usual sense of the term, but may be obtained by quarrying. It can, according to estimates of experts, be quarried and treated for the gold and silver on an extensive scale at a cost of less than $1.00 a ton. Think of it! A solid mountain of rich ore, from the very grass roots of which may be washed gold.

Beyond a doubt Honduras has beneath her soil larger, richer deposits of copper, gold and silver than any other section of the American continent. Spain, during her sovereignty in that country, took out more than $300,000,000 in gold alone—and she scarcely scraped the Earth's surface. There is evidence that the pre-historic races knew how to mine and utilize copper—smelting it in their crude way.

The original incorporators of the Antigua Gold-Copper Company spent thousands of dollars of their own money in bringing this property to its present stage of development. They opened up the mine on every side with tunnels, crosscuts and shafts. They purchased machinery and began the erection of a gold-silver mill—now nearing completion. These men appreciated from the first that this mine was destined to become one of the greatest copper-gold-silver properties in America; and that it justified more extensive and more rapid development than they were able to make without the co-operation and financial assistance of the public.

The average assay values of Antigua ores, ranging from the surface to a depth of 200 feet, is over 5 per cent copper. This is above the average of the ore of the world's greatest producers, the famous Anaconda yielding ore which averages only a little over 3 per cent. The Anaconda has little other ore value, while our property, in addition to the copper, carries $2.00 to $1,400 a ton in gold and silver.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

The Antigua Gold-Copper Company finds itself in precisely the same position as the farmer who has a larger farm than he can cultivate with the capital in hand. He knows that with additional capital and assistance he could make the land yield abundant crops and enormous profits. In the same way we intend, by the investment of additional capital, to bring our enormous ore bodies to a highly profitable state of development at the earliest possible moment. For this reason a limited amount of treasury stock is offered the public. In this way funds will be available for immediate use in purchasing additional machinery and for continuing vigorous development of the property.

THERE ARE NO PREFERRED SHARES AND NO BONDS TO COME FIRST IN THE DIVISION OF PROFITS.

and your shares will earn as much as a like number of shares owned by any other stockholder in the company. Each share CARRIES WITH IT THE RIGHT TO VOTE, so that with a single share you have every right, privilege and protection possessed by any other stockholder.

Stock is now being sold at $2.50 a share, and this stock, we firmly believe, will, within a year, be selling at its par value of $5.00 a share, or higher; nor will it stop there. If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, reserve shares TO-DAY.

Such an investment opportunity can scarcely be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Millions of dollars of copper, gold and silver will be marketed from the mines—fortunes will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity we offer you to-day.

REPORT OF AN EXPERT

Much weight can justly be given the statement of a properly qualified and reliable mining engineer. Such is the character of T. W. Foster, from whose report on Antigua we make the following extracts:

"From the development work done and the indications shown by the croppings, I am convinced this is one of the largest gold-copper deposits in existence, and under proper development will make one of the richest mining properties in America. * * * I consider this ore an ideal smelting proposition, there being an abundance of iron, lime and silica in close proximity. There is plenty of water for power and milling purposes, and an abundance of timber on the property. * * *

"A large amount of development work has been done on this property in tunnels, drifts and shafts, ranging from 50 to possibly 200 feet in length. * * * This work has all been in ore—in fact, the ore body on the surface is shown to be fully one-half mile wide by two miles in length. To judge from the development work done, this property is all ore—no matter where work was started, ore was encountered.

"The company is erecting a mill, consisting of one five-stamp and three Huntingtons, to work the surface ore. This surface ore is mostly free milling, the copper and galena sulphides being oxidized, freeing the gold, and being readily amalgamated. But I am confident that at no very great depth copper sulphides will be encountered, as there are many places in this great ore body where the sulphides crop to the surface. I have taken a dozen samples from various places on the lead, and from these made free gold tests, finding an average of over $6.80 a ton in FREE gold, and from 3 to 5 per cent copper. Native copper is frequently seen in this ore. If the Antigua mines continue in depth as on the surface, a 1,000 ton smelter will not work it out in 100 years. * * *

"With good management and proper development, it will be but a short time until the stock of the company will be worth more than par. I fully believe that if this great ore body is properly developed there is a mine here worth many millions of dollars.

Make Your Money Work

THE PACIFIC FRUIT COOLING AND VAPORIZING COMPANY (Inc.)

was organized several months ago by well-known business men and fruit shippers of California for the purpose of precooling fruit before starting it on its long journey to the Eastern market. The Government expert's report on the precooling of fruits, is convincing evidence that the importance of precooling fruit is necessary and has come to stay. The inventor of our process has been engaged in the fruit business for many years and during the past five years has spent much time and money experimenting with the best methods of pre-cooling fruits. His tests have been practical and convincing. The keen business man saw at a glance the possibilities of his invention, and with the combination of capital, together with the enormous fruit industry, we were convinced of success and have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We are now busy at work making our machinery, to install ready for the coming season's fruit crop, and the opportunity now offered by this company is an ideal investment for the wage earner as well as the rich man. Moderate sums invested now will bring splendid returns in the near future, and as a ground floor opportunity we are offering a limited allotment of stock to the general public as a profitable investment.

At 25 Cents Per Share for a Short Time Only

Investments made six months ago have advanced 150 PER CENT. The next six months promise to far exceed the past six months DON'T WAIT.

Time is the essence of this proposition. This stock will certainly double in a short time. J. Gould once said, "When you see a good investment, don't wait to see if it pans out well, for by that time other people see it too and you have lost your opportunity and you must then pay a higher premium on the original price to get it."

You will note the entire absence of risk in this advertisement. Each machine will pay for itself the first season and leave a handsome margin for dividends. Just as soon as we set our machines in motion they begin to earn money and big money, too.

Dr. Hamilton Speaks on Curing Pimples

Gives Common Sense Advice That Every Person can Employ at Home.

"I believe all skin diseases such as pimples and eruptions originate through the failure of the eliminating organs to purge certain poisonous wastes from the body.

"There is at all times a large accumulation of foul matter in the system, which, if not destroyed, gets into the blood. Germs and disease producing matter are thus circulated through the body. Ultimately they force their way through the pores of the skin, producing pimples, swelling, red blotches and often eruptions horrible to look upon.

"I usually found the primary cause to be with the kidneys and bowels,—these organs are too slow. My Pills of Mandrake and Butternut contain very active vegetable extracts that act on these organs directly. They give strength, tone and vigor to the eliminating organs that positively ensures a clean healthy body."

A course of Dr. Hamilton's Pills puts the system in perfect order, they cleanse the system inside as soap and water does outside, they remove all toxins and poisons that block the avenues of health and life, make the skin smooth, restore roses to the cheeks and that brightness to the eye that denotes sound health. Because Mild, Safe, Efficient, anyone can use Dr. Hamilton's Pills with perfect results.

Prominent Dairy Expert in This City

Mr D. F. McKenzie of Beaverton, Ont., who is official milk tester, under the Dominion Government for the Cow Testing Association of this district, has been in the city for some days on business. Naturally, Mr. McKenzie's greatest business here brought him in frequent contact with Mr. C. A. Gillespie of Gillespie & White, the George street grocers and vendors of dairymen's supplies. In conversation with Mr. Gillespie last night this gentleman seemed to have a high opinion of Mr. McKenzie's abilities, and as high an opinion of the good work done by the association he practically represents. This recommend of Mr. Gillespie's is important in view of the fact that Mr. Gillespie is not only Peterborough's most prominent representative on the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, but one of Canada's leading and generally recognized authorities on dairying matters.

It will be remembered that during the general meeting of the E.O. Dairymen's Association, held in the opera house here, Mr. Gillespie held a prominent part in the proceedings and was universally recognized as an authority on dairy business and advancement.

Another Aspirant for Local Honors

It seems that Peterborough has an aspirant, with seemingly good recommendations as to quality and staying power, for honors on "The long highway," in the person of Mr. Chas. Stevens a son of Mr. George Stevens, generally known as the "junk king." This young man only 18 years of age is as hard as iron, with muscles resembling copper wire and wind as confined and saved for future use as an air-pump.

This lad, who is in constant training and will next May join the bunch of walkers and runners for the great events of 1908, on last Tuesday left the city about at 7 a.m., walked to Millbrook and returned to Chas. Mongraw's barber shop, Simcoe St., at 4.15, having walked the 26 miles in nine hours and fifteen minutes. Early next week Mr. Stevens will try to walk to Havelock and back a distance of 52 miles in 13 hours. He expects that Ben Howard the Indian runner, will accompany and pace him during his attempted feat.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters By Using Pe-ru-na.

"I Attribute my Extreme Old Age to the Use of Pe-ru-na."

Mr. Isaac Brock, 118 Years Old Last Birthday.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 118 years. For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

Some time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture, holding in his hand a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson.

Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 118 years ago.

Born before the United States were formed.
Saw 22 presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at the age of 110 years.
Believes Peruna the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal troubles.

IN speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper thing for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 118 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but, of course, subject to the affections which are due, to sudden changes in the climate and temperature.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing."

In a later letter, Mr. Brock writes:

"I am well and feeling as well as I have for years. I would not be without Peruna."

Yours truly,

Isaac Brock,

A letter dated July 8, 1906, written for Mr. Brock by his wife, Sarah J. Brock, states:

"Last winter I had just gotten up out of a spell of sickness, when I commenced taking Peruna. I think it improved my health very much."

In a postscript, Mrs. Brock adds: "He receives a great many letters inquiring about what Peruna will do. I do not answer them all, as I think they can get a bottle and try it."

UNCLE SAM'S ADVANCE TO TEETOLALISM

No License Movement is Spreading Like a Tidal Wave--Has no Leader and Little Organization Behind It

New York, Dec. [illegible]—The remarkable advance of the anti-saloon movement in the United States—known as the spread of the local option and prohibition laws—continues to attract the attention of temperance reformers throughout the world.

Strangely enough this national reform has no leader, but has silently swelled like a rising tide until now it has inundated half the land and bids fair to go much further.

While the Prohibition party has languished, the National Temperance Society was never [illegible] at this time, nor so confident of extending prohibitory legislation.

In the South where prohibition has spread like a tidal wave, the chief reason has been the determination of the whites to suppress negro lawlessness. A majority of the crime of violence which have resulted in lynchings have been induced by drink, and it was argued that if liquor be placed beyond the reach of the negro it would be a more effective way of restraining his brutal and criminal impulses than any number of lynchings.

FIVE PROHIBITION STATES.
